A detailed pencil sketch of a hand holding a pen, with the word 'VISION' faintly visible in the background. The drawing is executed in a realistic style with fine lines and shading. The hand is positioned as if writing, with the pen held between the thumb and index finger. The background features the word 'VISION' in a large, stylized, sans-serif font, which is slightly out of focus. The overall composition is centered, with the hand and pen as the primary subject.

Berkeley High THE MOVIE

Directed by Jim Henderson

A BHS Faculty Production

Starring the Students

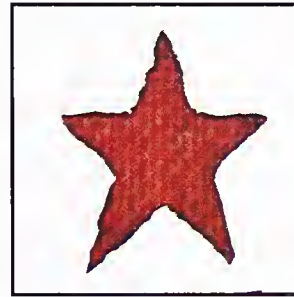

Rebecca and Nikki try to make the world go round.

Opening

The camera pans the campus...

From above, it looks quiet and tranquil, but as the lens zooms in, one sees that it is bustling and lively. Students flood through the gates on Milvia Street, on their way to lunch. Jimi Hendrix is blasting out of huge loudspeakers on the Community Theater steps. Fade to a view of some seniors relaxing on the steps; behind them, the Class of '95 is having a bake sale. Point to the Good Food Cafe outside the G Building, where several teachers are eating lunch. Inside the G-Building, in Sally Wolfer's room, the Backpacking Club is planning its next outing. Nearby, inside Mr. Dean's office, a mob of students is frustrated and confused, and has come to seek his guidance. Cut to a Student Senate meeting in the B.O.C. Outside the gym, cheerleaders are practicing. Near the C Building, a group of men's basketball team members is decked out in button down shirts and neckties. Dissolve to the park, where students are basking in the sun. A loud bell rings, and students filter in through the gates around campus as fifth period begins.

SPIRIT

Aaahhh Spirit Week! This eventful last week of October is one of the only times of year you can find Berkeley High students flaunting their platform shoes, polyester, and grass skirts in an adamant display of spirit. This year's Spirit Week consisted of Sports day, Ethnic Background day, Powder Puff day, Tropical day, Costume day (this year Halloween fell during Spirit Week) and the infamous Seventies day. Every year Seventies day gets more and more elaborate. Last year some members of the junior class added more to the Seventies scene by driving a Dodge Dart into the courtyard. This year the Senior class provided speakers out in the courtyard. This brought the school together to dance and frolic, reminding people of why Berkeley High School is so original and absolutely unique.

Along with all the fun that Spirit Week brought, this year the competition between the classes got a little out of hand. The usually friendly rivalries became more serious as some desperate members of the student body (particularly, members of the junior class) resorted to thievery and threats of violence. This resulted in the cancellation of the float competition, and controversy over the results of the Cup O' Soup Award. Although this week didn't go as smoothly as expected, almost all students made the most of it and enjoyed themselves. Despite the scattered unsportsmanlike and rude attitudes, the seniors maintained tradition and pulled through to win the Spirit Cup!

FORMALS

Posing for senior formals. Always a fun moment. You have to look your best and smile your brightest. Your hair is done, you're feeling gorgeous... Then, you wait in line for two hours, while your hairspray loses its grip and your smile begins to fade. Finally you get to the front of the line! Girls are handed a tiny, threadbare, pilly tank top, and after stretching the greasy scrap over their 'do's and fresh makeup, they take it off before a velvet shroud. many layers of a also dislodges. Once you are tux or drape the decides to re-do to yank your head around into the tween photos, you your chin 6 milli- your nose 2 millimeters to the right, thus providing the most unnatural look. After endless photos are taken, you are done. Months later, you will get proofs back, and be able to choose your least horrendous photo for the Yearbook and grandparents. Despite the trauma of taking Senior Formals, it is a rite of passage... After that day in the summer, you are really a SENIOR, ready for your year. Senior year is the year of fulfilling Berkeley High's graduation requirements and for some, doing college applications. All the stress of first semester was relieved second semester, when you barely had to go to class. Four years of high school have been long and tough and the Class of '93 are ready to leave, and go into the real world. Congratulations Seniors!

SENIOR ADVICE TO FRESHMEN

After four years spent in the hallowed halls of Berkeley High, the seniors are chock-full of useful advice for the freshmen. "If only I had known back in the day, when I was a little squeaker (freshman)," many seniors are wont to say. So, here are some insider tips for the clueless quarter of Berkeley High.

"You will grow."

—Kate Lydon

"Don't even think of trying to get with any of my sisters!"

—Luke Powell

"Steer clean of all trash cans, long (and short) lockers, and exceptionally large seniors."

—Brant Wiwi

"I told you, don't touch 'em!"

—Luke Powell again

"Don't worry you will one day win the spirit rally, you will."

—Mahnaz Saberi

"If you worked hard your freshmen year, you're a sucker."

—Al-Dog Moulton

"Skip study hall and go dance in the courtyard like God ain't even watching."

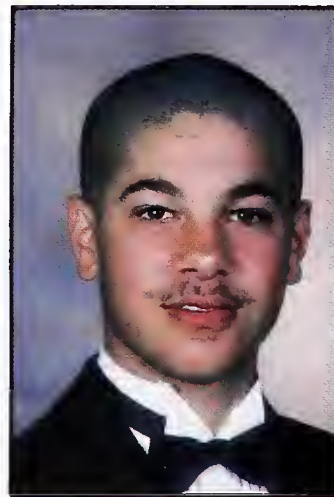

—Tamara Romijn

"There is no D-building."

—Kehinde Adeagbo

"Consider wearing a belt every day so you won't get pantsed."

THE MUSIC MAN

He is an outstanding musician, a good student, and an exceptional individual. His name is David Ewell.

Ewell is extremely talented; he has been playing the guitar for nine years, and also plays the bass, the violin and the piano. He practices music three hours a day. During his spare time, he gives free or discounted music lessons to kids who would otherwise not be able to afford them. When asked how he handles such a rigorous routine he smiles and says "I just love music."

David has been a member of the outstanding B.H.S. Jazz Ensemble since his sophomore year and has won numerous awards with the group. It has placed first at the Michael Wolff piano competitions as well as jazz festivals in Santa Monica and Santa Cruz. The B.H.S. Jazz Combo, which David is also a part of, has taken second place at Reno. In addition, David is in a jazz trio called Orion's Belt which has performed at local nightclubs and at benefits.

David is also an excellent student. He has taken many of the most challenging classes Berkeley High offers, including A.P. sciences and A.P. Calculus. He has a weighted GPA of 3.9.

In the future David hopes to study Music and the Humanities, at Cal, Columbia University, or the Julliard School of Music. Wherever he may end up, Berkeley High's Class of 1993 is very privileged to have known David.

SHE'S GOT THE POWER

We all face challenges in our lives, though few as extreme as those handed to Leila Massey. She is now a senior at B.H.S. and she is also in a wheelchair. Throughout her life Leila has been strong and always had an optimistic outlook.

Born with Spinabifida, a disease in which the spine is curved, she has been confined to a wheelchair since birth. She is nineteen, was born on July 24th, lives with her parents, and participates in all the typical activities of a high school senior, including tons and tons of homework, which we all can relate to.

While eagerly awaiting graduation, she has gone through many trying experiences.

Making it through the halls each day is quite a big accomplishment. Leila also plays on a power soccer team (power soccer is soccer for disabled people). In the two years that she has been playing with her team 'The Bay Cruisers' she has traveled to several interesting places. "Last summer we went to Canada, where we took second place," she energetically explained.

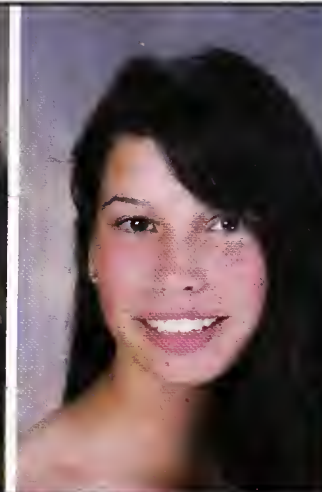

Leila hopes to attend Alameda College in the fall and move out to her own apartment. Leila is a very competent person and has always taken care of herself. With the energy and zest for life that she radiates it's clear that her disability has not yet and never will stand in her way.

PRESIDENT PALMER

You may have seen him interviewed on the news as he led the protests during the Rodney King verdict demonstrations of 1992. Senior Jioni Palmer's involvement in national politics is quite impressive... He is best known for his participation in such successful democratic campaigns as those of Senator Barbara Boxer and President Bill Clinton, but he has also had involvement with other causes, both political and non-political.

Palmer's interest in politics began at the age of five from listening to talk-radio with his mom. At an early age, he referred to Reagan as "War Man" because of hearing about the president's involvement in Nicaragua. This caused his Democratic values to develop while still young. Although he was always interested in politics, Palmer did not become actively involved until his junior year when he went to Washington D.C. with Close-Up. He was able to watch his favorite senators in action and to speak to Congressman Ron Dellums, while getting a feel for the capital. He then lived the Congress experience in Mr. Teel's American Government and Politics and Power classes. The simulation allowed him to be a congressman and write and pass his own bills. These experiences spurred him to volunteer for Barbara Boxer's campaign staff and eventually to help on the Bill Clinton presidency campaign. He was even able to welcome Clinton to the Bay Area in an opening speech for the former governor when he spoke in San Jose.

Although not set on a political career, it seems that Jioni Palmer is on the road to his own political campaign. He says that he wants to become a landscape architect, but if the option ever presents itself, he will run for political office. The next time you see his name, it could be on a ballot.

McCLUNG'S CANVAS

"Wedding Ring" is the title of one of Nicola McClung's paintings. It depicts her mother, who has just lost her wedding ring in the fire. She crouches in a corner surrounded by an endless pile of ashes. The lost wedding ring symbolized the devastation Nicola's family felt after their house burned in the East Bay Firestorm. Despite the fire, Nicola continued to work towards her goals.

Nicola has always been a talented artist. She has taken extensive photography and pottery classes at U.C. Berkeley, as well as at Berkeley High. She has exhibited and sold pieces of pottery through Cafe Ariel. Recently, Nicola started painting when she received a grant from FEMA (the Federal Emergency Management Agency) to replace and augment her art supplies after the fire. Apparently her paintings are also a success as she was invited to show her work at Cafe Espresso Roma.

Nicola felt the need to give something back to the community, which had helped her family after the fire. Last summer, she was able to combine this and her interest in art when she volunteered at the Alzheimer's Services of the East Bay. She directed art projects with the patients several times a week. Partly based on this experience, Nicola is thinking of pursuing a career in art therapy after college.

Nicola would also like to continue participating in athletics in college. She excels in sports. She has played a year of volleyball, two years of field hockey, and three years of tennis and softball at Berkeley High. Sophomore and junior year she was M.V.P. of the tennis team, and she went to the North Coast semi-finals. This year she was the field hockey M.V.P. and also went to the field hockey Nationals.

Nicola's optimistic outlook on life is exemplified by one of her favorite lines, "When life gives you lemons... keep on truckin'."

Everyone loves kids, that's a proven fact, and the following pages are loaded with tons of mischievous little tykes running, playing, and just looking plain cute. To some, kids represent the never ending runny nose and the always dirty diaper, but in truth, they represent the future of our lives as humans on this planet. Kids today are being taught to respect the Earth, Wind and Fire they have recently gotten used to. This how-constant trouble plaguing their pictures truly cap-nocence, and just youth. In these pho-forever caught in its ing for the true child ever, has not stopped and mischief from minds. The following ture the beauty, in-plain silliness of our tos, the senior class is purest form. Look-in all of us, we gleefully searched through the box of 200+ Senior pictures. We laughed (sometimes hysterically) and rolled our eyes at some of the through 'fits from the 70's. We think that these pictures will bring back lots of memories --of childhood and of experiences you have had here at BHS. Congratulations seniors, and good luck in life! Luke & Sierra, Informals Editors (Deepest apologies to Juleby Hirsch: in the rush to get our section finished his informal was misplaced and never recovered, sorry Juleby!)

Freshmen... the average height of the freshman class shrinks each year. Freshman are happy, jolly, and short, kinda like the seven dwarves. They come to Berkeley High craving knowledge, (of which they are so deprived) and fill the halls with their jovial laughter. They're so innocent, so young, so full of bubbly energy.

Somehow, all that away when they more slump and homework to do. relieved to have status, but they of a no-home-electives taking, the Sophmores censes, then running over all exuberance fades enter their sopho- they actually have Sophomores... are so shed their Freshmen crave the care-free life work having, four- Freshman. Some of get their driver's li- promptly lose it by the white haired old ladies on the corners. It's a little known fact that Sophomore is actually a word derived from ancient Greek, meaning "The muddled ones" Hmmm... Juniors...now THERE'S a class! The underclass just won't be the same without the class of nineteen hundred and ninety four. Juniors are in reality upperclassmen, but due to grave injustices are dubbed underclassmen by them elder ones who call themselves seniors. Anyway, the underclass are not on the under (au contraire mon frère) they are on the rise.

I JUST CAN'T DEAL!

Eleventh grade is the most dreaded year of high school. There is a lot of pressure to get good grades, to study for the S.A.T. and Achievements, and to start considering college, (not to mention to find a date for the junior prom). At family gatherings, after clucking over your advanced age, distant relatives nosily ask, "So what are you going to do after high school?" and sometimes, "What colleges are you considering?" The point is, junior year can be Stressville, but the Class of '94 survived. Here's how

"Once we were hella stressed, so we ran down the street butt naked at 3:00 A.M.!" —Anonymous

"I don't have stress"—Andrew McPhail

"I have temper tantrums and yell at everyone." —Tasha Dalmas

"I lie in the middle of my street at four in the morning and look at shooting stars." —Nadia Dabby

"I exercise more and I clean out my closet." —B.J. Jackson-Hancock

"Play hoop." —Andrew Wright

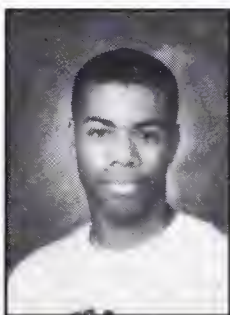

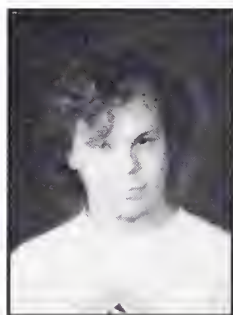

"I take vitamins"—Katrina Dows

"I listen to music, act hella crazy, and I kick it with my patnas, you know?" —Genoa Wayne

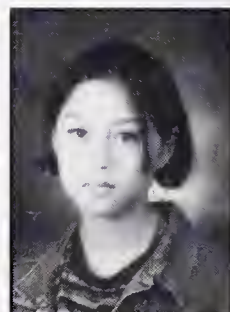

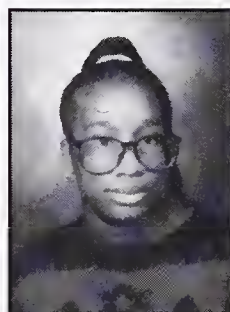

"Go home, lay down and take a HOT bath." —Shaina Pomerantz

"I climb up on my roof, and watch the sun set before I realize that I have to go back down and deal with everything"—Yasi Nouri

SOME ANNOYING TEST

Thaumaturgist, mnemonic, and eschatological

Recognize any of these words from when you took the S.A.T.? Did you have absolutely no clue what they meant? Unless you were in the 99th percentile, chances are both of your answers are yes. To prepare for the test, filled with arcane vocabulary and astronomically difficult math problems you could have:

- (A) Spent $565 and gone to a far-away class every Sunday.
- (B) Spent $15 on Barron's (or other brand of S.A.T. manual) book that you probably will not ever read.
- (C) Memorized a dictionary's worth of words that you'll NEVER use after the S.A.T. (except maybe if you take it again.)
- (D) Paid someone like Doogie Howser to take the test for you.

When the time came for you to actually take the S.A.T., did you remember all the stupid, last minute things people told you to do? Did you realize at 9:00 in the morning that maybe paying for an S.A.T. class would have been money well-spent? During the test is too late to think about these things, but maybe you could have:

- (A) Brought a plant with you so you could have more oxygen to breathe.
- (B) Did a handstand so the blood could have rushed to your head.
- (C) Guessed C
- (D) Tried eliminating at least one answer so you had 67.8% chance of getting the question right.

"DYING YOUNG"

Sophomore year, when "freshman" is finally a word of the past, is a big transition; classes, as you may have noticed, get much harder. Sophomores enter the wonderful worlds of science, social living, and driving; all necessary to survive high school. After sophomore year, one is decidedly more experienced in the ways of the world.

Now that your sophomore year is over you can relax, right? UUuuhhh...NO. Your junior year is yet to come. This year's juniors had some advice about the rigorous junior year:

"Master Yoga, and give up on sleep...it saves time."

—Matt Wilkinson

"RELAX this summer and prepare for next year."

—Jessa Mucio

"SLEEP, SLEEP, and SLEEP because next year you won't get any!!!"

—Yasi Nouri

"Ditto, I agree with Yasi."

—Kara Flanigan

"Don't smoke, live long, and prosper."

—Ron Scurlock

"Your blonde mother is so dumb it takes her an hour to cook Minute Rice."

—Nick Sinai

"Learn to drive NOW or else you'll still be on the A.C. tip when you're sixty-four."

—Andy Lei

"See a $2 movie every Tuesday in the summer since you won't have time to in your Junior year."

—Uyen Vu

"It's only one year out of your life."

—M.C. Mike D.

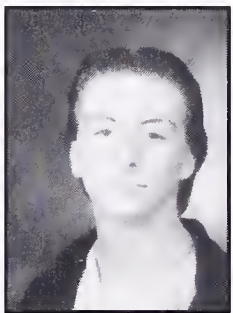

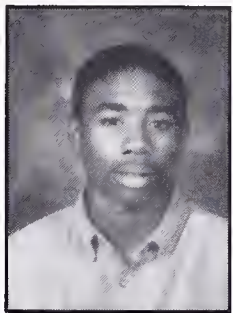

"Listen to the valuable words of your wise teachers. They can lead you in your greatest hour of distress."

—Dan MacDougall

"Know your priorities: 1. sex 2. money 3. power."

—André Séquin

LICENSE TO DRIVE

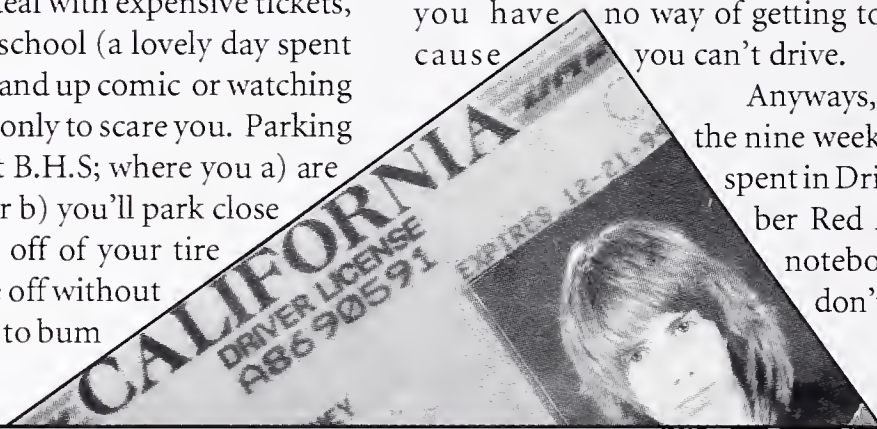

Freedom can mean living in your own place, having the trust of your parents to stay out late, never having to make excuses for your actions, and being your own boss.

In the tenth grade, freedom is a license to drive; having access to a car helps too. Above all, with a drivers license and a car, you no longer need to ride the bus. However, owning a car present problems too; you have to drive your friends everywhere, deal with expensive tickets, which can later result in traffic school (a lovely day spent listening to a non-humorous stand up comic or watching movies of accidents which serve only to scare you. Parking is major problem particularly at B.H.S; where you a) are forced to park six blocks away or b) you'll park close by, but have to erase the chalk off of your tire every other hour!! You're worse off without all this, in which case you'd have to bum rides off your friends, squander many hours on the A.C., or walk.

Some people stick with the bus and its problems, while others drive to school in comfort and worry about the tickets later! No matter what form of transportation you use, owning a license to drive means freedom; from the bus and BART, from boring Saturday nights when the car is free but you have no way of getting to your friends' house because you can't drive.

Anyways, it was a complete waste of the nine weeks of hellish boredom you spent in Drivers Education (Remember Red Asphalt? The Drivers Ed notebook? Pink slips?) if you don't have your license by now.

TOUR OF BERKELEY HIGH

Welcome Freshmen, to Berkeley High.. I'll be your guide for today. This large space with assorted brick statues is the courtyard. In front of us is the famous C building, and behind us, the Community Theater. Be careful Miss, I wouldn't wander over there - those are the Senior Steps. Let's enter the C building for a more complete tour. What did you say Sir, you wanted to use the restrooms? Well, unfortunately most men's bathrooms are not labelled. The walls are filled with graffiti, an overpowering stench fills the rooms, and the door handles are always wet (hopefully with water). I suggest using a bush. Follow me as we tour the G and H buildings. Notice the poor lighting, falling asbestos tiles, and lockers the same size as...well...you Freshmen. During the cold months, the heaters decide to stop working and icicles hang from the roof. On to the athletic facilities. This here is our gym, the Donahue. Perfect for basketball and volleyball, but not for spirit rallies. Oh- you Freshman are too young to remember. Once upon a time spirit rallies were held in the Community Theater. Now, moving on to the football field, with more mud than grass per square foot. The number of potholes on the track is more than on the streets of Berkeley. On the way back to the courtyard, notice the streams of people hurdling the fences that circle our school. That concludes our tour. That will be $13.94 please. Join us for next weeks tour, which will include more interesting sites, such as the seismically unsafe cafeteria and the principal's office, a place we all hope we never have to see after the tour.

"THE FRESHMAN"

A DOCUMENTARY

A Day in the Life of a Freshman (Joe Average)

7:12-7:42 Joe Average waits half an hour for a discontinued A.C. Transit line before jogging to school. Joe, in his normal rush before school, fails to notice the caked toothpaste on the edge of his mouth (in fifth period, his best friend tips him off).

8:02 Joe is late to class because his books were stuck in his locker.

9:15 Joe is late to class again because he is stuck inside his locker.

Lunchtime: A bunch of freshman (Joe included) huddle during lunch dodging incoming eggs, marshmallows, and other flying food substances.

11:57-12:45 Joe tries to find his 5th period class in D403 (which his brother's friend told him is just around the corner) with Teacher Z. Unfortunately, Joe could not find his class or his teacher. (He spends the entire 5th period looking - and eventually winds up at the Good Food Cafe and becomes a permanent student-staff member.)

12:59 Since freshman self-scheduling has been terminated by the administration, Joe has to take an interesting P.E. class, Novice Nude Co-ed Underwater Basket Weaving. Joe, a clueless freshman, flunks his first basket.

1:42 Joe doodles "Class of 96" on his desk in a mindless study hall with exactly 4% of students attending. His teacher catches him and hands him a bottle of Windex., and he spends the next 61 minutes cleaning many desks.

2:53 Unaware and naive, Joe absentmindedly puts his hand under the last desk he cleaned desk, discovering a colony of assorted gum stuck to the underside of the desk and now stuck to Joe.

★★★★ As we walk through the graffiti filled, crowded, smelly, and sometimes on-fire hallways we are in utter awe of how the school is held together. How is done, you ask? Through treacherous hours of doing surveys, interviews and going behind the scenes at Berkeley High, the answer is now clear... After all, where would you be without that underpathetic soul who the test on a curve, ask you, just where without those ing, essay-reading, ries-of-their-youth-they-were-during-people. Who are they, a minute, my friend, you need extra help, not, they're there. Have you guessed who it is? For those of you who haven't, we'll take the liberty of telling you. We have composed a short spellout for you to tell you who they are.

Friendly, helpful, caring-just a few words that come to mind when you think of these people.

Always available for extra help or even a shoulder to cry on.

Curiously enough, they never get the recognition they deserve.

Ultimately, we hope they live long and prosper, not only in life, but in our minds.

Little do we know just how special they are and we hope...

This section will be able to show all of

You just how wonderful they are....

PARENTHOOD

A HOME AWAY FROM HOME.

The Berkeley High families...What can you say about families that hasn't already been said? How about the fact that they provide solace for distraught and disenchanted freshmen. They put school in a different perspective...or maybe it's all a plot to have talent shows in the courtyard at lunch. But seriously folks...They're whimsical, they're wacky, they're all around great mentors! Students can now walk down the halls with their heads held high knowing that they have not only a counselor and a clerical assistant but one, yes one, vice principal behind them. And they ARE your pals. Few of you know the logistics of these quote unquote families so we will provide that information for you. There are seven families!: Fox, Gossett Family, Burgamy, Calvert Family, Hudson, Dean Family, Tryon, Sanders Family, Wallace, Tanner Family, Lakritz, Kaneko Family, and the Penney, Rosenbaum Family. The families were developed at the end of last year by principal Jim Henderson in hopes of making the school more unified and personal to the students. The families are most beneficial to those who find it easy to fall into the cracks of such a large system. Ms. Lakritz said, of the Families, "They provide a place for students to share their triumphs and failures." And has this plan extraordinaire worked? We asked for some student input and the general response was good. Says Masoud "da man" Saberi, "I feel like I can leave my family at home and rejoice in the warmth and compassion of the embraceful bosom of my nurturing family here at Berkeley High." What else do the families do? We could go on but to get a first hand account of what your family can do for you, pay a visit to your friendly counselor located in the first floor of the B-building, the old gym, the second floor of the H-building, or the bungalow behind the G-building. They thank you for your support.

WORD PROBLEMS

Two Cars, one red and one blue, are traveling at identical speeds across the country on Route 66. The red car is a LXZ 400, and the blue car is a SAAB 2000. If the red car stops 5 times every 2 hours and the blue car stops only once for 73 minutes, who will get to Idaho faster knowing of course, that Idaho is 3000 miles North of the Mexican border?

Yes.

"TRIP THIS COOL CAT"

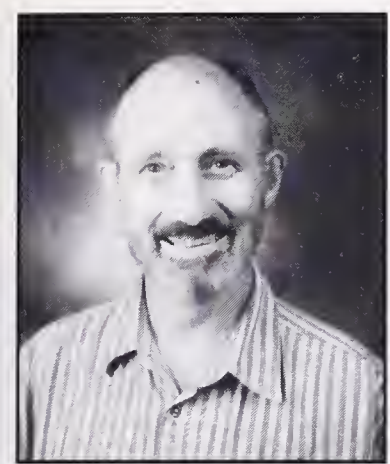

Berkeley High greets a new, enthusiastic teacher

Everyone say hello to Mr. Davis- he's our new American Government teacher at Berkeley High. Davis runs an innovative and refreshing classroom. Even though both his parents are teachers and it runs in the family, he never imagined going into teaching himself. It's easy to see his creativity and energy in all aspects of life. In his free time, Davis is a busy guy. He cooks, watches football, raps, works out, draws, kicks it with his "queen," and for the past five years he's been growing the "the locks." In college he studied political science, black studies, and religion at Oberlin and Cal. But once he began teaching he says, "That's when I knew I wanted to do that for awhile." Davis is respected and well liked by his students. He tries to make his classes fun like the way he wanted to be taught. He believes, "People only do well when they like what they're learning." One student of Davis says, "I really like his teaching style. It's way different than any other teacher I've had. And I like his hair too!" Despite the fact that Davis is one of the best teachers at Berkeley High, he was almost transferred to the P.E. department. Davis was hired to replace Mr. Conning, after he left. When Conning first left, his position was promised to a different Government teacher, Mr. Deutsch. An overwhelming amount of parents and students requested Davis and the job was given to him instead. Because he didn't have the proper credentials, he was given "emergency credentials" by the School Board. In the beginning of December, Davis was told that his emergency credentials had expired, and Deutsch would take over. Again parents and students demanded Davis be kept on, and again they weren't disappointed. An agreement was reached, so that both Davis and Deutsch teach the Government classes.

She says and I quote, "I feel lucky that I'm doing yearbook because my staff is great." And their grate tipist to. (g, thanks Molleeeeeee! She is the kind of teacher a student can relate to on a person to person level. Jason Brunswick sums it all up by saying; "What a wonderful, vibrant, energetic, fun, loving New Yorker! What else can a guy ask for?"

This vibrant teacher is always willing to go that extra mile for her staff on yearbook. She's very generous with her time and input. She is even willing to give her help on stuff outside of yearbook. Because she is an English teacher and has a background in theatre, she has lots of experience in a wide variety of things. This not only makes her a real help when someone is stuck on an essay, but it leads to very interesting conversation, if you should ever take the time to sit and talk with her. All in all, she has made quite an impression on us, an impression that will last long after we have all gone our seperate ways.

HER NAME IS MOLLY GERSTEIN!... And it's a pleasure to know her.

Last year we said goodbye to yearbook advisor Nancy Ross who left for Spain and started off this year with a wonderful addition to the growing staff at BHS. She grew up in New York where she spent her youth reading, writing music and acting in plays. While at Indiana University she wrote and directed musicals for young children and teenagers. She then attended graduate school at the Teacher's College of Columbia University. While receiving her masters, she became a student teacher in Spanish Harlem, and shortly after she came to Berkeley.

She says this about BHS students, "It's really easy to work with kids that care. They make me want

DANCES WITH PANS

Meet a master of the culinary arts...

Two years ago, Berkeley High was introduced to English teacher Beau Valtz. Mr. Valtz, who grew up in Montana and Massachussets, didn't always have teaching English in mind. In fact he didn't even always have teaching itself in mind. It wasn't until he went to Reed college in Oregon, and began tutoring Calculus that he got seriously interested in teaching, and changed his major from physics and religion to English. He said he couldn't concetrate long enough to pursue a career in teaching math. His teaching career started off at a private school in Savannah, Georgia. After that he moved to the Bay Area specifically to teach at Berkeley High. Why, you ask? He was told that Berkeley High is "the most desirable place at which to teach." When asked if he found the above statement to be true, he simply shrugged his weary shoulders (from a hard day teaching and all) and said, "(There's really) no basis for comparison." A student remarks about Mr. Valtz's teaching: "He doesn't want to know how much you can write in one weekend, he wants to know what you think." Mr. Valtz agrees that he encourages students to create their own ideas, but he adds that he's "a stickler for rigor." Besides being a good teacher, students can relate to him on a personal level. "He's a really cool guy and I like his personality," says Becca Jay. Since we are at a loss for an intellectually stimulating sentence to whisk you from his teaching career to his personal interests, we'll get right to the point. If, on a whim, you decide to give Mr. Valtz a visit at home, you might want to look in the kitchen first. For Mr. Valtz simply loves to cook. He says, "Good food is a good way to get good people to talk good." He has good grammar too, as you might have concluded. If you get a chance, sign up for a class with Mr. Valtz. You won't regret it. Ant zee French would like to say zat Monsiuer Valtz's cooking is "c'est manifique! Bon appetit!"

In the tradition of the Oscars, KBHS presents the first annual Jimmies Awards, so named after our infamous Principal Jim Henderson. The awards attempt to capture the greatest thrills and spills of the '92-'93 year at BHS. The lucky winners are chosen by a scrutinous, all-star pannel of judges. Some of the Hollywood greats asked to sit on the panel include: Bill S. Preston Esq., Robin "Hood" of Locksley, Ferris Bueller, Luke Skywalker, and Flipper. Unfortunately, for reasons unknown, Clark Kent was unable to make it tonight, but millionaire Bruce Wayne has agreed to sit in on the panel for him. Throughout the evening, you may notice the black arm bands worn by many of those paticipating in the ceremonies. These bands are worn in memory of the late Superman, whose legendary performances on the silver screen will live on forever in our hearts. But now, let's see who the lucky winners are.

THE BATHROOM REVIEW

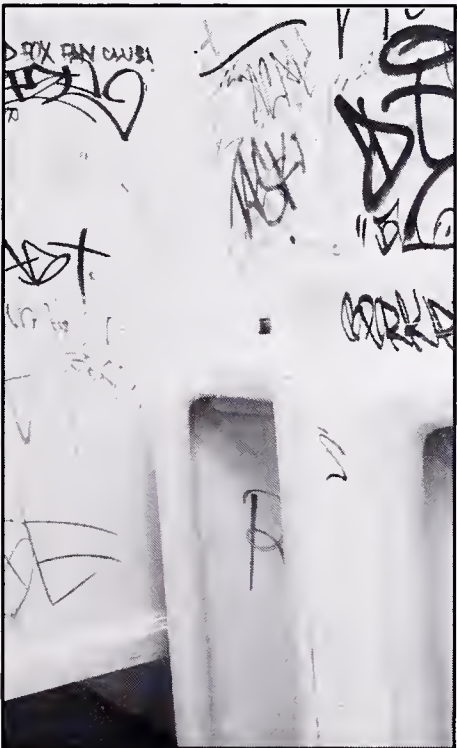

Boys
3rd Floor

This is definitely the most technologically advanced bathroom on the Berkeley High Campus. The latrines have built-in automatic flushers. A definite must see for all nerds.

Girls
3rd Floor
G Building

Most amenities of a domestic bathroom can usually be found here, along with a mirror and paper towels (not pictured). Best tag, "West Side Kensington."

Boys
1st Floor
C Building

This is the home of the infamous "Brad Fox Fanclub", and you may find its sole member here on occasion. The graffiti isn't too bad and you'll find few amenities.

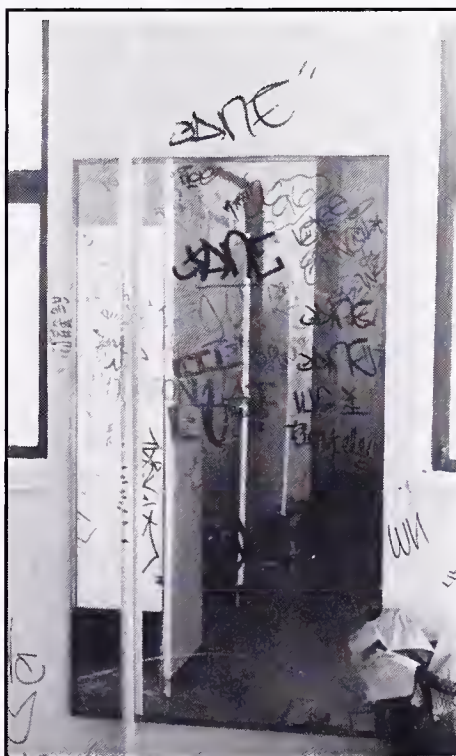

Girls
1st Floor
H Building

Well known as the cleanest and best girls' bathroom in the school. The pink walls tell all, along with a full-length mirror and ten stalls. Thumbs up!

Boys
2nd Floor
G Building

If you're looking for hardcore tagging and paint-splashed walls, or if you just want to get jumped, this is the place to be. Otherwise, use this bathroom at your own risk.

Girls
2nd Floor
G Building

While this bathroom does have a mirror to its credit, it is definitely the smallest. Its pink toilet (not pictured) makes it truly unique. "Kiss me, I'm Mexican...peace out!" also adds to its interest.

S There are a million and a half clubs at Berkeley High School (ok 45). When you think about it, that's an awful lot. Unfortunately, there was no Club Day this year. Eddie Kopelson commented on the club scene here, "Well, its flucking unreal, its a full-on sub-culture here. In a word, wow!" Kate Lydon added, "He's fully right, L Yearbook on tilt," one student was quoted as saying. The point is, at Berkeley High its cool to be in clubs. From the Loggers to the Junior Statesmen, members of clubs enjoy themselves and find being in clubs a generally bonding experience. As we look at the pictures, wonder if the people in them are wearing any underwear, and point in the mirror and say "You're the man, go get 'em Tiger!" we also wonder what the Hell "Olla Podrida" really means, and finally, we say "Farewell..."—Eddie, Mahnaz, Kate.

"The Accidental Tourist"

On February 14th, B.H.S. students Holly Salmon, David Horton, David Sitlani, Jessica Moskovitz, Debra Holbrook, Nick Sinai, Justine, Tejah Lewis, Pritham Khalsa, Caitlin Sparks, and Gwyneth Tripp arrived in Washington D.C., ready to see the nation's capital, Close-Up! That evening these students, who were accompanied by history teacher Yvonne Gittleson, were initiated into the Close-Up Program. They were each stuck with two roommates from some other part of the country and put in workshops of about twenty kids. They travelled by bus to see seminars given

on such topics as the media and Foreign Policy, to see famous monuments and historic buildings. All the while the Berkeley kids really stood out. They dominated every seminar and workshop with questions, challenges, and liberal points of view (except for David Sitlani, who made sure it was known that he was a Republican). They also had the opportunity to hear such celebrity Congressmen as Paul Simon, Ted Kennedy, and Dick Gephardt speak in Congress. Despite the cold weather this group had a fabulous time meeting new people, discussing their own ideas, and seeing Washington D.C. up close.

"Night On Earth"

Youth Earth Ambassadors, was originally formed to attend the preparatory committee meeting for the Earth Summit, held last June. In 1992 it helped inform students about the different issues regarding environmental and social justice. The group initially travelled by train to New York for a ten day trip, which included seminars on the train, sleeping closely together in tight quarters, telling stories late at night, but particularly, learning about ourselves, our different cultures and backgrounds, and our world. At the U.N. they witnessed the creation of the historical document known as the Earth Charter which proposed many solutions for moving towards a sustainable society. When the participants returned, they picked up other interesting people who began to work on community service projects. The Youth Earth Ambassadors include Ihsana Lowther, Yolanda Allen, Lisa von Blankensee, Alex Moulton, Sierra Brode, Julian Liu, Sylvaine Wong, Jonathan Davis, Aisha Wright, and Tanya Rosen. The spirit of the Youth Earth Ambassadors lives on in the individuals and the work of the Community Service and Seminar class.

"Roots"

"A people without a history is like a tree without roots." - Mr. Richard Navies

The words and memory of Richard Navies still ring true for Berkely High School's African Student Organization. Striving to educate and enrich our community has been a goal that has been realized by the African Student Organization for over twenty years. Activities such as Richard Navies' Back to Black week-long assembly celebrating Kwanzaa, an African Student Organization peer counseling and a study group offered to the Berkely High School student body, are all organized and created by the ASO. During Back to Black Week, guest speakers were rounded up from all over Berkeley to share poetry, music, powerful speeches, and dancing demonstrating cultural diversity and pride. Making the same powerful statement as last year, the once traditional Black History Month Assembly did not take place this year to stress the fact that Black History should be celebrated every day, not simply one day. The ASO is also responsible for organizing a separate graduation for African American Students which celebrates the uniqueness of and pride in their culture. The club is under the advisory of Mr. Robert McKnight, who is the latest inspiration in Berkeley High School's African Studies Department. Mr. McKnight was unavailable for comment at the time of this article's printing. We would have liked to have known what his take on the African Student Organization is. We are sure it would have been a positive one.

The goal of the Asian Student Union has always been to promote Asian culture and awareness and to give Asian students a voice at Berkeley High.

This year, the ASU continued to follow its motto of "Unity and Diversity." Its membership rose drastically, and even better, "the members this year have been very enthusiastic," according to ASU President Arvin Chan. The club was very active, staging a Day of Remembrance to commemorate Japanese-Americans interned during World War II, and of course, the annual Bowl-a-Thon fundraiser. The Bowl-a-Thon raised money for the East Bay Asian Youth Center scholarship fund, which helps disadvantaged Asian youths attend college. Berkeley High's ASU has a long term relationship with EBAYC; many members volunteer and tutor there.

This year, the ASU re-dedicated itself to serving the community. The club's new projects included volunteering at a senior citizen's lunch in Oakland Chinatown. At school, the ASU worked to bring Asian language courses to Berkeley High. Member Jenny Lau said, "ASU gives a sense of community to the diverse Asian population at Berkeley High. It is also a voice for Asian power in Berkeley!"

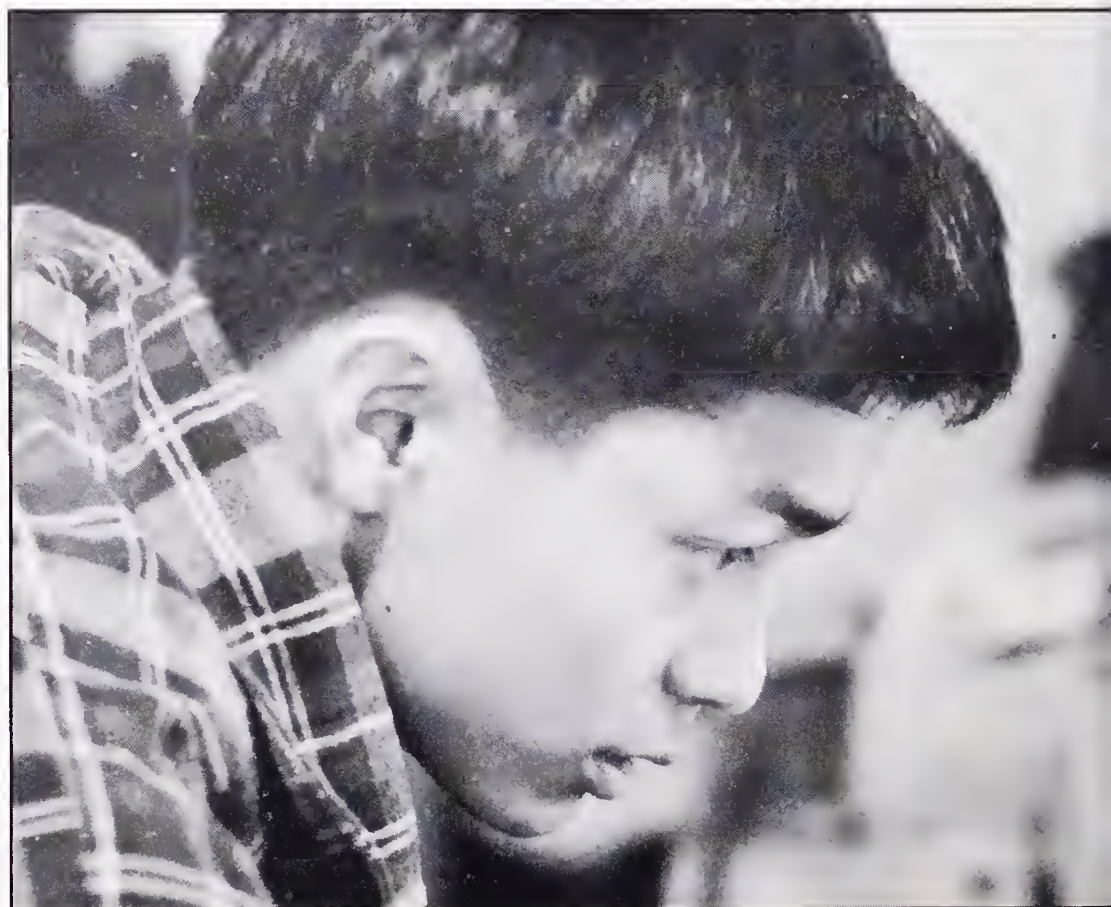

ASU is more than just philanthropy, however. There was also the annual Asian Student Union Ski Trip to the Lake Tahoe region, and an excursion across the Bay to watch the Chinese New Year parade in Chinatown.

The B. Pong Club was founded by President Jon "I've only had three...so far" Harris. For those of you who do not know what B. Pong is, it is a social, highly competitive ping-pong game with a twist (of the tap). The 1992-93 singles champion was Chris "I'm not Jon" Unno. The #1 doubles duo was Wyeth "Never keyed, even after twenty-four" Pierce (no partner needed). The sponsors and patron saints of the club are Al Bundy and Norm Petersen. The B. Pong daily fee: $2.98 (twelve-pack of Weidemann's), daily fee (for Wyeth): $8.94 (thirty-six pack of Weidemann's). The players, nearly all seniors, were exhausted by the tough second semester B. Pong schedule, but they still managed to wake up for fourth period pottery.

The Bike Club sorely felt the loss of its founder and ex-President David Benedetto, but it rolled with the punches and landed on its feet. This year, it was led by "King" Arthur Yee and vice-President Jason "the Argonaut" Halaby. The club broke out with new reflective T-shirts, a guiding credo ("Hi Hell"), and new, rigorous training system. The riders this year conquered the hills of Tilden, Redwood, Wildcat Canyon, Briones, Skyline, and Chabot Parks. The club specializes in mountain rides and non-mountain rides. This year, it pioneered a free bicycle repair program for Berkeley High students. It also held a Mammoth Cycling Challenge up Marin Avenue. CHEERS

"Buffy the Vampire Slayer"

This year the Cheerleaders and Pommers were consolidated into one large bundle of spirit. At the beginning of fall Advisor Thelette Bennett left, which made things a little hectic, but when Antwi Akom replaced her, everything began to fall into place. The new incarnation of the Cheerleaders was on its way to being F-A-N-T-A-S-T-I-C! Under the direction of BerNadette Best, a graduate student at the University of California at Berkeley, the squad got rave reviews at games. The four cheerleading captains, Michelle Ruffen, Rebecca Meyers, Tenia Howard, and Nakia Hughes worked wonderfully together and helped unify the squad as a unit. Sure, the Cheerleaders had a few disagreements but in the long run they brought the girls closer as they coped with their problems together. For some, it was a growing experience, "Cheerleading helped me become more bubbly and outgoing!" said Rebecca Meyers. Cheerleading is a great activity, you get to meet people from other schools and make good friends, so don't miss your chance to try out next year.

"Gee, I'd like to see Ms. L. in a short Cheerleading skirt!" said Al Calderone.

"Gimme a soul clap!"

"Revenge of the Nerds"

The California Scholarship Federation is a club that thinks its composed of the academically best and brightest at Berkeley High. But its not. Good grades don't indicate a high intelligence level, or even academic brilliance. All they indicate is easy classes and easy teachers. CSF is just a big coagulation of the students most obsessed with grades, homework, tests, and school. Since its so full of talent, CSF should be able to do lots of good deeds for the school and community, right? Well, theoretically. But unfortunately, a debilitating side effect of belonging to the ranks of the most brilliant is that one is left with almost no spare time, because school is really a 24-7 job, as CSF members know. Members are notorious for complaining that the club holds too many meetings, (cutting out of study time) even though there are only one or two a year. Members get cranky when they have to break up their study marathons. This year, presidents Robin Alper and Vasey McClory had to resort to threats in order to get people to attend meetings. Over the course of the year they learned that just mentioning the word "college" in connection with "meeting" and "mandatory" got all the club's members stampeding to the third floor of the C-Building.

Non-members Kate Lydon and Jill Vizassaid with dismay in their voices, "Hey, wait, we used to be in CSF...what happened?" Lifetime member Jenny Gibney replied, "Sorry guys, its only for the best and brightest...try next year, oops, you're seniors."

To natives and students of this complicated language it is Deutsch. To the rest of us, its simply German. Generally, it brings to mind "My name is Dietr," images of lederhosen and Mercedes-Benzes. The Berkeley High German Club of the 1992-93 traveled to Germany to snag remains of the Berlin Wall to sell on Telegraph to raise money for strudel luncheons. While in Germany, members felt at home only after changing their names to Hilga, Inga, Lars and Hans, and after spending extended periods of time at wild and wooly biergartens. They held races on the Autobahn, discoed to the tunes of "Thriller" in Berlin, and learned how to stew delectable sauerkraut to go on top of their weinerschnitzels. It was just started this year, and is off to a rip-roaring start. Activities so far have included field trips to San Francisco, attempts at full-fledged conversations in Espanol, and a few sessions of listening to Spanish music. The club would like to have fun with the Spanish-speaking culture and become involved with the local Latino community. Its a club for anyone interested in the Spanish culture or language. "Jungle Fever"

This club started last year with the name "Half and Half Club." However, not everyone in the organization is purely half one race and half another. (Plus, who wants a carton of milk-product as their club mascot?)

The new and improved name is, as the title says, the Interracial Student Union. It was founded by Nikki Marsh and Vasey McClory last year, who saw a need among the many ethnic club for one specifically for people of more than one race. So what does this club do? Its members engage in profound discussions about family situations and some of the other unique issues people have to deal with as multi-racial individuals. For example, members talked about how to deal with people who categorize them as one race or the other, not as mixtures. At one meeting, they watched a video about people of mixed heritage.

This year the club planned on visiting a University of California Berkeley class on mixed races, and getting together with Interracial-Pride, a multi-racial organization. Many of the members like being a blend of races because it makes them feel more individual, and liked the social aspect of the club; getting to know other people who also came from mixed-race households.

THE 1993

The tiny closet of a room behind the photo lab at the end of a long G-Building Hall is where about fifty of the hardest working Berkeley High students linger during the long eighth period afternoons.

Everyone puts in their share of time and energy to help create the sensation of the year, no, not the slim-line, bi-weekly Jacket, but the almost-400 pages filled with photos, articles, captions, and art that make up the award-winning annual yearbook. Under the excellent leadership of the editors, photographers, and the professional business staff, as you can see, this year's edition is another great success. Aside from the delightful eighth period meetings, this year photographer Liz Budnitz arranged a ski trip to Tahoe. The scarce crew of seven that went on the ski trip, woke up before God (that'd be 4:00AM) then ventured through blizzarding conditions to fulfill Lizzie's dream. All in all, yearbook is a pretty harrowing experience, but also ends up being a lot of fun. On behalf of the entire staff: Thank you to all the rude, crude and totally lewd students at BHS who made tedious hours in our little closet, the best of the year. We will always remember the fluckin idiots, Luke's pornos, midnight frozen yogurts, hoogie interludes, gossip, free 1-900 phone calls, the banana peels between the walls, "wait, Scott who?" (from J. Gib our main gossip), check-ups by Hassett, "How to handle difficult people," and our main men at Harrell. And yes, KIOI's Susan Lee Taylor was right we are the "literary legends of the future."

BERKELEY

Having braved long hours, toxic fumes, and deaf advisors, the Berkeley High Jacket has once again come through with another year's worth of newspapers. Under the fearless direction of senioritis-afflicted Editors-in-Chief Dania Bourkoff and Josh Sachs-Weintraub, the Jacket saw the return of color upon their pages and managed to put out some issues. However, under the heavy hand of advisor Terry "Duran" Doran, the staff never stayed past 6:15 (A.M.). In the tradition of Managing Editors, Lindsay Weil made like Emma Kahn and didn't show. The News department, headed by Arvin Chan and assisted by Sylvaine Wong, broke the record for articles turned in on the day of publication. However, nothing compares to the "excellence" of Sports Editors Jon "I quit again" Seaton and

Dave "where did that page go" Horton. The features section had its first ever male editor, Josh Greenblatt, who spent more time talking about BJ's than laying out his pages, much to the dismay of co-editor Heather "I need to finish my page N.O.W." Phillips. Amit "from the right and a day late" Chibber managed to scrape together some only-semi-offensive Editorial pages this year along with Entertainment pages by Itamar "my page is a filler" Moses. The photo department, headed by Editor Kristen Loken and Jon Ferrey, continued its tradition of unfocused pictures. Thanks goes to the business staff for bringing in a few thousand dollars and some disgusting pizza. Computer specialist Demian Warner summed up the year by yelling "Food run!"

"Vacation"

Twenty of Berkeley High's most adventurous students ventured out on the first annual BHS Mexico Exchange last April, led by Spanish teacher Mary Patterson and former BHS teacher Nancy Ross.

The group lived with other students in Calkini Campeche, Mexico. They braved the Ancient Mayan Ruins, sunbathed on the beach and fished all around the Yucatan, all the while experiencing a new culture. They continued on to Playa Reel Carmen, where they spent the weekend Chillin' at the Playa and El Pajaro-Azul.

Two months later, in June, the Mexican students came to Berkeley, and experienced several favorite Bay Area tourist attractions including the Golden Gate Bridge.

Last year's participants were: Zuleyka Heredia, Daniel Balazs, Katie Vizas, Roy Yang, Reggie Santa Cruz,

Akua Brown, Robbie Kariakin, Anya Fuchs, Sabine Hurley, Misti Hassan, Renato Cazares, Tomas Ritter, Jessica Polsky, Nikki

Maroh, Jed Gildersleeve, Micah Lienden and Jeremy Cooper. In addition, Razili Datta, Nydia Agazalli helped the gringos host the Mexicans when they came to Berkeley.

This year, another group will go with Ms Patterson to Mexico in April.

"The Breakfast Club"

Together for the purpose of enjoying food, what could be better? The Cooking and Eating Club gathers weekly to feed (no pun intended) upon a potluck consisting of a wide variety of dishes prepared by its members. There are of course standards for acceptable food items. As often as possible, Club activities take place outside of school as well, the eating part especially. The club allows things such as pigging out, grazing, devouring, overeating, undereating (leaves more food for other members), vegetarianism, carnivorousism, and once in a while, cannibalism. Most of all, members learn that must be prepared to face new challenges armed with forks, spoons, and knives.

CROQUET

"Oh...oh...Ah, that's comfy!"

"Whoa, nice form!"

"When can we get naked again?"

"Heathers"

The croquet team graced the greens this year with several skilled members. Playing Provo and other classy locales on weekends, the squad scored well. No one was hurt in the Golden Gate Tourney, though a dog almost got whacked while using the fields as a restroom. Lena, the best novice, won some rounds. Johannah, musclemwoman, had fun showing off her studly biceps but didn't score well because croquet involves precision, not strength. "Croquet is fun!" said Monique. They will tour colleges soon, choosing campuses based on their croquet courses. They will hit all the Ivies, and then go to Oxford, where they will don the white croquet garb of the natives. The team has high hopes, ... and great legs! Keep your wickets down and keep whacking for the stars.

"Stand and Deliver"

La Raza Unida was formed in an effort to address the needs of the Chicano/Latino/Mexicano student population at Berkeley High School. It meets every week on Mondays at lunch in C-218.

One of its main goals this year was to create a Chicano/Latino/Mexicano department as well as to express and voice the need for more Chicano/Latino/Mexicano faculty members at Berkeley High. Its members sponsored events that educated other students about the Chicano/Latino/Mexicano cultures and wrote a bi-weekly column in the Berkeley High School Jacket about issues of concern to the Chicano/Latino/Mexicano population.

La Raza Unida, in addition, produced the annual Cinco de Mayo assembly. Cinco de Mayo celebrates the victory of Mexican forces over the invading French army. This year's assembly was superb; a delightful extravaganza of Chicano/Latino/Mexicano culture for all present to remember fondly.

Many people are confused about the meaning of La Raza Unida. A direct interpretation is "the united race", however to the Chicano/Latino/Mexicano student population at Berkeley High School, as well as to all Chicanos, Latinos, and Mexicanos, it is a source of immense pride. It is only through the efforts of clubs and organizations like La Raza Unida that an understanding of Chicano/Latino/Mexicano culture can be obtained and thus we all thank the La Raza Unida.

"Citizen Kane"

A short winded roar. Slashing, tearing, slicing through the brush, bearing only a little cargo of paint-brushes, and a few eggs. In the birdcage. A scrambled place. In other words. a jungle. In the Great American Southwest there are rolling dunes made of solid concrete. We're not there yet. The eggs, the birdcage, whispering low harmonics that resonate, tremble in the ears of dogs (and other lonely domestic types). Our weary traveller stops to carve a smattering of verse into the bank of a hundred trees. "WT heart AB" it says. We tourists love America the Beautiful. Wistful Tailor loves Another Boy. More to that than you know. A fried place. A wet fire. Traveller collects his laurels and re-seizes the trail. The scent in the haze, epiphany waiting, the molten fleece hanging on a limb. Thrusting through the crags and hills, stalking the poor prey of the night. Heeeeeeeeeere child. Come over. a mountain on dawn's cusp whispers. Traveller responds gratefully. The eggs start to whistle. A birdcage. An over-easy place. Berkeley High's literary magazine prints student poetry, art, short fiction, and photography twice yearly. You thought maybe the stuff just fell out of the sky?

This club came into being about three years ago, following a fight which broke out between a group of Asian and Mexican students. One of the participants, who was terrified of violence decided to organize a club, where people can learn to tolerate each other and share their cultures. People from Asia, Africa, Europe and Southern and Central America are members in the club. The IAC regularly participates in school assemblies and hears guest speakers. The club is open to everyone, not only foreign students. Please, come by, check this out, and enjoy yourself!!!

Peer counseling provides the opportunities for students to improve interpersonal skills, learn ways to facilitate communication, provide mutual support and share information with other students. The Peer Counseling program enhances the effectiveness of the counseling program by expanding guidance services. A student may enroll in one peer counseling course in one semester and may earn up to 20 credits toward graduation. The program is unfortunately underused at Berkeley High, however it is definitely a valuable resource. One student speaking of the peer counselors said, "they make the crying laugh and the sad smile." Another student said, "it feels so good to be counseled by a peer. . . they helped me get a grip on all my problems."

"South Pacific"

Over Thanksgiving vacation a group of Berkeley High School students disappeared into the Santa Cruz mountains. They emerged four days later, exhausted and changed individuals. Why, you ask? The Pacific Regional High School Conference. This conference, sponsored by the Young Men's Christian Association, attracts over four hundred students from five states and hundreds of different backgrounds. This year's theme, "Just Imagine and Believe," facilitated discussion on students' futures. Discussions were held in co-ed living groups run by an adult facilitator. This year's Berkeley

High School's delegation was large, with over twenty members. For the first time in the conference's history, the Berkeley delegation was not late and even was the second group to arrive. Veterans found old friends again, usually greeting them with screaming, falling-down-on-the-ground hugs. The bus was comfortable and they did not get stranded on the side of the freeway as some members had feared at the beginning. All in all, it was an excellent trip that was both meaningful and fun. It gave senior Kristen Loken, a participant, a "warm, fuzzy feeling." Enough, plenty said.

Oops, wrong Pool Club.

"The Hustler"

Who are those pool sharks, hustlers and just plain goof-offs? They're members of the BHS Pool Club, a club designed to have as much fun as possible with long sticks, hard balls, and deep pockets. Under new president Thomas Ritter, membership flourished to around twenty students. "I shoot a rack of pool for the pure enjoyment of it," says Thomas. Some members are die-hard pool players and own their own sticks. Others just show up occasionally to play a little nine ball. No matter what the game, or the amount wagered ("We are not hustlers" says Shourya "The Shark" Bass), the thrill and the frustration of pocket billiards keeps the members playing. And the favorite drink of the Pool club, after they clean up on the tables? Why, 8-ball of course.

ARCHERY

"Robin Hood"

There's a new group of Archers at Berkeley High. This Group of Merry Peoples can shoot apples off peoples' heads. "I was juiced to learn how to select the correct timber for different flexibility and control of the bow," commented Orion "Robin Hood" Fulton. Kate "the Archaeologist" Lydon recalled learning how to carve identical replicas of the Mohawk Nation arrowheads. Archery is fun but extremely difficult to master without the proper guidance, without which it would be very difficult to even hit the target. Luckily, the club was led by Rachid Arnick, who, as President, masterminded many of the activities. In summation, "Archery really makes me feel like rescuing Maid Marian," said senior Zachary Gillen.

"The Candidate"

This year the Berkeley High School Junior Statesmen (and women) of America chapter followed a different path than those of previous years. There were no fights, no one was sent home early, and no one was put on probation. What is JSA without those exciting aspects? Pure, saintly fun. Fall state was a blast. Everyone who went came back really excited and enthusiastic about JSA. Berkeley's small but vocal chapter completely dominated the dance floor and showed an overwhelming authority at the debates. This was especially evident in issues regarding the environment and television's hypnotic effects on family values.

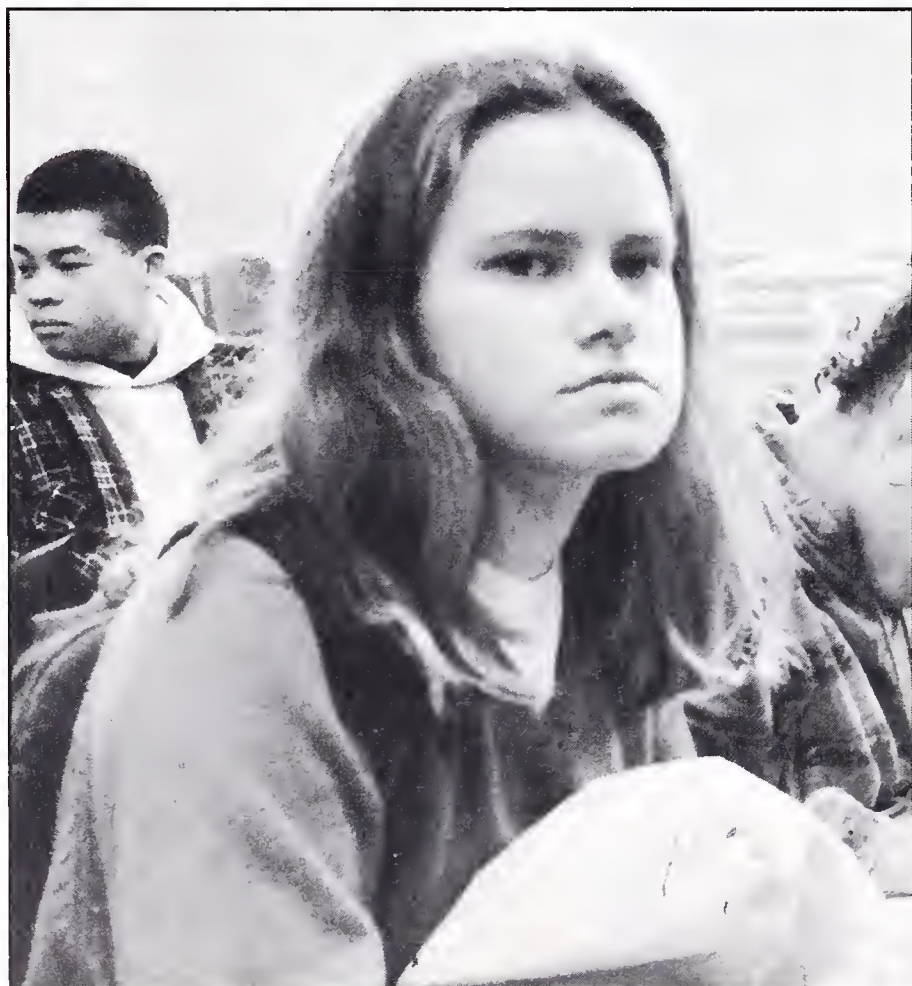

With new, younger members came some refreshingly original ideas. The club got really involved on a regional level. Members learned a lot from one another and as well as from students in other chapters. JSA is all about meeting new people and learning about the political decisions that affect our lives. Everyone who was even remotely involved with Berkeley's chapter knows what kind of stimulation JSA can provide.

JSA attended three overnight conferences; Fall State at the Marriot in Santa Clara, Congress '93, and Spring State at the Motel 6 in Sacramento. The members would like to say a special thanks to Advisor Brad Fox (an all-around great guy), to all the people who helped make the Berkeley chapter the best it could be, and to Akeem, Mario, Josh and James (you gave a lot of us something to talk about).

Scuba is an acronym for Self Contained Underwater Breathing Apparatus. It is also a popular Berkeley High club. This year's Scuba Club was led by Rachid Arnick and Vasey McClory, and was sponsored by science teacher Cherese LeBlanc. Jon Ferrey, Chris Turner, Ian Rose, Alex Thompson, and Jacobus Saperstein were also stalwart members. These lucky folks and others came face to face with lots of marine animals on the club's many excursions to large bodies of water. To senior Vasey McClory, "Scuba diving is an exhilarating experience...once you get into the bulky wetsuit and get used to the sub-zero water." Scuba diving is a great way to befriend the inhabitants of our beloved oceans, seas, lakes, rivers, ponds, and tidepools.

"Aspen Extreme"

The Ski Club's big event this year was a five-day trip to Utah, organized by club President Jason Brunswick. Brave Berkeley High students withstood blizzard like conditions, and an almost-broke-down-six-times bus ride to get to the best skiing in the world. With over one thousand other high school students, the members of this club had an excellent ski adventure. The six core members of the club are Jessica Shera, Arshan Poursohi, Pieter Lagaay, Andre Sequin, Melina Hoyer, and Jason Brunswick. Mahnaz Saberi, who went on her own fabulous ski trip, said, "Cleaning Una Tuna's chunks off the deck made my ski weekend better than any other." The Ski Club went on a few smaller trips to the Lake Tahoe area, but none were as dramatic as the Utah Execution.

BACKPACK

"Raiders of the Lost Ark"

These backpackers all do things that the average person wouldn't ever think of: they get outdoors and enjoy life! If you're not afraid to zinging in gaffles of cold spaghetti then this club's for you. Watch out during full moons—you just might bump into members howling with the coyotes or see them strobe dancing on the picnic table. If you love camp songs, hike with Betsy and Lea. Anne, the mother hiker, loves games with a mosh pot. If hyper is what you crave stick with me (Marcia), I always have extra energy. There are also almost-members, like Abi, who come to all the meetings, but never go on the trips. This club also has serious hikers who just want to relax when the day is over. If you need to get outdoors, this is the group.

WILD

I'd rather be fishing, canoeing, or hiking.

"The Jungle Book"

Granola wasn't the only hot topic at this year's Wilderness Convention, as you'd know if you asked any member of the Wilderness Club. In the heart of the woods, the Berkeley High chapter reigned supreme in the both the "Spotting the Spotted Owl" and the "Wild Mushrooms, Friend or Foe" contests. Mountain Man Ketter is the leader of this fearless club, which consists of hikers, bikers, skiers, packers, rafters, runners, and random nature-lovers (in other words The Wilderness club is a battalion of R.E.I. boots and North Face jackets, Eddie Bauer gloves, and Lands End scarves). Among other things, they survived oral encounters with banana slugs, but they loved every minute of getting down with their fellow funky environmentalists.

"The Good Earth"

One day Suzie walked into class and took out her lunch. She was very happy with her lunch that day- she had a fat, juicy sandwich, a drink, some fruit, and all sorts of goodies. Suzie was hungry. She had not eaten since breakfast and her stomach was starting to growl and feel uncomfortable. She couldn't wait any longer, she pulled out some food and proceeded to eat.

She saw her friends, Bill, Phil, and Jill sitting around her and wondered if they were hungry too. They were all wearing nifty pins so she said, "Hey Bill! Hey Phil! Hey Jill! What's up? I like your pins! Would you like some of my lunch? It is really good and I bet you are hungry too, if you haven't eaten since breakfast."

"You silly Suzie!" They exclaimed in unison. "We're fasting for Oxfam America!"

"Huh?" Susie grunted. She took a bite of her sandwich. Bill, Phil, and Jill explained. They told Susie that the pins they wore were to let people know that they were fasting for a world harvest. Their fast is a symbolic gesture. They were fasting for 24 hours to recognize the fact that all over the world, people go hungry every day and they still go to work and school and function just as everyone else does.

MOCK TRIAL

Here's the church, here's the steeple, open it up and see all the people.

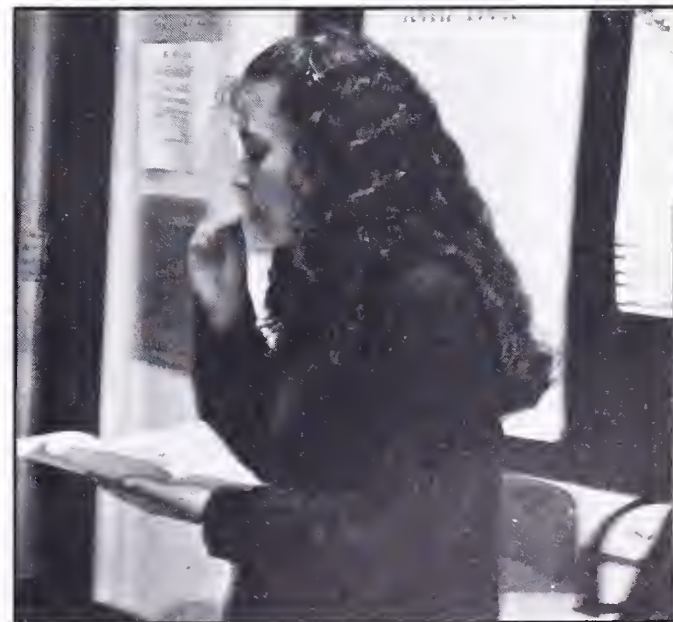

"Presumed Innocent"

In this year's hypothetical case, the defendant is charged with arson. Another count, incitement to riot, is argued in pretrial involving the ideas of free speech and clear and present danger. This year's group included Jessica Moskovitz, Ji-Young Shin, Naomi Wilson, Nona Zicherman, Britt Badgely, Lea Policoff, Eileen Chen, Matt Dunn-Sledjeski, Elizabeth Hoch, Elissa Meites, Cerissa Tanner, Hadara Stanton, Allyndreth Cassidy, Yasmin Garcia, Kijell Holmes, and Julie Spear. The group is headed by Ms. Gittleson, brilliantly leading it to be strong women (and men) through a very tough season. We spend long hours analyzing the case, practicing answering direct and cross-examination questions. Attorney Mr. Roth helps us with his experience and knowledge of the law. Known as the "Demi-Gods" of Mock Trial, by our opponents, we have an undefeated victory record through the challenging county competition; claimed a final victory in the Alameda county finals, and are going on to participate in the Statewide competition in Sacramento for three days. We all acquired a wonderful working knowledge of our judicial system.

*Damn strait food's more important than Mock Trial.

"Good Morning, Vietnam"

V.S.A.

The Vietnamese Student Association, in Vietnamese: Hoi Hoc Sinh Viet Nam, is one of the less publicized but more important clubs at Berkeley High School. In it's first year the club has already grown to over twenty members. The Club's members are Dinh Quoc Thien (president), Ha Thu-Thao (co-vice president), Ly Quoc Hung (co-vice president), Nguyen Thu-Loan (treasurer), Nhan Minh Can (secretary), Dang Minh Phuong, Dang Vu, Dinh Hung Phuong, Du Thao, Ha Thuy Trang, Huynh Quang Tan, Le Xuan Linh, Ly My Ngoc, Nguyen Hong Phuc, Nguyen Kim-Chi, Nguyen Nguyet, Nguyen Thi Thuy Trang, Nham Thanh, Pham Kin-Thu, Tran Bui, Tran Lam, Tran Toan, Truong Duyen, and Truong Viet. The club's functions are to: unite Vietnamese students at Berkeley High for mutual benefit, increase literacy in Vietnamese, provide a forum for learning about background and culture. The activities of the club are: tutoring of fellow Vietnamese students in school subjects and language, community service, hearing guest speakers on topics of interest, and cooperating activities with VSAs in other schools.

KEY CLUB

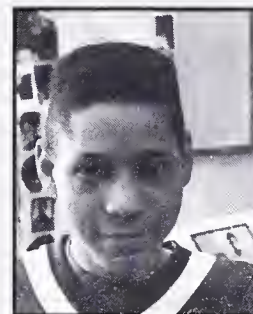

Hello, Key Club.

"We're No Angels"

Over the years the Key Club has been very successful in organizing and executing fun and excitement at every annual Winter Ball as well as raising much needed funds and collecting used toys for needy children. This year's Winter Ball was held at the Berkeley Marina Marriott Hotel, a move from previous years, when the ball was held at His Lordships, also at the Berkeley marina. The dedicated members spent long hours, planning for DJ's, food, and decorations. Okay..... the truth is that the members of the club do only one widely known event for the entire year, (not counting the Chinchilla racing in Tijuana during spring break) but the single task of planning the Winter Ball was excruciatingly pressing on the schedules of the members of the club. The Winter Ball presented them with havoc and mayhem. Never-ending phone calls and the occasional "Keyed" club sessions got them through their first dance at BHS in the usual fashion, a few drunk fools, and a ton of freshmen. Overall, the Club again this year pulled off the impossible, Berkeley High School together, in one room. The success of the Winter Ball and the club's other activities is due to the tremendous support of Ms. Johnson.

"The Untouchables"

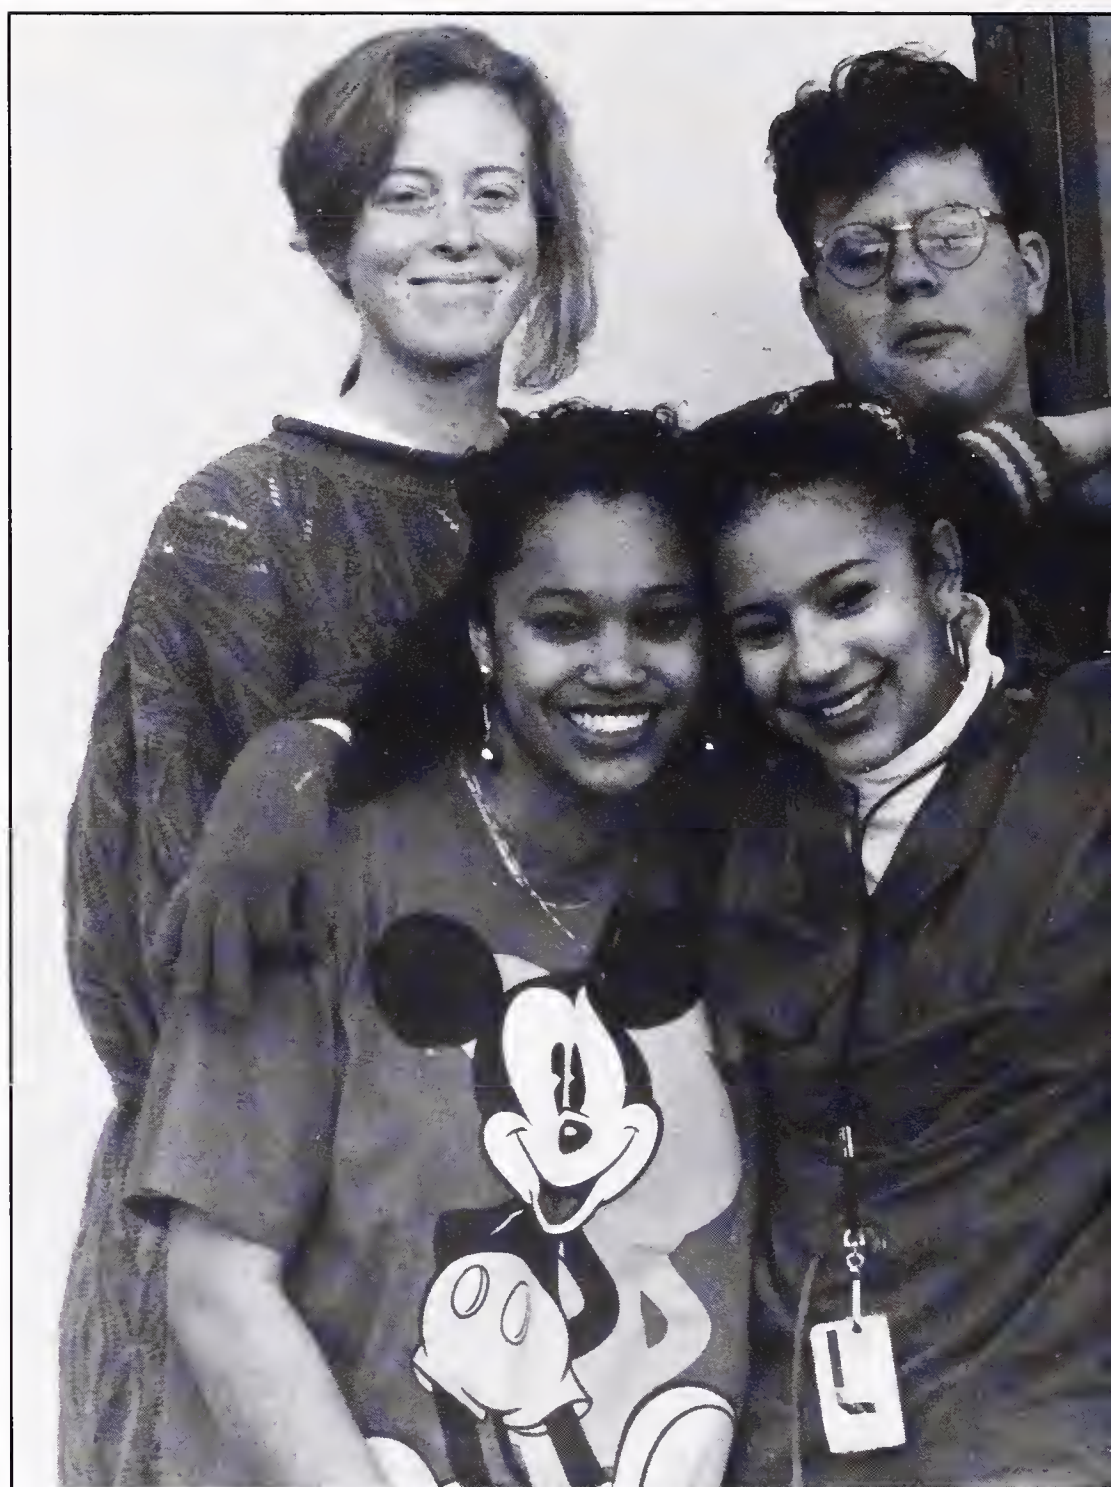

This year the Student Senate got off to a slow start. The absence of long-time Student Activities Director Thelette Bennett did not make things move any faster. But with the strong combination of new Student Activities Director Antwi Akom and the Student Senate, things started to get going. Since Mr. Akom and Senate formed a good relationship, based on mutual respect for each other, it only took a few months to get affairs together. With the help of Student Senators new and old the organization started trying to restructure BHS. The Senators think that they can make some concrete, positive changes that will affect the way students view BHS as a whole. Student Senate is led by President Ajeenah Ali. The Senate has a great deal of hope for the future of BHS.

As for the Student Government... in the words of senior officer Jason Brunswick, "We run, we're elected! Then what?" Well 1993, the first year without Bennett, was a great year because of three key factors: Mr. Akom, the overwhelming student response, and the officers themselves. the Senior class sucks Officers have the biggest task of all the class officers because they deal with everything from the Senior Prom to graduation in June. The other officers look up to Seniors for their incredible leadership skills. This year, Mr. Akom took charge the second he arrived in September and demanded nothing but sheer excellence from his officers—and got it. The Class Officers came through and staged some excellent school-sponsored events this year."

Remember the kid you used to call carrot-top in kindergarten? Well now it's her time to laugh. Red hair has been legally declared the coolest thing since sliced bread. It's a noted fact that everyone wants red hair. Lucille Ball had red hair, so did the Little Mermaid. That red hair is on toilet paper and Under-Roos! And don't forget Little Orphan Annie. If she'd been a brunette Daddy Warbucks wouldn't have adopted her. So everyone, quick, run out and buy some Henna and muddy up that hair, so you too can join the coolest club in town. "Necessary Roughness"

Believe it or not, BHS has another club, rugby. Rugby is a cross between football and soccer. It's not an individual but a team sport; fifteen men work together to win and put the hurt on the other team. The Rugby Club started in 1984 and has evolved into this year's team. Returning player Thon Estes comments, "When you go up against Berkeley, something's going to break and it's not going to be B-town." This year's team is a diverse bunch of players, BHS rugby is an equal opportunity employer. BHS Rugby Club president says, "Rugby does not cost a pretty penny like some sports. All you need for rugby is some cleats, shorts, and a whole lot of heart!" As Roy Yang Says, "Rugby is a great sport, a real team sport, and a whole lot of fun."

"Stand and Deliver"

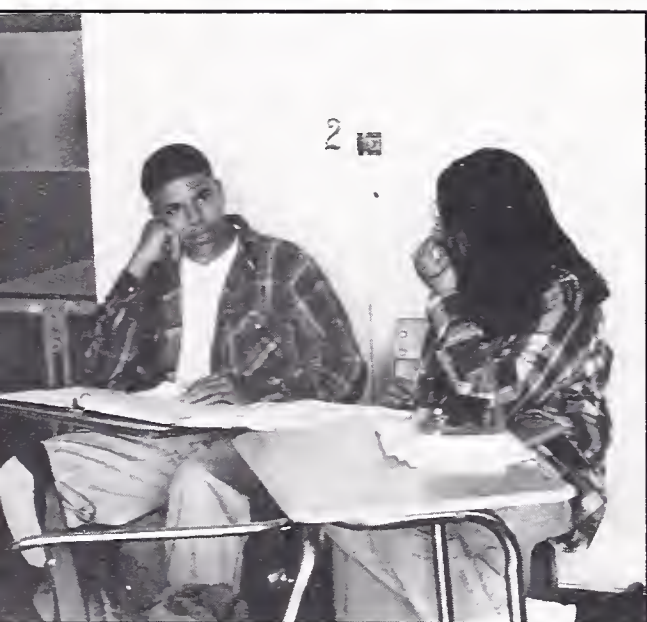

UCO MESA: The acronym stands for University College Opportunity and Math, Engineering, and Science Achievement. The organization was designed to increase the number of minority students in the California University system and other four years schools. UCO MESA strives to achieve this goal by helping its students complete California University and graduation requirements, obtain a desired grade point average, and good Scholastic Aptitude Test and Achievement test scores. The heart of the program is a daily study hall where students receive help on homework and other school work from study groups and tutors. The organization places a lot of emphasis on the importance of group work in college and later in life. UCO MESA's work has had a positive influence on many of Berkeley High Schools minority students. Many members attribute their success at Berkeley High School to this wonderful club. This year's club with over 60 active and non-active members was one of Berkeley High's largest. You can see many of them leaving the school as late as 4:45 after getting or helping tutor fellow students. This club has always been a Berkeley High favorite so come and be a part of it.

UJAMMA

"Stop the Press"

The UJAMMA is the African-American student published newspaper at Berkeley High. The African American studies department is responsible for the distribution of the UJAMMA, which means "collective responsibility": in the Swahili language, Students who are on the UJAMMA staff enroll in the African American Journalism class which is offered by the African American Studies Department.

The UJAMMA's purpose is to inform the student body at Berkeley High of what occurs in the Black community on a world-wide scale, a nation wide scale, and most importantly on a school-wide scale.

The publishers of the UJAMMA take pride in their work. In the past the UJAMMA has been labled by many students as controversial. The students on UJAMMA staff state that their work on the UJAMMA is for anyone who wishes to read it. One student was quoted as saying

"its a great publication". The UJAMMA is a popular newspaper at Berkeley High and we all thank the staff in the African American Studies Department for the production of a newspaper which covers the opinions and stories of the black population at Berkeley High.

"Thelma and Louise"

Two years ago, B.H.S. began a club version of N.O.W., the National Organization for Women. Today it has more than forty students. In many classrooms women's issues, contributions and points of view are not sufficiently represented. In the halls, female students are constantly being harrassed and degraded because of their sex. The club helps members gain a sense of identity by identifying with the foremothers-the mothers and grandmothers who sacrificed so that our generation of women would be treated with more respect and equality. Adequate birth control and reproductive information is essential to the club, as well as counseling for things such as abuse, rape, pregnancy, etc. The main purpose of the club is to educate both members and non-members. Knowledge is the most important weapon in the continuing fight for equality. Just as importantly, the club is working to teach others in our school and community to recognize and understand these issues, and their own role in solving them. This year, projects included providing free self-defense classes for students and teachers, and working on a sexual harassment task force to deal with incidents of sexual harassment at BHS. It also organized an International Womens's Day seminar.

WONDER

How'd she get that little flower to stick to her head?

"1492"

Huh? Whaa? 500 years of resistance? We're a new club on the rise at Berkeley High trying to open people's eyes to the American History that we never learn. 1992 marked 500 years since the coming of Columbus. We're working to dispell the myth that Columbus brought "civilization" and "culture" to the Americas when in reality he decimated the culture and civilizations that were already here. The other part of our name is "resistance" - we celebrate the rich cultures that once flourished here - we strive to keep their memories alive. The indigenous cultures are (and have always been) an important part of America. This club celebrates not only the indigenous cultures but also the cultures and peoples that were brought here forcefully or immigrated here in hopes of a better life. We have all suffered and fought the racism of this society. Our club hopes to unite all peoples in remembering the struggles of the past and at the same time fighting for a better future. Our activities included the production of an assembly and the creation of a mural that can be seen in the G building. We are always looking for new members so if you're interested please join us next year (when we rechristen our club as the 501 years club).

"All the President's Men"

Kids for Clinton gave Berkeley students a chance to enjoy politics by learning about campaigning on a first-hand basis. It was started by senior Jonah Hendrickson last summer, and its intention was to unite students to help register and educate voters and raise money for the Clinton-Gore campaign. When the club began in the summer it consisted of fifteen seniors; by the time the election rolled around there were well over 100 members. Between July and November, Kids for Clinton registered well over one thousand voters and raised over $1,100 by selling Kids for Clinton T-shirts. Kids for Clinton also participated in a number of publicity events, including an Al Gore rally, its own rally, a march for children in Oakland, a half-hour documentary for Bay Cable TV. Its members helped organize a fundraising luncheon in Berkeley that earned over $5,000 for the United Democratic Campaign. Kids for Clinton worked with several other organizations, such as the United Democratic Campaign, the U.C. Berkeley Clinton operation, the San Francisco Clinton Campaign, and even a Senior Citizens coalition for Clinton. The students involved with Kids for Clinton had a great time together and learned that they really could make a difference!

The Junior Loggers Club is a group with a somewhat environmentalist approach, like the Earth First movement, who like to hang out in desolate, wild places, away from the orderly and oppressive atmosphere of Park rangerettes and other dislikable aspects of civilization. Mostly the club drives to the end of forgotten logging trails, wanders about clearcuts, and third-growth forests, frightening the wildlife and perplexing waitresses at rural truck stops. Once a year, the club camps at an oceanfront state Park in Fort Bragg and dines at a gourmet restaurant. The rest of the year outings consist of sleeping in the mud and eating canned stew around smudgy campfires. It isn't a bad existence, but is it life? Who knows? You tell us, Mr. Panasenko.

SPORTS

Berkeley High's student-athletes work hard and play hard. As Yearbook Photo Editor Jo Saltmarsh put it, "Technically speaking, the logistics of a physically stimulating activity work to build both the body and the mind." Over one third of the student body participates in inter-scholastic athletics. Playing on a team gives students an opportunity to learn valuable skills such as team work

Entering the 1992 school year, the Berkeley High football team had very high hopes for a successful season. After all, this was a team that had been mostly juniors the season before, and had posted the best mark in years. The majority of that team was returning. The losses of star running back Khalid Shabazz and quarterback Ayuub Rahmann were minimal. They were easily replaced by the very talented Jihad Akbar and Quadry Ali.

During the off-season, our old coaches were replaced with newcomers Jonnie Butler and Leon Worthy, perhaps the finest coaches we would ever have. These two were incredibly knowledgeable about the game and were well loved and respected by all the players. As the season got underway, we were all set to go.

Players on the team were very confident for several reasons. One reason was that many players on the team had been training and lifting weights over the summer, in preparation for the upcoming season. Also, we had a very good coaching staff, one of the best in years.

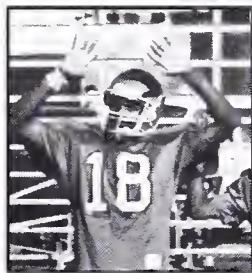

The main reason our confidence was sky-high was because we played in a summer tournament and finished with a record of three wins and no losses. We displayed the talent Berkeley High possesses. We played a full contact scrimmage one week before the season opener and were victorious 28-0. It appeared we were set for a winning, successful season.

The regular season started with a blaze. On the first play, Quarly Ali threw a 36 yard strike to receiver Jinho Ferriea. It appeared we were going to romp, but the defense surrendered 46 points, creating a 46 to 12 loss. This game set the tone for the rest of the season. Throughout the season, the Jackets gave up an average of forty points per game. Lack of heart and dedication also hurt the team. Although the Jackets had a losing season, they remained close through the tough times.

Many of the graduating seniors on the team are college bound, such as quarterback Quadry Ali, running backs Jihad Akbar and Lee Jenkins, receivers Nate Burks and Jinho Ferriea, linebacker Simha Furraha and defensive backs David Granger and Geoff Godfrey. Quadry Ali led the BVAL in passing yards with over 1600, earning him the BVAL passing title. Jinho Ferreira finished the season with over 700 yards receiving, earning him the BVAL receiving title. He averaged over 22 yards per catch.

In spite of a disappointing season, the Jackets came out and played hard. With many talented returning players, we look forward to an improvement next season.

WOMEN'S WATER POLO

This year's women's water polo teams encountered a variety of creatures, including whales, horses, and gremlins. For some teams, this might have been a distraction, but Berkeley was not the least bit phased.

Having lost only four seniors to graduation, Berkeley entered the season with many returning varsity players, eager to avenge their past losses to certain valley teams. The amount of pure talent on the team was staggering. At hole-set position, seniors Jessica Shera and Jessica L'Esperance took turns beating down their hapless defenders. Sprinters Sarah Hirsch and Felice Botts added speed to the team, and seniors Jenny Gibney and Jenny Wolan were powerful assets to the team on the other side of the cage.

Early in the season, the Lady Jackets ventured down to scenic Atwater for their first tournament. In addition to astounding opponents with their incredible talent, they learned a valuable lesson as well: the family that prays together, stays together. Upon getting out of the pool the first night they were there, they were awed by the sight of a glowing cross in the dark sky.

Unfortunately, many players felt that the referee, a close relative of John Candy's who also plays Pat on Saturday Night Live, favored the opposing teams. "If we'd have had a fair ref., we would have won more of the close games," said senior Sarah Hirsch.

The most exciting game of the season was a home game against bitter rival Carondelet. Having narrowly lost to them at the beginning of the season, Berkeley was determined to crush the competition in front of the hoardes of Jacket fans. And win they did, after an intense and violent game. "I felt kind of bad about giving one of their players a black eye, but hey, it's part of the game!" exclaimed senior Jenny Gibney.

Although they had to miss the spirit rally to play in the Western States Championships in Modesto, many players felt it was worth it. "It was worth it to go down and kick voogie ass, and the Holidome was the ultimate experience in the life of a water polo player," commented senior Sara Marchi.

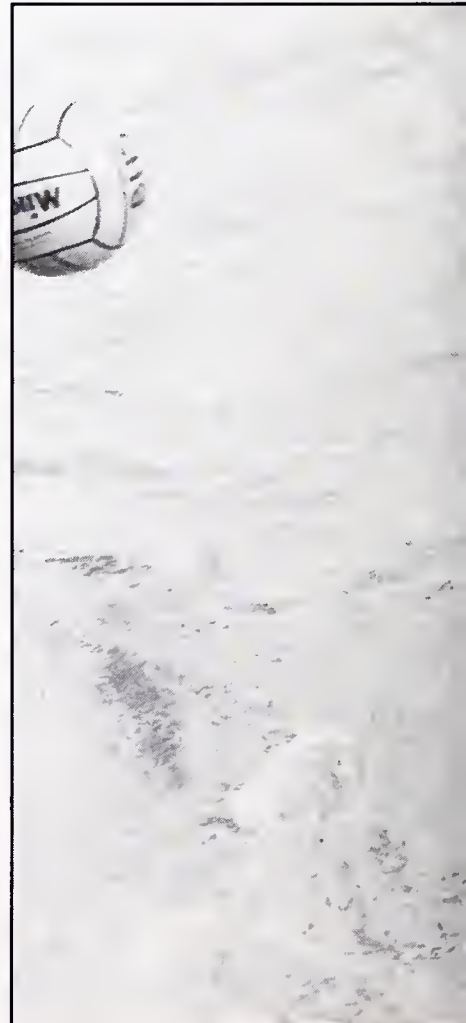

Perhaps their best game came when they played on full stomachs. "We play better when we're burping up bean burritos!" said Wolan.

The women's water polo team would like to thank a certain player on the men's team for inspiring them with spontaneous galactical laughter throughout the season.

In conclusion, there are only three words to describe this year's women's water polo team: They Got Skeeeals!!! IGG

MEN'S WATER POLO

This year's men's water polo team looked strong from the start. With many returning star players from last year, we had the potential to continue Berkeley High's excellent tradition of dominance in men's water polo. Led by returning coach Bill Gaebler, we were fired up and determined to win.

Senior Sam Veloz proved to be a powerful force at hole-set, the main offensive position. Wyeth Pierce, also a senior, astounded opposing teams with his incredible upper-body strength, scoring an average of five goals per game. Another force to be reckoned with was sophomore goalie Ryan Smukler, nicknamed "the wall" for his effective defense in the goal.

Though we had much individual talent, it took us a while to put it all together and play as a team. Our overall record was a slight disappointment, but nevertheless, we enjoyed our season immensely.

As usual, the Berkeley men's water polo team upheld its life-long tradition of having the most fun! You might ask yourself what we mean when we say fun. We'd like to tell you, but since this yearbook is edited, we better leave out the details. Instead, we'll supply you with your very own list of what it takes to have the most fun.

Item one, the Berkeley High men's and women's H2O polo teams (everyone in speedos), a keg-no, you better make that 5 kegs and, oh yeah, a tap would help, a dancing Deter (Ben), a lumphead (Chris), a forest of the kind green, a case of papers (zig zags), plenty of matches...

...Mr. Mellow and a bowl (Sam), a couple pizzas, an all night gambler (Evan), water polo caps (jimmys too), Gonzo the keg guard (Jordan), some Zeppelin and Marley, a psycho-sexy and his fuses (Scott), a mop (Jeff), a bath tub for the J.V.'s, a new toilet for Nate V., not the very scary Out To get Boxed, Jessica's house and some mushrooms, a floor for Jenny, a panty thief and his fairy shot (Jon), the rookie (Nate B.), Hector the gimp who walks with a limp (F--- You!), a super (Dave) Osborn...

... a tatooed wall (Ryan), a poster boy with his stupid ideas (Orion), Square cut (Brooks), another keg, Beaker and his cup (Wyeth), the men's and women's H2O polo teams (no speedos), a water bed so the team can do it's thing, "put it in the hole and drive", and oh yeah, that cool guy named Bill. Caution kids, no part of this list should be carried out at home, only the water polo team is capable of such actions!!!

WOMEN'S FIELD HOCKEY

The 1992 field hockey season was a season of change for the Berkeley High Women's Field Hockey team. Former Junior Varsity coach Michelle Ohye took over the position of Varsity coach and Karen Kirk became the J.V. coach. Due to the coaching change, there were no summer practices. Because of this, the team was not prepared for games during the first two weeks of school and got off to a rocky start.

A major contribution to this slow start was our lack of an experienced goalie. Both the J.V. and Varsity goalies graduated last year leaving the team goalie-less. Sophomore Nydia Algazzali, senior Nicole Marsh and senior Katie Wyle all came forward and played goalie (a new position for all three) quite well. "I was really proud of all three goalies ability to save those few balls that passed by our awesome defense," said junior Margot Mahannah (one of those awesome defensive players.)

The coaches decided early in the season that our losses were due to the fact that we were not in shape. They decided to institute a program of sprinting. We sprinted before games and before practice. Although several people on the team moaned and groaned about this program there was a notable improvement in the team's game.

The team eventually proved to be as good, if not better, than last year's team with our first victory of the season over Cupertino High School. Spectator Luke Powell had this to say about the team, "stylish, swift and definitely motivated, this team is on the top of my list to watch."

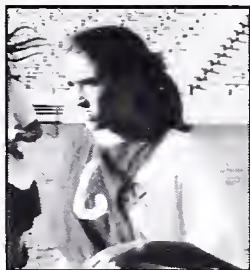

The winning streak continued as the Varsity team took second place in the prestigious Cupertino Tournament.

"We romped on those valley hicks," said senior Jill Vizas of her team's remarkable play at the tournament. The J.V. team also triumphed by scoring their first goal and winning their first game of the season.

Despite communication problems between coaches and players, especially over the new 'attendance policy' (players who missed even one practice got their playing time reduced), the team was able to pull together. "Although we had problems with our coaches we never took them out on each other, we all got along really well," agreed junior Margot Mahannah and senior Jill Vizas.

The seniors on the team will be greatly missed next year. With nine out of eleven members of the Varsity team graduating we look forward to many new people coming out for field hockey next year.

WOMEN'S VOLLEYBALL

The Women's Volleyball team proved many people wrong this year. After losing three seniors from last year, people thought that BHS didn't have any talent left. The Berkeley girls showed everyone that volleyball players don't need to be tall to be good.

Last year, the team was focused on two players and their ability to put the ball down. This year however, it was a team on which every player was equally important. Sierra "I am a wall" Gribble and Phoebe "Six pack (I don't look like Agent Cooper!)" Dann made up the potent middle attack. Gribble, who had been an outside hitter all of her volleyball career, made a smooth transition to middle blocker, and led the team in blocks.

Monique Thiry-Zaragoza started setting 4 years ago and is now considered by many to be the best setter in the league. Clair Yoder moved from a back row specialist to a front row player, wow'ing her teammates and opponents with her ability, despite her size. Tanya Rosen provided tough defense in the back row and was a positive force on the court. Shiva Niazi learned the trade of middle blocker and greatly improved her skills. Dawn

Wittman had a disappointing season, as a transfer from El Cerrito, she looked to be a great addition to the team. But due to red tape and a jealous ex-coach, she was unable to play. Nevertheless, she acted as assistant coach and practiced with the team.

Much of the team's strength came from last year's JV team. Naimah Robinson and Molly Sklut made impressive debuts. Tina Reardon, Amanda Salzman, Amanda Nakahara, Sylvaine Wong and Brit Badgely contributed to the team's success as well. Gribble, Thiry-Zaragoza, and Dann earned first team All League honors, and sophomore Molly Sklut made second team. The team finished second in the BVAL, and got to the second round of the North Coast Sectionals where they suffered a disappointing loss to Santa Rosa. "This was my favorite season in my four years" said Rosen. "It really felt like a team-everyone was supportive." agreed Gribble.

The team would like to thank Ed Cohen and Kelly Moomaw for the dedication and knowledge that they shared with us.

CROSS COUNTRY

Cross-Country happens to be the best kept secret at Berkeley High, second only to the clean, well-stocked women's bathroom in the H-building. First of all, you learn hands-on navigation skills through the streets of Berkeley. Also, for those runners who look less than beautiful after a grueling run, don't worry, your egos will be protected by the pre-sunrise darkness. Stress is kept to a minimum; cuts are made voluntarily by nearly half the team so that only the strong (Elena) and the completely crazy (Sam and André) survive. The team maintains a supportive atmosphere. Freshman Liz "BW, I'm your #1 fan" Boss comments: "I couldn't believe it, during my first varsity race Phoebe started cracking political jokes!" Senior Karen "flake" Rosenblum exclaimed, "These guys are great. I came in last and they were cheering so loud, I thought I'd won the race!"

Even our finely tuned navigational skills weren't always enough for those crazy valley courses. Junior Katya "I don't wanna walk the course" Cenglelaments, "At Heather Farms, Phoebe and I got so lost we ran in circles, even stopping to ask directions of some senile senior citizens. Daria and Jenny got so lost at the Pittsburg meet they were disqualified for taking a "long cut."

Resident stud Ryan "Stop hitting my butt" Demai provided high-volume entertainment in the back of the bus. Up front Mr. "Praise the Lord" Ward enlightened the team on everything ranging from fashion (his leather cowboy get-ups) to racing strategy. André and Sam aren't the only lunatics; Andrew "I need a warm up" Berger seemed to think a two mile course wasn't enough. He insisted on running a three mile "warm up" before each meet.

There were two major injuries this season. Michael "Where are those brakes" Dillingham crashed through the rear window of a car on his way to a meet on his scooter. Thanks to his helmet he suffered only scratches and a bruised ego while Abby "The A is for attitude" L'Esperance broke her leg playing soccer.

Mr. "Old faithful" Conning woke us up each morning with his neon micro shorts. Margaret "Let's jump in the lake" Wikander was consistent in her high spirits and fast running. Maureen "I'm only in it for the credits" Richey, and Brea "the crazy Australian, and Juan "Speedy" De La Rivera added spunk to the ranks. Juliette "Where's the porto potty" Spertus reminisces, "There must be something special about this team, why else would a senior wake up at the crack of dawn to spend all free time with freshman, and wear those tiny funk Ronald MacDonald outfits?"

WOMEN'S TENNIS

The 1992 Women's Tennis season got off to a rough start. Since last year's coach, Bret Sullivan, was unable to return, members of last year's varsity squad started practices on their own. Two days before the first match, against Ygnacio Valley, frosh women's basketball coach Chris Hope was brought in along with a new assistant coach, Dee. By tennis team standards, Hope and Dee imposed rigorous conditioning and drills (running around the courts five times, sprinting across three courts ten times) at practices. But by crew team standards, however, the tennis workouts were paltry. The team ended up with a 6-6 record by the end of the season. This was better than last year's record, but still leaves plenty of room for improvement in the next season. The disappointment of the season was the loss to Antioch, a school that Berkeley High had not lost to for over three years.

The team did better on an individual basis. Senior Jenny "Is it Capriati or Jordan?" Tom had an undefeated season at number one; she lost only at League Championships, when she had to play with a fever. At number two, senior Nicola "Athlete Woman" McClung juggled field hockey and tennis, and had solid seasons in both. Junior Kirsten "Body Slam" Drake, much improved, played well at number three, and Randoms Kate Lydon (senior) and Heather Brown (sophomore) were both good at number four singles. Junior Nona "Swing and miss" Zicherman and sophomore Margaret "Give it all you've got" Lee anchored the doubles teams at the number one position. They improved considerably over the course of the season, as they learned how to work together. Both Nona and Margaret are returning next year with high expectations. Senior Cynthia "Where'd you get that accent" Hunt and sophomore Cory "Shorty" Jong also played varsity doubles. Next year's team should be great since many underclassmen will be returning and moving up from J.V.

Highlights from the season included: the team's distinctive lemon-yellow shorts, "that made us look like ducklings," according to Nona, the accidents that the perennially unsafe tennis courts caused, and the crowded, bumpy, and late bus rides to far-ranging valley courts. Also memorable were the accessories that the tennis team planned on getting (but never did). The members of the team planned on ordering pencils, sweatshirts (hooded, all the better for late-night skateboard rides), socks, visors, and mugs.

Check out that form! A perfect 10.

WRESTLING

The 1993 Varsity Wrestling team has done much better than anyone expected. Although there were only eleven wrestlers this year, the team finished a strong third in the BVAL. They started off on shaky ground, but showed tremendous improvement throughout the season en route to their dynamic finish. The captains, Darna DeMarco and Bennet Carpenter were the backbone of the team. Their superb wrestling skills and leadership abilities helped lead the Jackets to many victories this season. Freshman rookie sensation Jack LaMieux won his first four matches in league dual-meets until finally losing a close match with a 171 pounder from Berkeley nemesis De la Salle. Junior veteran Jamie Warren-Mordecai started out shaky, but went on to take second place at the State tournament. "I believe Jamie is our strongest wrestler, although he is also our most modest wrestler," said coach Lem Johnson.

For those of you who don't know, wrestling is the ultimate challenge between two athletes. You must have strength, endurance, discipline, quickness, and brains (a 2.0 GPA). Wrestling happens to be one of the most physically demanding sports ever invented. Not only do you have to pummel your two hundred and fifty pound opponent into the floor, but you must do this while sporting a sleek unisuit and being watched by thousands (okay, maybe two or three) adoring fans.

The surprising success of the wrestling team can be credited to the countless hours of dedication by Coach Johnson and his hardworking pupils. Every morning from five a.m. until seven a.m. the team woke up early to go jogging, and after school they practiced until as late as eight p.m. Principal Jim Henderson was once overheard saying, "the wrestling team is one of the only successful teams at Berkeley High that I know of." The future for the Berkeley High Varsity Wrestling Team looks promising. Next year, the wrestling team will have ten out of their eleven wrestlers returning. They have been predicted to go as far as taking first place in the state. Jamie Warren-Mordecai's response to their comment was, "hey anything can happen when you have as great of a coach as Lem "Little Bear" Johnson, an ex-WWF superstar!" Don't forget to support the jacket wrestling team in 1994!!

Berkeley High is very proud of the outstanding wrestling team we have here. And we would like to wish them much success in their future endeavors.

They try out yet another position.

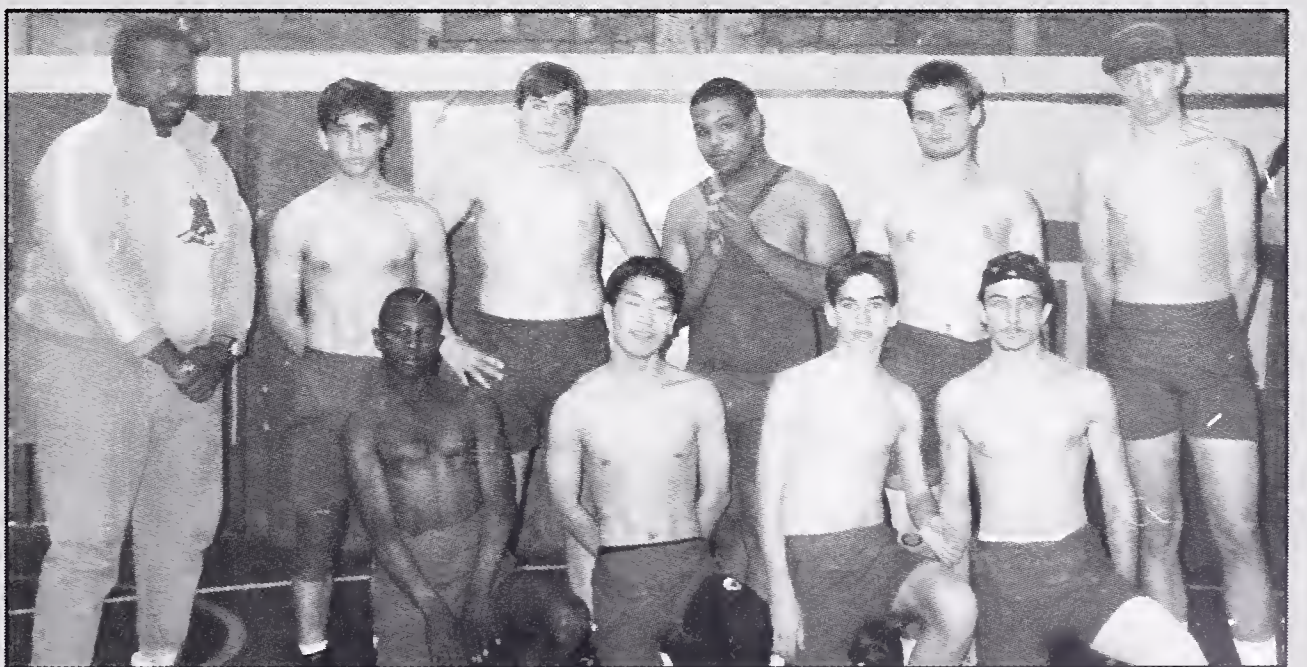

Damn glad to meet you...

Wild animals tear each other to shreds on the wrestling mat.

We'll just let you use your imagination on this one.

WOMEN'S SOCCER

The prospect of nine freshman and only three seniors on a Varsity Soccer team usually spells disaster. But for the Berkeley High women, this lineup has provided the special spark that ignited the team to success. With youthful optimism, boundless energy and a positive team spirit, the Yellow Jackets swarmed the league with their intense desire to win.

Freshman stand-out Kim Brown is one of the highest scorers in the league. Her dazzling ball control stunned many a defender. Freshman goal keeper Nora Wooley stunned many an attacker with her magnificent saves. The three seniors, Demi Rhine, Megan Stelmach, and Aine Coughlan, provided the strong defense essential to the team's success. They enjoyed their last season on the squad, especially because they know they are leaving the team in good hands.

Plagued by rain during the dreary winter season of 1992-93, the team needed an increased level of dedication and intensity to pull out their victories. Unable to hold a normal practice because of the weather, the Jackets were often seen, clad in red addidas jackets and led by Bambi's long legs, running through Berkeley in the pouring rain. Many games were played through solid rain showers. The players remember, though not too fondly, back to the sub-zero weather at Ygnacio Valley when the bus never came, and their clothes froze onto them. Undoubtedly, there is an added dimension to the game when you find that the ball you thought you were dribbling is stuck in a mud puddle three yards back. Again, it was the enthusiastic energy of the younger players, the leadership of the older players, and the fine coaching that pulled them through these less than ideal conditions.

Throughout the intense season, if one had listened closely, one would have heard the raised voices of the whole team belting out their heart-felt cheers: "Annihilate Antioch!", "Crush Clayton Valley!", "Clobber Carondolet!", "Pound Pinole!", "Pummel Pittsburgh!", "Yart on Ygnacio!" And those who stuck around long enough to watch some of the games saw that the Berkeley High Women's soccer team lived most of these cheers out.

The Berkeley High women's soccer team has several great seasons ahead of them as the talented freshmen class matures and grows. The J.V. soccer team also holds promising young players who undoubtedly will rise and aid the varsity team in years to come. The graduating seniors would like to thank the rest of the team for a hilarious and successful season and wish them good luck in the years to come.

MEN'S SOCCER

The Berkeley High men's soccer team started off the year undefeated in pre-season play, and then won all of their games at the beginning of league play. It was not until Berkeley met the hicks of De La Salle that they started to slip. De La Salle somehow managed to pull off a victory against the strong Berkeley team. Fortunately, the Jackets bounced back after realizing that the De La Salle team was nothing but a bunch of corn eating, cow tipping red necks that were bred for soccer. Berkeley then proceeded to kick the crap out of "Valley" (Clayton, that is) in their next game.

The Yellow Jackets, led by co-captains Deji Abina and Warwick Pawsey, are in search of a second place finish in their league, as well as an invitation to the North Coast championship tournament. Once they reach North Coast, the Jackets have a reputation of doing very well. This reputation has been gained through great post-season play over the last couple of years.

Next year's team will have to do without six of this year's starters. In addition to Abina and Pawsey, the other graduating seniors consist of Jesse Hanson (the most underrated player on the team), Junya Oishi (the disciplined goalie), Marco Azucena (the leading scorer), and Josh Sachs-Weintraub (the short guy). Other teams can only wish they had talent like this.

In his first year coaching, Ken Shadlen has brought a diverse Berkeley team together. The pure individual talent of each member of the team has blended together to contribute to Berkeley's overall strength.

"I just love kicking those smooth round balls with lots of other burly men in the slippery mud. It just tickles me magenta!" exclaimed an exuberant Weintraub.

Although several of the star players on this year's soccer team are members of the graduating class of 1993, there is much talent to be found in the underclassmen as well. Juniors Peter Schrieber, Mike DeSerio, George Wooley, and Ben Wells all look to help lead the Jackets far in the future.

Soccer is one of the most exciting sports to watch, as well as to play. Just ask spectators Luke Powell and Jenny Gibney. "Great ball handling, top strategy, we think it's time for the Gothea Cup, Gotburg, Sweeden, 1994," they proclaimed.

At the time this article went to press, the final results of the season were not yet available. But with the vast amount of talent and aggression that they possess, the Jackets are sure to do well in post-season play.

MEN'S VARSITY B-BALL

There are sixteen men on the floor. The floor is flat, and the ball is round. The point of the game is to throw the ball through a round metal hoop perched high above the ground. At first glance, it seems like a simple enough task. However, under coach Jesse Gossett it can prove to be very difficult. With Gossett, even the simplest drill becomes the challenge of a lifetime. Along with the physically grueling aspect of the sport, Gossett has put a lot of mental pressure on his team to do well. As he frequently says to his players, "You know every crack in this floor, the floor you run on everyday. Don't let someone come into your home and kick your butt. Have pride, have a heart." When Gossett took over the team, he also had to take on the task of instilling a winning tradition in his players. This was something the previous coach was unable to do. Along with this winning tradition came team unity. "We call ourselves a family!" proclaimed one player. He has brought the players together by installing certain programs such as team lunches on game days and having the players sit together before both home and away games.

Everyone on the team is very supportive of each other. The players are constantly checking up on each other with remarks such as, "Do you have your grades?" and "You better go to practice!" Said one anonymous player, "I don't know what I would do without my fellow team-mates, I'm closer to them than to my own brothers!" The team is doing very well this year, and Gossett cannot be given all the credit for these accomplishments. The players deserve recognition for all their dedication and endless hours of hard work.

The season is only half-way over so far, but with impressive victories over El Cerrito, Antioch, and Pittsburgh already, the team looks to go far in their play. This year's team is made up of an incredible amount of talent. Some players have waited patiently for three years for their chance to shine, and shine they have. Seniors Kenyatta Rowe, Jahari Tracy, Mike Lewis, and Traniel Brown have all accomplished great success this year, with point-guard Traniel Brown as a huge surprise. Sachi Mims, Leonard Canty and Nate Burks, who are also seniors, were previously neglected, but this year have stepped into the spotlight. Yusef Walker, Jason Griffith, Dexter Daniels, and Dennis Beavers, all starters at one point, have helped spark the team to many victories. Then there are next year's starters and stars who are waiting with incredible talent to lead the Jackets even higher next year--Joshua Gruber, Cecil Sterns, Skye Stargell, and David Harper.

MEN'S JV BASKETBALL

With such a powerful, awe-inspiring varsity men's basketball team as we have here at Berkeley High, the Junior Varsity and Freshman teams do not get nearly as much attention as they deserve. Despite the minimal fan support and recognition for each of these teams, they nonetheless have been slowly, but surely proving their domination in the league this season.

After a mediocre pre-season performance, when the Jackets came out with a record of equal wins to losses, the young teams set forth to better their playing. "We're okay, but we've been struggling a little bit," admitted one junior varsity team member. Said David Van Dyke about his team's record so far, "We're .500 in the pre-season, but we're looking to improve".

The Jackets are led this year by Coach Thompson, a coach who has earned respect from players and fans alike. He is extremely knowledgeable about the game of basketball, and has thus gotten the reputation of being one of the smartest coaches in the BVAL. He wants all of his players to keep their intensity up throughout the game, and is famous for demanding that they give one hundred percent all the time. "You gotta give me thirty-two minutes!" he has often been overheard exclaiming.

In addition to his incredible knowledge regarding the sport of basketball, Thompson has brought a very professional attitude to the Junior Varsity team. He stresses good sportsmanship as being just as important as winning games. Said one anonymous team member, "I have learned much more than the skills of basketball from him. He has taught me how to be a good sport whether we win or lose."

At this point, the sports editors would like to take a moment to thank all those who have helped us get this far in our careers. Where would we be without the inspiration of G-dawg, Triggy, Crazy Carol, K-K, and all the numerous others who have supported us throughout the years? Also, thank you KL and JF for your photographical contributions. And now back to our program...

Coach Thompson attributed his team's mediocre record to a lack of mental intensity, "they're probably in better shape than all the other teams, they just can't sustain the intensity." Thompson also stated that a lack of leadership was hurting the team. While some players led by silent example no one has really stepped up and led the team. In response to the El Cerrito game, Thompson said, "the breaks are going to go both ways, and we have to learn to overcome bad calls."

WOMEN'S VARSITY B-BALL

Over the past few years, the Berkeley High varsity women's basketball team has established itself as a powerhouse. With a state championship from two years ago still fresh in the minds of players and fans alike, the Lady Jackets are looking forward to another season of domination.

Coach Gene Nakamura returns for another year of leadership. In the past, Nakamura has been a major factor in the success of the Jackets. With his new position as the head of the Berkeley High Physical Education Department, coach Nakamura is around Berkeley High more often which gives him a chance to have extended contact with his team.

There are many talented seniors returning to the varsity team this year who hope to take their team far. Senior Amber Lacey is a strong force for the Lady Jackets, and has shown herself to be a major scoring power so far this season. Another key player for the Jackets is senior Bambi Bowling. At the guard position, she has brought her experience and talent to the team and has impressed opponents with her moves.

Unfortunately for the Jackets, two of the starting players were sidelined early in the season due to injuries. Senior Jenny Tom suffered a broken collarbone in a pre-season game, and was out of the line-up for several weeks. Tasha Henneman, also a member of the senior class, tore a ligament in an early game, and she also had to miss many games. But these two starters had both just returned to the line-up when this article went to press, and both should help the team with their speed and shooting immensely.

Other important members of the team playing their final high school season with the Jackets are Tawanda Archie, Sarah Brooks, and Adeilei Mosley. Many of these seniors have been closely followed by college recruiters from all over the country recently, and all have excellent futures ahead of them.

There are also several juniors on this year's squad who have been perfecting their skills all season and will be forces to be reckoned with for sure when they return next year. These include Tyese Browne, Shikiri Hightower, Jerrylyn Nelson, and Ana Traylor. The two incredible sophomore players are Jennifer De Bellis and Faymus Taylor.

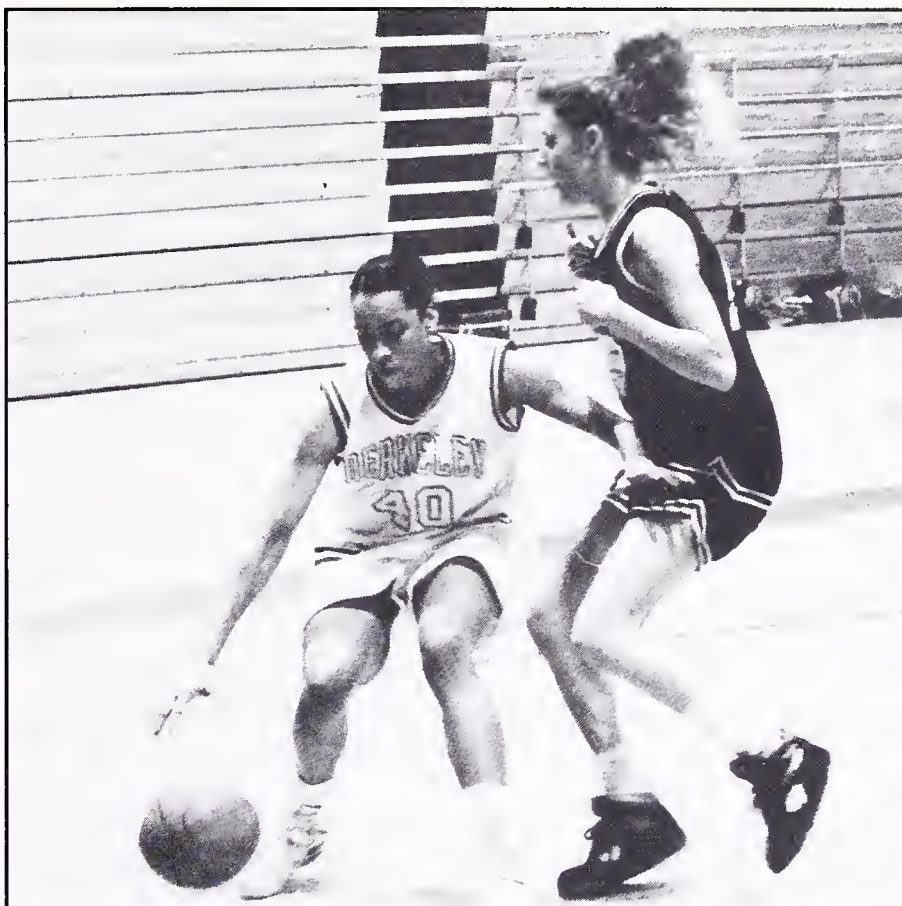

And now for a deep thought by the world famous Cajun Man:

Swish goes the ball through the sweet imported cotton fibers made in Taiwan; and with that the players glide through the musty sordid air of our familiar homeland, that special place we call the 'Hue. Just close your eyes and remember.....

WOMEN'S JV BASKETBALL

Your muscles ache. Your joints are sore. Your feet hurt. You are in pain unimagined in your worst nightmares. Are you in a Medieval torture chamber? Not likely. Experiencing slave labor? Close. You are actually at the Junior Varsity and Freshman women's basketball teams practice. Drill after drill, Coach Miller works his players to the bone, practicing perfect dribbling, shooting, and passing, it is a lesson in the finer points of basketball. "Get your head out of your ass. Think, God Dammit! We'll keep doing it until we get it right. Now move!!!" The coach's voice constantly rings throughout the gym, pushing his team to work harder.

Playing on the Junior Varsity team is an experience in learning the skills and strategies necessary to play the game of basketball. And under a no-nonsense coach this year, these women did indeed perfect these skills. Although the official season record was unavailable at press time, both the junior varsity and the freshman women's basketball teams were doing fabulously well in their league play.

After long hard practices, challenging games, and tough workouts, the team might have been in excruciating pain, but instead they really came together. Their passes got quicker, more of their shots dropped in, and their overall game improved tremendously. Said one anonymous player, "We definitely have improved, and basketball has been a very important part of my career as a member of the student body at Berkeley High School."

Principal Jim Henderson, who frequently visits all three girls teams games, commented, "I enjoy watching the Junior Varsity girls basketball team because they exhibit their raw talent in an exemplary fashion. I'm incredibly proud of each and every one of them."

With so many exceptional players on both the Junior Varsity and Freshman teams, Berkeley High can look forward to a long-standing tradition of excellence in women's basketball for several years to come.

Believe it or not some basketball legends of our time started out their careers right here in good old B-town itself. For example, a former member of the Jacket hoop team is none other than Phil Chenier. After walking across the Greek, Phil attended the University of California at Berkeley. He then went on to play in the NBA for the Baltimore Bullets, now better known as the Washington Bullets. Phil was a smooth shooting guard, but unfortunately his career was cut short by a back injury. By the way, Phil's picture can be found in the lobby of the community theater, along with the rest of the members of the Berkeley High Hall of Fame.

MEN'S VOLLEYBALL

Berkeley High School Volleyball is the team of choice. Screw lacrosse, crew, baseball, and badminton. This is the team to be on. Coming off an amazing undefeated season, topped off by the Northcoast section title, the team had high expectations.

Erik "Goofy-Foot" Stromberg is by far the key player. His skills have been a model for the other players and his sense for the game has led his team to victory many times throughout the season. Mike "Hangtime" Choy brought a new level of play to BHS volleyball with his astounding 30-inch vert. Despite his small size, he played with the big boys, consistently nailing his passes and putting his hits straight to the ground. "Mike and Bryan are such fresh studs," remarked an anonymous female spectator.

Speaking of Bryan "Did I mention that I'm the team captain?" Bindloss, the most valuable player played an all around incredible season. His playing was so smart and consistent that he re-established the fact that, as coach Dimone Watson put it, "Bryan Bindloss is Berkeley volleyball." Speaking of Warwick "Dirty Paws" Pawsey, the 3-time Golden Bear All-Star made an incredible transition from golf to volleyball. On the year, he had 21 goals and 49 homeruns. Thus, he has not only been recruited by Mills College, but has been offered a full ride as well. This year's awesome setter, Chris "Where is my beer?" Unno, was an unanimous decision for 1st team all Northcoast. He managed to play volleyball despite being on the pro BPC tour. When asked, Chris said he felt the season went as expected but also noted, "There's too much modesty on the team!" But the big man this year is Edward "Scissor Hands" Kopelson. He really gets up when the crowd shouts "Roof, Roof, Roof!" After declining to be starting setter, he went on to become the top hitter as well as the number one defenseman. This is one man to look for next season.

Kim "Quick draw" McGraw was the major force on the team. He has 45 vertical inches, and he can dig like a mole. Martin "I should be startin'" Simpson was unanimously voted as the secret weapon and will not be used unless it is completely necessary. About Zack "Golden Paws, aka LBJ" Jenson, Coach Damone Watson had this to say, "Golden Paws is the epitome of physical domination. It's guys like LBJ that you just wish you had six of them out on the court. Scott "Let me play" Loken is a born leader. When he gets a chance, Scott shines. For example, Scott served 10 points and 9 kills...by the end of the season.

WOMEN'S SWIMMING

It's swim season again, and Berkeley High is more than ready! Although the team is smaller than usual this year, many of the new additions to the team have mucho speed and style. Under the coaching of Philippe Henri and Mr. Bill (Keith), they will definitely be "Hot Tub" this year. The Berkeley High School women's swim team is trying a slightly new strategy this year-- "We want the funk -- gotta have that funk!" exclaimed senior swimmer Jessica Shera. Before every meet, the swim team indulges in James Brown's celebrity Hot Tub for inspiration. They always find themselves fired up after sweatin' in the "too hot" Hot Tub.

At the beginning of the swim season each year, the team is forced to think up a cheer for meets. This season, thanks to senior Sarah Hirsch, junior Felice Botts, and seniors Sarah Colton and Jessica Shera, the team has rebelled against traditional cheering and has taken a different approach. Before each race the opposing team is sure to hear, "We're here, no fear, no cheer!" sung out across the water. This yell strikes fear into the hearts of all opposing teams and lets them know that the Berkeley High School women's swim team has got the FUNK!

And now, a word from the official photographer for the women's swim team, TANYA. (Jessica didn't write a long enough article.) I had the golden opportunity to watch these women in action. I got to wake up way too early to walk to Berkeley High stand by the lovely pool (nice yellow scum) and snap these great pics. I can now sympathize with these tough women.

They have to suffer through lap after lap of weird arm thingies, in and out, and in and out. I am soooooo glad that I am not on the swim team. Oh well. I guess they like it, or else they just do it to keep in shape for water polo. Ha ha Tanya, with cheers like this team has we know they love swimming.

Many of you may be wondering exactly what motivates these women to rise out of bed at the ungodly hour of five in the morning every single day. Well, to tell you the truth, so were we, and so we took a little poll of some of the swimmers to find out.

"The main reason I joined the swim team was to get one of those bright yellow parkas," confessed senior sprinter Sarah Hirsch.

"Swimming is a way for me to relieve all of my anxiety from school," commented junior Felice Botts, "Plus, where else would you get that eau de toilette chlorine scent that guys just can't resist?"

Anyway, whatever their reasons, we admire the swimmers greatly.

As you can see, swimmers do it on their backs.

The swimmers pause between laps, hoping for some sort of divine guidance.

MEN'S SWIMMING

This year's men's swim team was an inspired and motivated group of young men. Despite numerous injuries, sicknesses, and terrible pool conditions, they emerged looking like a team fit to go to North Coast. Led by coach Jason Callahan and his dramatic, yet long, speeches, the team defeated the inbred, corn eating, floundering, country bumkins from the valley.

This year's team of heart didn't exactly keep up with the De La Salle Field Flowers, Campolindo Corn Pickers, or the Miramonte Cow Herders, but they partied hard. With the combined force of the women's team, Berkeley's presence was felt up in Reno (Editor's note:

notice the play on words). And the cast for the Men's team in Reno was short but sweet, sort of like other parts of their bodies....

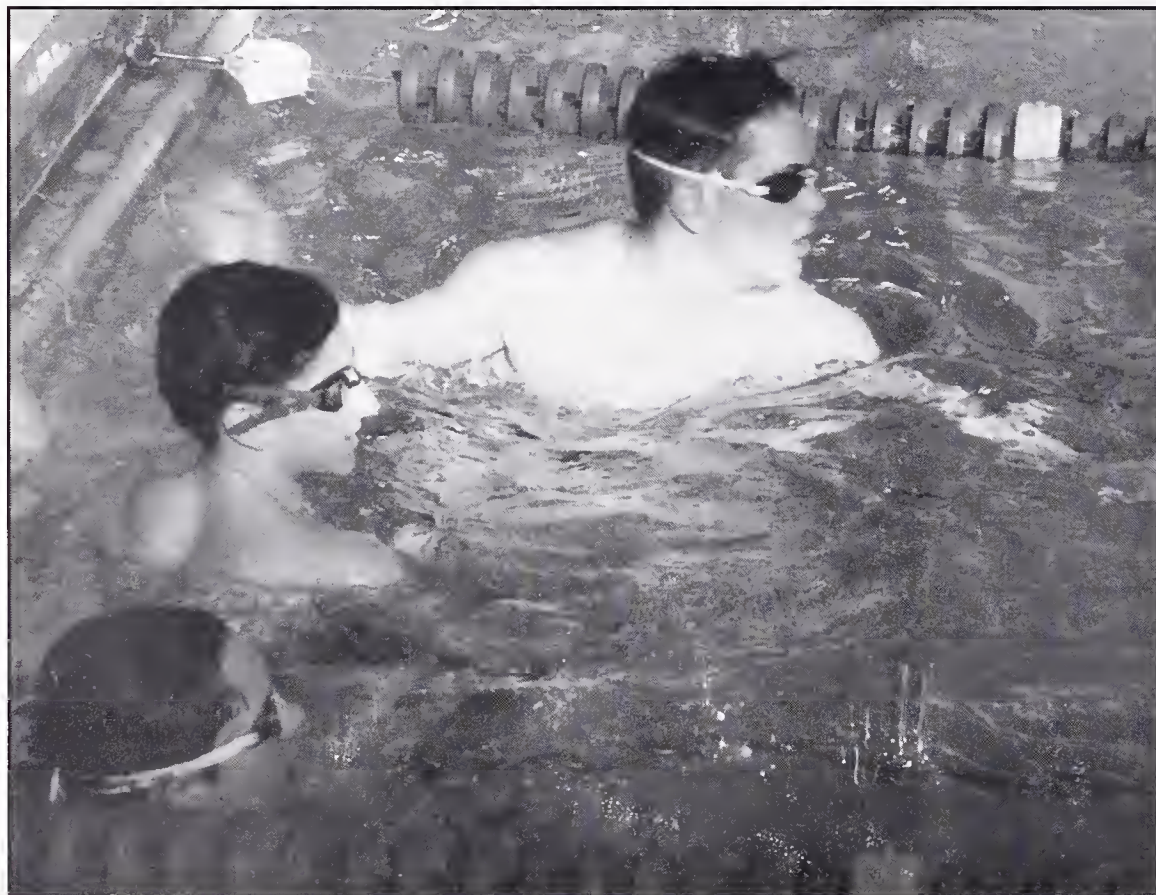

"Mighty Man" Smith, "DP" Levy, Adam "Marshmallow," Noah "Ladle and a Potter," Mac "Dolphin with no upper lip" Thompson, Nate "Legs" Valentine, Chris "Lump is a Gump" Harnett, Nat "I love to practice" Reinke, Morgan "Motor" Moschetti, Jeff "Extended Limbs and Camel Spitting" McCullogh, Anton "The Swedish soap dish" Lindstrom, Colin "Raider" Watters, Sam "long and fast drinker" Veloz, Damon "the Lazy Slug with salt on him" Williams, Ben "Furry, Psycho Kid, Schnay" Schnayerson, Kyle "the pacemaker with a dead battery" Fleming, Brooks "I can't go to practice, shit-talking, loudmouth, demanding everything, fifty pounder, no football playing" Mar, and Ruben "the Vet" Sandler.

All this raw talent in one confining pit of water could be, as one might well imagine, staggering at times. When swimmers in all six lanes were clocked in at their olympic record-breaking times simultaneously, spectators in the front several rows were struck with tidal waves comparable to those of Hurricane Andrew. Let's just say it wasn't a pretty sight.

Speaking of pretty sights, how 'bout those speedos? Newly ordered this year from the American Male catalog, they provided versatility and a snug fit for the already faster-than-the-speed-of-lightning swimmers. This year, the team decided to go with the controversial sweedish g-string suits. Slick and stylish, these suits will be sure to catch your eye on the pool deck.

The men followed the swimming tradition once again this year, as they took up their razors in an attempt to make all parts of their bodies baby-soft. All that is left to be said as the swimmers embark on their season is "Juice the Jackets!"

Chris intently stares down his opponent.

WOMEN'S VARSITY CREW

The 1993 Varsity Women's Crew has embarked on its treacherous journey through the depths of true human pain and suffering. Last year's attitude of fun and games has been replaced with a general feeling of absolute fortitude. The new addition to the team, Coach Bruce Appleyard, has arrived with a whip in his hand and a vision of victory, guiding the oarswomen through their days of thunder.

Six mornings a week, before the sun rises on our side of the world, one can find the sleepy bodies of twenty young dedicees (also known as CRAY-CIES) enjoying the brisk morning air at beautiful Lake Merritt.

As they gracefully row around the lake drowning in their sweat and feeling pain in parts of their bodies they never even knew they had, they are ever perserverent in their quest only due to the fact that there are seven other idiots in the boat in the exact same situation.

A question frequently asked of crew members is the common inquiry, "Why do you do crew?" Well, we discovered that there is no one answer to this dilemma. "Crew is an exhilarating and rewarding experience. It has taught me some invaluable lessons of life, has made me a richer person inside, and is a great way to catch up on the latest gossip!" exclaimed senior rower Jenny Gibney.

In addition to spending quality time each morning on the astro-turf-covered, condom-infested, oil-polluted, dead-body-smelling, birdsh*t-laminated, funk waters of the lake, the dedicated crew team gathers together four afternoons a week to further enjoy each other's company. They frequently rendezvous at the luxurious BHS weight room to lift, and even more frequently can be seen upstairs dying on the ergs.

It is the common consensus that ergs suck. For those of you who may not have had the pleasure of experiencing an erg for yourselves, here is a close approximation of the erging sensation: imagine bungee jumping out of an airplane and then being dragged along behind it across three states, after having pounded a keg of Old E, swimming the Mississippi river upstream in a hurricane, and then collapsing on a bed of railroad stakes.

As junior starboard Jo Saltmarsh put it, "The erg machine is the epitome of orgasmic human pleasure. I urge everyone to try it out at least once in their lifetime."

As the racing season approaches its zenith, the attitude is optimistic. Rower Lauren Hart had this to say, "We plan to kick some major ass!"

Members of the crew team prepare to toss their coxswain after they have whipped their competition.

MEN'S VARSITY CREW

Eight men and their hundred pound coxswain. Chris "Sasquatch" Cukor, Eric "Smiley" Christiani, Zach "The Stork" Gillen, Max "Gonzo" Werner, Orion "Owie" Fulton, Karl "Pilgrim" Batten-Bowman, Nick "Back-Hair" Sinai, and Eddy "Politically Incorrect" Mezincescu.

There were various opinions this year as to why Berkeley had such tremendous speed. Some say their speed comes on account of their big blades. Some attribute it to their high stroke rates. Coach V-Moe Horpel knows the real reason, "They're just good."

Long hours of practice at crew are accepted. Rowers start the season with the knowledge that at least five hours of each day will be dedicated to toning their beautiful bodies. Although such a schedule can tend to bring you down, rowers keep their sanity via an endless cap-fest down by the dock (hence the derogatory nicknames). One wise novice, "Drag Queen", observed the realistic possibility that more cap-bombs are dropped than strokes are taken.

Seeing aerodynamics as a key factor in boat speed, the Berkeley men cited a few points in their favor. Two of the better insulated members of the crew, "Sasquatch" and "Back-Hair", consented to full-body shaves to lessen the drag coefficient. Senior "Gonzo" and his wind-swift facial endowment was seen as an asset, acting as a spinnacker in breezy conditions. Coxswain Basu's near-fetal weight, kept low by his no fat, all water diet, also kept the boat heft down.

Indeed many factors have contributed to the lightning-quickness of this year's crew. The aquisition of the brand new shell, Schoenbrod Dirigo SL, set them back dollars but put them up meters. The new hatchet "big-blades" added more thrust to the already powerful strokes of the Berkeley men.

This year the crew travelled to the prestigious San Diego Crew Classic, one of the largest regattas on the west coast. We don't know as of yet how they faired. . . so find a rower and ask him yourself.

NOVICE CREW

To the untrained eye crew may appear to be a simple sport to learn, but any novice rower will tell you otherwise. Through countless hours of practice, endless afternoons spent watching technique videos, and more than their fair share of stadiums run, the novice members of Berkeley High Crew have attempted to perfect their stroke. . . to no avail. However it is often said that even the best rowers in the world have never completed a perfect stroke. In a field of similarly unexperienced competition, the Berkeley novices have fared well.

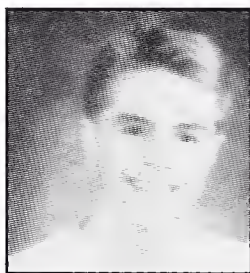

Early in the season, the novice rowers of Berkeley crew learned just how physically and mentally demanding crew can be. As John "Furry" Bloch commented after completing his first race of the season, "WHOA."

This year, the Berkeley crew team benefitted from the turnout of novices: 22 women and 11 men. One of the novice men, Karl "Pilgrim" Batten-Bowman, even made the varsity boat. This is quite an accomplishment, considering the fact that he is now rowing among men with years of experience, including at least one junior national team member. Commented Karl on his recent promotion to the varsity boat, "At first I was speechless when I heard the great news, but now I feel just like one of the guys. It's been great rowing among such talent!"

The women's novice team was coached this year by BHS alums Jenny Sitkin and Jessica Delaney. Having rowed together at Berkeley High a few years ago, they found that they just couldn't stay away, and came back for more. They together set about the task of molding a dozen petite young women into brute animals, and they accomplished this feat with ease. In one of the first races of the season, the novice regatta, Berkeley came away with medals from every event in which they competed.

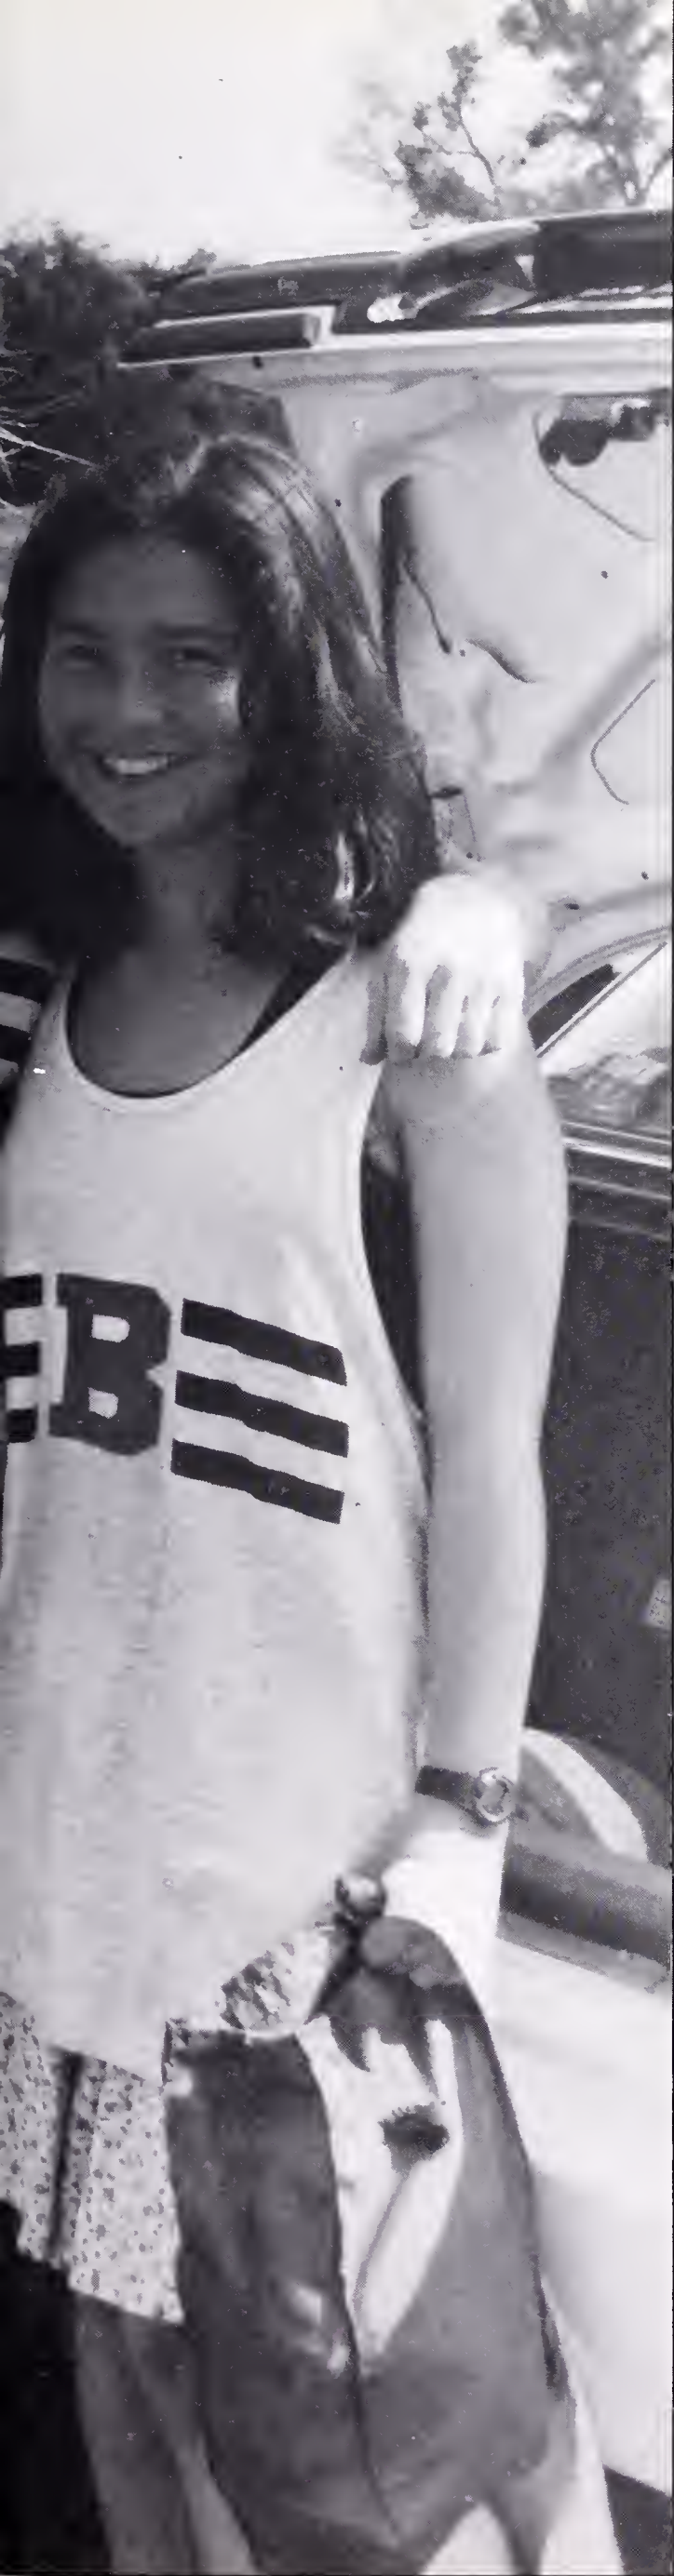

It is widely agreed that one of the best things about being a member of the novice crew team is the close friendships that are formed during the course of the season. When you wake up every morning at five o'clock and go down to the dock to see the same faces time and time again, it is inevitable that you will grow to either love your teammates or despise them. Said freshman Sascha Clark, "I love my fellow rowers like sisters. I have met my best friends through crew!"

Since most other crews start practicing in the fall, and Berkeley cannot begin their season until February, these first year rowers usually have a disadvantage at the beginning of the season. But this year the Berkeley novices are looking to win State Championships, and so far they are well on their way.

MEN'S LACROSSE

This years Lacrosse team was fueled by a tenacious desire to accomplish sheer arrows in the form of a state championship victory. (We did win [], Goodrow wooped us up []) (Check one box). The team was led by captains Jacob (sugar ray, let's brawl, you talkin' to me, Got beat by Brunz-dog at all you can eat Dennys) Brownlow, Max (The Dog 4, putang never, Geometry) Webber, Joe (Joe Cool guy) Dingilberry/ Lacrosse player, had great leadership, and in turn the team was well lead (To the state championship [], down the primrose path []). (Check one). This years team was coached (well [], badly []) by Rob (never had a haircut) Gillies, and Ben (the beast) Budnitz. Along with the captains and coaches there were a number of honorable menchie's, David (How's the air quality up there, you think I'm good now, you should have seen me before my shoulder) Winnacker, Jason (Lupo the butcher, Brunswacker, I'm burnt, 24 entrees, Brownlow didn't stand a chance) Brunswick, Nate (Comin' up in the world, Sierra's boyfriend's little brother) Brownlow, Andrew (McFever, McFailure and Mc DLT) McPhail, Jacob (Sega Genesis playing, going to bed early, East Coast Lax hopeful) Zim, Jordan (If you do that again I'll fall and I won't get up) Gatto, Gabe (The babe) Noble, Seth (What breath) Bramble, Zack (Wheels & deals) Raetze, Joel (Melanhead, Saltshaker, Sleazy wait she's 40, finally on Var.) Melamed, Zhubin (40 to the head and he's dead) Fardis, Jon (The Asian Persuasion, Yoshi working, big buck having) Harris, Josh (I'm playing football on a full ride to UCLA) Wright, Lucas (Is that the ball I just dropped) Goettsche, Ben (I crash a car without my spleen) Cukierman, Nhut (I showed up 2 months late because of Miget mud wrestling) Nguyen, Jonah (Mystick's illegal, but Becky likes it anyway) Hendrickson, Alex (He's really cool and a real nice guy, really, why you laughing?) Moulton and finally Z a c k (SWISS CHESSE, can't practice, run, or do anything athletic, but I can play Lacrosse) Walters. We had a great seasons and we went 11 and 0, yeah, yeah, in fact we took the state, no national, world championship, yeah, that's the ticket.

The JV team had a great season too, and should do well, well into the future, seeing that they have 30 screaming freshman and sophmores on the team. That means you should be seeing lacrosse players in the halls FOREVER!

If you think for a second that I, Jason Brunswick, wrote this article just so that I could get my name in a buch of times, I, Jason Brunswick, will not stand for it.

WOMEN'S LACROSSE

This year, for the first time, we have a women's lacrosse team at Berkeley High. Women's Lacrosse is not well-known on the West Coast, although it is quite popular on the East Coast. In fact, Berkeley High is only the second high school in the Bay Area to start a team. The team plays Bishop O'Dowd, the only other high school team, as well as various college B-teams, including Humboldt State, U.C. Santa Cruz, U.C. Davis and the Cal hoogies.

The team was started by Berkeley High students. It was through student effort that head coach Sarah Nelson was found. Sarah was formerly the coach at Humboldt State and currently plays women's lacrosse on a club team. The assistant coach, Rachel, played for several years on the East Coast, and is now also playing club lacrosse.

This dedicated group of women gets up early every morning in order to arrive at Kleeburger field at six o'clock A.M. for practice. Their strenuous practices consist of running, catching drills, throwing drills, shooting drills, defensive drills and last, but certainly not least, scrimmages. Said one anonymous team member, "We have lots of fun playing with our woodies so early in the morning." Woodies are what the team members affectionately call their sticks. As well as the popular wooden sticks, women also use sticks with the same head as the men's stick, but a slimmer shaft. (Editor's note: if you are lost here, ask someone who plays lacrosse.)

Women's lacrosse is played very differently than men's lacrosse. Women's lacrosse is a non-contact sport and only a mouth-guard is necessary equipment for protection. Because it is a non-contact sport they are not allowed to have the deep pockets like the men's lacrosse sticks have. However, the sport is far from being an easy task, as it involves a large amount of technical knowledge and skill.

Because of their status as a new team; the women's lacrosse team is still a bit rough around the edges. The teams they play have more experience and technical knowledge than the Berkeley team. This contributes to making this year more of a learning experience than anything else for the team. The team consists of about forty members, including several under-classmen.

Unfortunately, at the time this article went to press, the season was just getting underway, and so we cannot give you the results of any official games. Hopefully, you went to some home games and you don't even need to ask!

The team has been quite popular and looks to thrive at Berkeley High in the years to come. Hopefully Berkeley will begin a lasting and winning tradition in women's lacrosse.

VARSITY BASEBALL

With new coaches, some new faces, and numerous new phrases (including "Now we're loggin'!", "Have some dangles!", and "You'll be out by a C-hair!"), the 1993 Berkeley High Varsity Baseball team was the strongest it had been in years. Returning starters included catcher Trig "Willow" Splenda, pitcher and first basemen Zack Chun, second baseman Robbie "Boh Yod" Allen, shortstop Asa "Buck" Gifford, third baseman Andres Cediel, who shed last year's forcefield, third baseman Reggie Santa-Cruz, outfielder Sam Farnsworth, and pitcher Ryan "O"-Connors-"O"-Copeland.

Platooning with Chun at first was George Wooley. Sharing time in the middle infield were Josh "The Whip" Greenblatt, Ben "Alf" Wells, and Josh "Balki" Flushman. Chris "Rich Gedmen" Graber had time at catcher, and Chris "Hitting Dongs" McElroy, Pete Shrieber, Roshawn Jain, Alex Fields, and Josh Gruber all contributed in the outfield. Along with Connors-Copeland and Wooley, Oliver "Buzz" Petit rounded out the starting rotation. Jeremy Cooper, Joshua Miles Sachs-Weintraub, and David Van Dyke offered excellent relief pitching.

It was supposed to be a transition year, but the Jacket B-Ballers quickly jumped out to an ass-whipping start. Powering Albany and rousting St. Mary's, they let the momentum carry them through league competition.

A large part of the Jacket's revitalization was due to the new coaching staff. Head Coach Mike Trainor graduated from Berkeley High in the early 80's. After playing at Cal and holding several collegiate coaching jobs, Trainor returned to BHS, stressing repeatedly "the little things", and bringing with him excellent coaching experience and interesting money-making schemes such as selling coupons for free Whoppers at the Eastmont Mall Burger King. Assistant pitching coach and handy-man Bob Serpa helped Trainor.

Coaches Mike Pinley and Mike Aggers were assets to the team with Pinlye helping pitchers and Aggers aiding catchers and making brash comments right and left.

Thanks to the work of the team, San Pablo Park looked peppy during the season, and the Jackets only had to contend with some rough spots in the infield and the occasional tractor tracks in left field. All in all, it was a "hitting lasers" kind of year, with the Jackets stealing fields and making opposing pitchers cry wherever they went.

As the 1993 baseball season reaches its peak, hopes are high and the attitude is optimistic.

VARSITY SOFTBALL

It should've been a year for rebuilding. After losing ten players to graduation in 1992, it would have been unfair to expect real success from the 1993 Varsity Softball squad. At least, that's what the critics said. It just goes to show how wrong predictions can be.

Blasting out of pre-season play with a 5-2 record, the Jackets were set to prove to powerhouses Antioch and Pinole that sometimes sheer, raw talent can mean more than age and experience. Behind the blinding speed of their overpowering hurlers, senior Rachel Salzman and sophomore Gwyneth Tripp, the defense was nearly flawless.

Junior Kirsten Drake anchored the infield, turning double plays at shortstop and crushing homeruns at the plate. At 1st base was sophomore Sarah Rosencratz, stretching for throws even as she trained for her budding singing career. After brief stints in the outfield and behind the plate, sophomore sensation Molly Sklut found a home in the "hot spot" at 3rd base, along with her classmate Soraya Voerster. Wowing the crowds with their skill at the challenging 2nd base position, senior Tasha Henneman and freshman Willie Sanchez brought new talent to the Jacket line-up.

Jacket outfielders sacrificed life and limb diving for line drives in the clumpy Grove-Russell Park grass. Seniors Megan Stelmach, Rachel Salzman, and Bonny Jones, junior Destani Wolf, and freshman Tejuana Tolbert robbed many whip-chick hits as they dominated the outfield grass. Calling the pitches, picking off runners and controlling the defense from behind the plate was star rookie catcher Jennifer DeBellis. Coach Felix Dominguez told the team that they were "the most talented bunch of girls he'd ever had, but definitely not the smartest." Then he said, "You can't bunt and you don't think, so even though we have the most talent in the league, we're going to beat ourselves." In spite of these motivational (not) words, the '93 softball squad began thrashing their opponents right off the bat (no pun intended), finally causing Coach Fifi to declare, "You guys are damn good!"

Overcoming evils like inexperience, rain-outs, chicken pox, ancient polyester uniforms, senile umpires, equipment duty, extra laps, vegetarianism, twisted ankles, extra-small batting helmets, confusing signals, soccer practices, singing rehearsals, broken toes, and those ever present freaky valley chicks, this year's team went on to have one of the most successful seasons in BHS history. Even coach Felix had to agree, "We really kicked ass!"

J.V. BASE/SOFTBALL

The JV baseball team, the future greats of BHS, had an extremely positive season. Not only in terms of winning percentage, but also in the fact that the players were molded very well into next years varsity squad.

First year manager Anthony Freeman did a great job at the helm. His aggressive style of play and possitive attitude earned him the respect of all the players. Sam Nicholson led the pitching staff and Jonothan Aaron handled the "two" spot superbly. Steve Doolan played first and Jesse Ross and Danny Gipsman handled up the middle like pros. Noah Fox played third almost flawlessly. The outfield of Joaquin Cambell, Chris Grunswald, and Tom Beckweth handled BVAL fly-balls magnificently.

Wes, Zack, Tory, Donald, and Karl did a great job backing up the outfield, and Simon Lazarre-Bloom and Manton Heard played well. Pat McKenna was a helpful utility player. Dilon picked his bellybutton well, until he injured himself (I guess he picked himself a little too hard!) "We pulled together to beat some good teams," commented Jesse.

Berkeley suffered early season defeats at the hands of cross-town rivals Albany and St. Marys. Patrick McKenna summed up the general feeling of the team as he exclaimed, "Giving support to these guys has been the highlight of my life!" This year, there was such an abundance of young hopeful baseball players that Berkeley decided to have a Freshman team for the first time in recent history. This will hopefully help Berkeley build a successful baseball program in the years to come. According to many team members, one of the best aspects of playing J.V. baseball is that you get to take the bus to away games with none other than the Junior Varsity girls softball team....

The "JayVee" Softball team was off to a good start with a 5-1 preseason record. The outlook of the team was positive, due in part to the new coach Sam "100 ounces" Romano. The infield, which included many returning players, was dominated by Hannah Alldredge at shortstop, Clara Hennen behind the plate, Becca "little bit" Lunine at third base, and Amy Davidman and freshman Suzie "Q" Vicek playing tight second base.

Kamesha Spillard, Abby "Ed" Sullivan, and returning player Danielle Thiry-Zaragoza were the outstanding outfielders. Berkeley gets great pitching control from Kit "in heat" Richert and Soshi Levy, and looks to powerhouses Vlcek, Alldredge, Spillard, and Cornet for their consistent offense.

MEN'S TENNIS

As their 1993 season gets underway, this year's men's tennis team looks better than ever. After two years of disappointing second place finishes, the team is hungry for the BVAL championship title. Returning head coach Carl Jones, along with new assistant coach Pete, has the team motivated and prepared for a successful season.

Coach Jones, who joined the team at the last minute last year, had plenty of time to get the team into shape. For the first few weeks of the season, the men ran the fire trail not once, but twice a week. This was a whole new experience for a team that is best known for its...well, let's say...relaxed practices. For those of you who are unfamiliar with the fire trail, it is roughly four miles of a treacherous, uphill dirt road that winds throughout Strawberry Canyon. Not a running course for the faint at heart.

Jones' talent as a coach and his will to win have been instrumental in building up a strong and confident team. Under his leadership, the tennis players have significantly improved, and are now prepared and eager to win.

This year's tennis team has many returning players, and looks to be a major powerhouse in the BVAL league. The number one single's player, Mark Hoogs, has received wide recognition for his outstanding performance thus far in the season. He and Marcus Pazdirek are the co-captains this year, and serve as the foundation for the strong Jacket team. Pazdirek is currently ranked number two on the single's ladder, and has shown himself to be an invaluable asset to the team.

Senior Khalid Salaam is the number three single's player on the team. Salaam combines agility and skill with brute strength on the court, and has been known to scare many an opponent off with his powerful serves. In the fourth position on the single's ladder is Josh Gustin. He has shown continual improvement over the years and will no doubt prove himself to be a key player on this year's squad.

"With such a large number of returning players and all their experience, we should easily win league this year," boasted a confident Pazdirek, when asked to comment on the future of the tennis team.

"I have never seen a better tennis match, the skill is quite obvious, and the team is excellent in doubles, oh, did you hear about that tennis-locker room scandal!?" gossiped Luke Powell.

The team has built up strong players to feel confident in their league matches. To the team of the century, we salute you for all of your hard work. The bottom line.....BHS controls the tennis circuit.

BADMINTON

This year's Badminton team is the epitome of a total athletic experience. To the team, the skill and strategy of tennis' cousin is an acquired passion, with similar set-up. Many team members are tennis players as well. Badminton uses a raised net and different rackets to hit around a little item called a shuttlecock, or to strangers, a birdie.

The team hopes for a league win this year, being especially important for returning members of last year's team, who came within one match of being the league champions. Fortunately, most of this year's new recruits have had past experience with the sport, and have done quite well with the preliminary skill tests.

This year the coach implicated a strict academic boundary on the students who could qualify to play. A minimum of a 3.798 GPA let some of the lower level students to join the team, boosting the team size, and the cheering section at the matches. Badminton is becoming more and more recognized around the world, and many hope it will soon become an Olympic event!

Although many at Berkeley High feel that Badminton is a sport that really isn't a true sport, Just show up to one of their intense afternoon practices in the old gym, 3:30 M-F, and you will soon understand why most of the team retain 0% body fat (or fat period).

"If you're the type of person who has always hesitated to look into joining a team, the badminton team is a group of great guys and girls," commented veteran Mike Benedetto, who was last year's team captain.

Hopefully this season will be a strong beginning for the new members who are excited in Badminton at Berkeley High. For many of this year's Seniors, the chance to start and play early, they feel, gives them the chance to possibly be the future Olympians of our generation.

The Berkeley High Yearbook staff would like to add that Badminton is one of our favorite sports, and together we have attended many special seminars on stroke, volley, and birdie skills. Hopefully we can soon become as cool and experienced in the vast excitement of the Association of Associated Badminton Players of the Western Hemispheric Region.

In closing, the team cheer has come to mind, so if you decide to enjoy one of their games next season, be sure to chant and cheer this theme "Hit that Birdie left and right, hit the damn thing with all your might, you can score you can win, we're kickin' butt, cause were BHS bad-mitt-in."

TRACK AND FIELD

The Berkeley High track team has gained a lot of success over the past couple of years. It is one of Berkeley High's many up and coming young teams. With very few graduating seniors the track team looks to have success for many years to come.

Many of you probably don't know very much about track and field; most people probably think all this team does is run. However, track and field encompasses a lot more than just running. When hurdling one must run and jump over hurdles at the same time.

The shot put and the javelin which involve throwing. The former involves throwing a heavy metal ball and the latter involves throwing a very long pole. There are also events that involve jumping, such as the high jump and long jump.

Track is an incredibly physically and mentally demanding sport the team has incredibly intense practices. One runner who wished to remain anonymous commented, "to me track is the complete mental and physical experience." Because of Berkeley High's proximity to the U.C. campus the track team is able to practice at the exquisite Edward's stadium. The track at Edward's is in wonderful condition particularly compared to the Berkeley High track with its uneven, pothole-filled surface.

The track team began a school-wide recruiting campaign this year including bulletin notices and ads in the Jacket. The coaches especially encouraged cross-country team members to go out for the team. Unfortunately these efforts met with limited success as many people participate in cross country in order to keep in shape for other spring sports.

We wish the track team many future successes and hope that this season turns out well at press time final standings were not available.

This year the track team pioneered study halls for members. Much of the time, participation was mandatory, and the sessions proved to be invaluable for the team members. Those who were on the track team were truly student-athletes, showing that at Berkeley High, academics and athletics go hand in hand.

On the athletic tip, the members of the team hope, and quite possibly will follow in the footsteps of track and field greats such as Carl Lewis, Jackie Joyner-Kersey, Florence Griffith-Joyner, Mary Decker-Slaney, Dan, and Dave.

Some fierce looking BHS runners.

GOLF

Contrary to popular belief, golf has become a growing sport here at Berkeley High. This year, the team's size grew from a meager eight (which they had last year), to nine! The newest member to join the golf team was Tom Kite, a recent transfer from the P.G.A. Tour. Tom won the last U.S. Open down in Monterey, CA at Pebble Beach. When he received his cash prize, he announced that he was retiring, and that he would go back to high school and get his diploma.

When Tom was a junior at Hickboy High School, he was a golf prodigy, and was asked by the P.G.A. to start playing in tournaments. He dropped out of high school, and began making money as a pro golfer.

"Now that I've won the big one, I'm going back to school," said Kite. He followed with, "I've picked Berkeley High as my school, because they have the reputation of being diverse. They don't have any country boys, so I thought that I would be able to really round off their student population."

Kite also mentioned the fact that Berkeley High has a great golf team, and that he is excited to be a part of such a tradition. Besides, everybody knows that one out of every four B.H.S. golfers goes pro!

The Golf Team is planning on having a great year. They will be led by Jake "the Sap" Saperstein, O "the Hot" Dog, and Brant "the Sauerkraut" Wiwi. Kite will be caddying for O Dog for the beginning of the season, but that will only last until Kite has been shown how to handle high school competition. Kite stated, "High School competition is a major change from 'the Tour,' but with lots of practice, drilling balls with my big stick, should help me improve!"

Said senior Brant Wiwi enthusiastically of the upcoming addition to the team, "I've been dreaming of the day when I would actually get to play with Tommy, and now it's here! I just can't find words to express how I feel."

Many students at Berkeley High view the game of golf as an elitist hobby for the rich, rather than as a legitimate sport. "Golf? I thought this was the sports section!" injected Matty Wilkinson, when asked to provide his opinion on the matter.

However, in actuality, golf does require not only refined skill and monstrous talent, but also Schwarzeneger style muscles. For this reason, one can often find the members of the golf team pumping iron at Gold's. The results are evident. This year, Berkeley plans to crush their competition in league and eventually hopes to reach North Coast. Only time will tell.

MEN'S FIELD HOCKEY

We were humid and moist. Grasping our masculine sticks with both hands as sweat rolled off our faces. We were confident that we had full control; We could speed up or slow down when ever the coach desired.

Seriously though, the Berkeley High School Men's Field Hockey team sent three people to the national squad, and two more were invited to participate at national practices. In the bay area league, we are tied for second place with Hayward, under UC Berkeley. This is truly something to be proud of. We never could have done this without the superb coaching and encouragement from our energetic and hard working coach: Scott Adrian Land.

Practices were consistently difficult, long, often grueling and always exhausting. At the beginning of the season we were pretty out of shape, but our coach soon whipped us into proper physical condition. We now feel that we will be able to compete at any level of competition. We also spent many hours working on controlling the ball with our sticks, and no this isn't a sexual reference! This practice included the slalom, the weave, the reverse, the cradle, and the back flip. These basic moves seemed extraneous at the time, but they paid off in the matches. "We were able to weave around opponents, leaving them with their pants down," commented Lagaay.

Some of last year's players came back for a second year. Pieter-watch the wall-Lagaay, Damion-I'm too good to be here-Glennon, Justin-shut up, I like my car-Coffey, Kurt-big hair-Di Sessa, Andre-Mrs Hunter, I really am an H-senior-Séquin, Jeremy and Tidy Bled, Selim Star, Arshan-at least I'm not french-

Poursohi, and Sam-at least I'm not persian-Sadoulet. This year we have taken on a few new players. Rick, Dave, Devin, Vasey (stick-tackle), Melina (squeek), and (I guess technically) Jenny.

We would like to take this space in the article to address something about our own part in making this a successful season. In spite of the fact that our seniors of last year: Ben Katzenellenbogen, Matthew Zoloff- Levy, Steve Crook, and Matthew Smith, we had a successful year. Last years Juniors became this year's Seniors and sent three people to national camp! Our Seniors Peiter Lagaay, Arshan Pourshoi, Sam Sadoulet, Justin Coffey, Andre Sequin, Kurt DiSessa, Jeremy Bled, and Tidy Bled all helped to send these magnificent three to this camp.

Watch it! I've already got a stick between my legs.

Performing Arts

"There was a cabaret and there was a master of ceremonies and there was a city called Berlin in a country called Germany...and it was the end of the world and I was dancing with Sally Bowles...and we were both fast asleep."

For the past several years, the PAD musical has been performed in the spring and as a consequence the yearbook article usually consisted of hazy photos of people rehearsing songs and learning blocking and other semi-enthralling activities. This year, however, the musical returned to the fall semester, and aptly enough was set in the raining cold of a harsh Berlin winter. CARBARET (written by Joe Masteroff, with songs by John Kander and Fred Ebb) combined musical farce with powerful and relevant social themes; set in pre-WWII Germany, the show focused on a lavish and decadent nightspot called the Kit Kat Klub, and all of its colorful inhabitants. The club is overseen by a perverted, androgynous emcee (played by Yakov Silverstein) with a maniacal laugh and devastating sideburns. The musical tells the story of a madcap affair between a Cliff Bradshaw (Christian Poirer), an American writer, and Sally Bowles (Robyn Ganeles), a flamboyant performer whom he meets in the cabaret. Meanwhile, in another part of Berlin, an elderly landlady (played by Christina Seely) has come under attack by the growing Nazi movement for marrying Herr Schultz, a kindly Jewish fruitseller (Patrick Sanchez). Rounding out the cast were Natalie Saibel, playing the Nazi Ludwig with elegant menace, and the always engaging Jennifer Hoge as working girl Fraulein Kost. From Silverstein's welcoming of the audience, to the haunting closing sequence, the show was filled with laughs, tears, thick accents, wine, women, song, and the most entertaining positions since Bauman took six Shriners under a table in "Bye Bye Birdie" two years ago. But, the writer digresses. .

Miles, Mingus, Coltrane, and Bird never heard the phat swing of this jazz thing. These young Berkeley High musicians carry on the tradition of a sound that has changed but maintained its reign as the premier music for the students that come to hear it. The members of the Jazz Ensemble pursue the path of jazz greats of the past (including some who've attended Berkeley High School and ended up as some of the best on the music scene). And so these devoted, gifted, burgeoning musicians follow their dreams. Led by Mr. Charles Hamilton, who helps them play slamming songs like Caravan, the Ensemble has won and continues to win competitions all over California. So far this year, the outstanding band has taken first place at Sonoma. During the rest of the year, they will be off to the Reno Jazz Competition as well. They will also take part at the Monterey Jazz Festival. Due to their exceptional talent, they were asked this year to participate in the festival besides competing.

If one came and listened this year, one was probably dazzled by: Damon Bramble on tenor sax and flute, Phillip Byers on drums, Sam Dorman on piano, David Ewell on guitar, Lorenzo Farrell on bass, Clair Yoder, Michael Choy, Chris Brown, Liz Selvin, and Jeff McCulloch on trumpets, Max Werner, Peter Coolidge, and Ben Hester on trombones, Alex Fields on baritone sax, Moshe McKie-Crisberg and Alex Orloff on alto sax, Dorian Ramirez on tenor sax, and Sara Rosenkratz on percussion. Just one taste makes you want more.

Aside from playing in the Jazz Ensemble, there are also members who perform in the Combo, which consists of David Ewell, Damon Bramble, and Philip Byers. If you want to hear sweet music that will keep you kickin', the Berkeley High School Jazz Ensemble is on Tour in 1993!

Jazz Ensemble knows how to blow it low.

Everyone doing their own thang!

Although David Ewell loves playing music, he does have his off days.

Performing Arts

Dance Production is one of the biggest school events at Berkeley High. All of the dances are choreographed and performed by students, under the guidance of Marcia Singman. The lighting/sound technicians and ushers are also students. This year, the music for one of the dances was composed by a student, senior Alex Moulton. To the dancers, Dance Production "is one of the greatest experiences one can go through because the unexpected always happens." The performances never fail to attract crowds of students, proud parents, former members of Dance Production, and friends.

The dances are always varied, ranging from 70's style discos to modern numbers. Also fun to watch are the Opuses, which are short interlude performances between dances. One of this year's funniest Opuses was a take-off on the Calvin Klein Obsession commercials. Going to Dance Production is a chance to see the result of all the hours the dancers have spent practicing in the courtyard, not to mention, a chance to see the shy girl who sits next to you in math class shimmy on stage. "Give Up the Funk" put smiles on everyone's face and "Breathe In The Air" was beautiful and breathtaking at the same time. "Eight Ball, Corner Pocket" was spicy. "Voix De Joie" with Samantha Keller's beautiful voice was spectacular. "The Wall Within Us" brought tears into the eyes of the audience. "Desire" was enchanting and managed to touch the souls of many. "Taste the Pain" was hot and dramatic. Last but not least, "House Work" had creativity coming out of its ears. They were freshening and simply oozing with talent. Overall, there was just so much variety to be found that no matter what your taste, you would find a performance to fit your style. Nevertheless, everything put together made up for a spectacular night. When asked which she preferred, Willow Stern stated "I just can't decide!"

This is the way to fly.

Stephanie Carnes knows the groove.

The African Dance group strikes a pose.

Dancers show: “We love you this much!”

Performing Arts

Berkeley High School prides itself for being a place of diverse backgrounds as well as diverse curriculums. Under the enthusiastic supervision of Naomi Washington, BHS students gather to learn and practice the art of West African dancing.

Students have made a very smooth transition from former advisor Anisa Reed who taught Afro-Haitian dance techniques to Naomi Washington, now teaching the West African style. Dancers ranging from the beginning level to the advanced level receive the opportunity to showcase their talent. Students perform at school events such as the Malcolm X week and the Women's Day assembly. Some of the dances performed include exotic titles like Manjani and Fricola. Examples of this diversity exists in West Africa.

West African Dance, as its name implies is about dances from Africa which are taught and performed by BHS students. During the school year, advanced classes perform at Cal, Oakland Tech, and of course here. Beginning and Intermediate classes also get to show off their talents during Kwanza week which is seven days prior to Christmas break. Some alumnae come back to BHS because of the spectacular programs put together by the African Studies Department, including African dances.

Under the new direction of Naomi Washington, students learn more than just the dances. They are enriched with the culture, history, as well as songs from Africa. The dedication put forth by Mrs. Washington can be seen easily. Naomi also teaches summer classes for those who are seniors in the arts.

Berkeley High School is privileged to have as rare a program as West African Dance. So if you've got what it takes to shake, consider African Dance.

PRODUCERS

The Performing Arts Department at B.H.S. has one group of fully indispensable people. Yes, you could get rid of the actors, singers, teachers, dancers and the show might go on. But without the Producers there's no way anything would happen. The Producers raise the money for the shows- and, of course, money makes the world go 'round! The Producers bake it, you eat it and they're the best at calculating ticket prices! So the next time you scrumple our delicious nouveau bakeshop cuisine savor those delicate morsels a little longer. That's lovin' straight from the oven just for you! Kisses and Hugs to all who helped out this year! Let them eat cake!

"You want some of this with your cupcake?" asks Tanya.

The Producers, eh...hello hello you guys.

MAKE-UP/COSTUME

Where would a clown be without his face painted or his wild wardrobe? Only the make-up and costume crews know for sure. These dedicated groups of individuals create the identities of our favorite villians, heroes, and heroines featured in Berkeley High's productions. Working with rubber noses, spiffy bald heads, polyester and latex, they bring the performers to life and make them stand out on stage. So look closely at the next clown, baldy person, hippie child, or crabby old person... 'cuz it just might be the normal looking student sitting next to you in class. If you ever need a quick disguise, don't hesitate to look up the Make-Up and Costume Crews.

Mah House Rule Productions is a student theater group featuring a number of B.H.S.’s most talented performers. In June, MHR produced and performed “Look For Water,” a one-act play written by Dominic Mah, for a three-night run at LaVal’s Subterranean Theater. MHR’s founding members include: Robyn Ganeles, Jennifer Hoge, Natalie Saibel, and Monet Zulpo-Dane. MHR was also fortunate enough to feature guest performances by fan faves Judd “The Studd” Nelson and Molly Ringwald, both fresh off the recently completed filming of “The Breakfast Club II: Bryan Gets Play.” (Nelson and Ringwald received full Equity benefits for their participation). “Look For Water,” besides being an insanely profound name for a play, tells the story of

Jennifer (Zulpo-Dane) and Chris (Ringwald), a young couple who come home one day to discover that they can’t find each other. Their respective searches for each other lead them to encounter an enchanting dowser named Natalie, played by, that’s right, Natalie Saibel. A series of interludes follow the course of a sinister and determined kidnapper (Nelson) who attempts to methodically steal away with a number of young girls, variously portrayed by Ganeles and Hoge. In the end, Claire and John finally get together, Blaine ditches Stef to be with Andie, Diane and Lloyd leave for Europe, Rhett leaves for good, the Earth explodes, and Maria really looks like she’s going to shoot herself. So that’s all folks and I’ll get to Broadway before ye.

Alexis and Blake Carrington are at it again.

Aye-ho, Captain! I spy land.

"I don't like it when someone comes up to me right after the show and says, 'I really dug your play, man' or 'I really dug your message, man. I cried.' I like it when someone comes up to me the next day - or two weeks later - and says: 'I saw your play. What happened?'" -Bill Murray, "Tootsie"

So you walk in, (that's if you were lucky enough to get a ticket) and you sit down to watch a trio of one-act plays directed by three most qualified seniors, and the first one to see is NAOMI IN THE LIVING ROOM by Christopher Durang, directed by Patrick Sanchez, with lots of shrieking and cross-dressing and other fun stuff from Stephanie Carnes, Rob Kariakin, Susannah Blumenstock, and Rebecca Hopkins (performing with the utmost grace-under-pressure while replacing the ill-and-sorely-missed Lila Wilkinson), and you think, that was a nice visit, so what's next and its DREAMS OF HOME by Migdalia

Cruz, directed by Tara Mansfield, with Jaleh Bahador, Judd Nelson, Kara Flanigon, Dominic Mah, Darien Mayer, and Natalie Saibel and this story of love and death in a Manhattan subway station, and that kind of bums you out and you want someone to come and suck the tears out of your eyes and then this guy walks on stage and starts having to fake his way through four plays that he doesn't know he's in, because it's time for THE ACTOR'S NIGHTMARE to happen, this one also by Durang, and it's directed by Robyn Ganeles and stars Molly Ringwald as the Actor and Susannah Booth, Jennifer Hoge, Roberto Santiago and Monet Zulpo-

Dane as his tormentors/fellow cast members, and it's like the funniest thing in the world and it's okay, it's okay, you were at the '93 ATPS, you're back now. Freshmen take note: you want fame? 'Cause if you want fame, you have to sweat.

Concert Chorale. These words bring to mind melodically beautiful tones that give goose bumps to listeners far and wide. They also bring to mind a group of people who are tone deaf, off key, and deserve to be pummelled with tomatoes. The truth is that it is a diverse chorus of novices and professionals; some members have never heard of middle "C" while others could transcribe Bach in their sleep. A love of singing unites this motley group.

Every practice begins with "Do-Mi/ Do-Mi." Then Mr. Elliot enters and scares Mr. Brooks with his trumpet. Mr. Brooks responds warmly with his middle finger and then rehearsal starts in earnest. This year Concert Chorale planned to participate in The Reno Jazz Festival. The group hopes to kick some valley butt. Concert Chorale also performs for BHS, BUSD, and private functions.

Under the direction of Wendell Brooks, the Chorale suffered through many weeks of torturous practices and long roll-calls to tune themselves into a well-oiled singing machine. It sang a medley of classical, jazz, and contemporary pieces.

As in past years, the group performed their Winter Concert. "When I went to my first Winter Concert it was so beautiful that I decided to become a lifelong member. And then I hurled," said Liz Budnitz. Concert chorale seems to have a profound effect on all of its members. Once a member, you gain a lifetime membership. "As a member of the Concert Chorale, I gained the confidence to follow my heart and make my dreams come true. I am changing my name to Tammy Barknuckle and becoming a COUNTRY SINGER!!!" exclaims Tanya Rosen. Good luck to all the singing gamblers at Reno this year, and congratulations to Laurie on her heap o' cash won at the blackjack table. SING ON!!

After a few drinks, Patrick goes mad.

Continuing with the Performing Arts Department's recent trend of shows addressing weighty social issues, the Spring Production "The Skin Of Our Teeth," by Thornton Wilder, presented a plethora of poignant human predicaments spanning the gamut of psychosexual struggle and pathos. In three acts, the valiant, tortured and possibly dysfunctional Antrobus family weathers the assault of flood, fire, ice, war, bad dialogue, surly actors, and various other cataclysm.

Each act of the "Skin of Our Teeth" represents a critical junction in the history of the human race, each character, likewise, embodies an archetypal role in human society. Shouldering the responsibility of inventor, creator, provider, trailblazer, leaders, in the woolly-mammoth role of Mr. Antrobus was PAD veteran Patrick Sanchez. The maternal presence of Ms. Antrobus portrayed by Marissa Lindh, and their darling children of shadow and light were played by Darian Meyer and Lori Fagerholm. As the Antrobuses forge their path through time and related dimensions, they encounter dinosaurs, beauty contests, wine and cheese and other assorted societal evils, always accompanied by their faithful, faithless, unfathomable maid Sabina (played by Stephanie Wichmann in tour de force performance which truly redefined the boundaries for BHS theatre, yadda, yadda, yadda)

The gradual accumulation of technical mishaps and artistic compromises that plague the show serve to emphasize the precarious nature of our little glass-house world poised ever on the brink of annihilation-and yet somehow we survive, riding the razor's edge ever and always evading the final fall of the hammer, if only by the space of a few seconds, a few inches, the narrowest margin, the skin as it were, such as it is, figuratively speaking, of our teeth.

"Aahhhh, the sky is falling!!!" shout cast members as they duck for cover.

Sometimes, life is so unfair!

Please, can you ever forgive me...

STAGE CREW

Rarely seen and seldom heard, they constitute an important part of most theatre productions. Without them, plays and musicals would be difficult, if not impossible, to put on. They are stagehands. When the PAD puts on a production, technical support crews comprised of student volunteers and employed student stagehands are needed. Working with old and sometimes antiquated equipment, the stagehands must battle numerous adversities such as exploding light bulbs, burning gels, power failures, connector box burnouts, and angry actors. And yet the stagehands struggle bravely onwards.

BCT STAGE CREW

Unbeknownst to some, Berkeley High School has a terrific performing arts program. Though it is diminishing for lack of funds, the Performing Arts Department (PAD) still surpasses those of most Bay Area high schools. And unlike most other programs, the Berkeley High School-PAD not only sets young actors and actresses out on the golden road to fame and glory, it also has a fledgling stagehand program. The Berkeley Community Theatre Crew is a group of paid students who, under the direction of Theatre manager Lance James, take care of the backstage aspects of performances at the theatre.

Frosh year lost and confused. Sophomore year, got some real classes, pulled an all nighter. Junior year, knew how to handle class n joined Var Wrestlig. Spent Spring Break in the Yucatan, climbing the ruins and learning the culture, get my drift. Play del Carmen, Sleeping on the beach, swimming under the moonlight, helping amigos get back to the hotel from the Blue Parrot. Eating at Limmones and listening to live bands. Senior year, Rugby rucking and malling. Now the fun begins. Thanks Calkini Crew, Wyeth and friends. -Now that we have learned to climb over this first major step in our lives, there is no doubt that we will learn to walk over others, as we face our inevitable future. See Ya!

Ninth- My first friend here, Lenayou are such a sweetie CP, TC, JB, HS, HC, LR, c+c. The park the way it was then it will never be the same. Tenth-the "group" broke up but other than that it was a blur. Eleventh- DB, IM, Stage crew " Ducks and Lovers" Add, chorus "Oklahoma" RM, JC. Senior- Felix and passer By "Cabaret" CB, PEET'S DH, JH, EL, ect. the three Brunetts add chorus and passer bye's forever My best friend and- everything else through love and hate pickles and cumquats..... youv'e changed so much. My beautiful Swedish friend: the only genuinely kind person I know. I love you all! I finally get to leave? Yippee! I am still brainless (as I came) but happier (no BHS ahead of me) Just Life (School is not living). My activities at school? Eeew! I ain't goin' to tell ya! I've been trying to forget. I once flew into a brick wall and woke up in the ocean. I was separated from light and noise. I found myself. I rose from the water into the light and flew away with another. Watch out for monsters with long ears and cotton tails, carnivorous cows, happy rats, flying shoes, and tree bark! And killer dust balls. Eyeby meahoobyue? GUBLAAAAA...

Well..... I guess this is my last contribution. To BHS, the loud mouth comments in english and history, the relationships w/ girls, the growing up (yeah.....right), the many people I love... four of the weirdes years anyone could have. At college, I won't hear Amit Chibber's political speeches, Mr. Andersons Meaning- of-life lectures, Panasenkov's- well you know- deborah's wonderfull hugs, - I've been lucky. Everyone knows I screwed up w/ Robin, but now I know her as a kind friend. Sure, I've been uptight in high school, but i'll never pass by an old BHS friend w/o a smile an the "hi. How have you been doing" Line. Love you Mom, Dad, Bro, Anmama, A Papa, Grove, everyone. IAMGONE.

"Boy"

A BOY(raised by his European mother because his African father left when he was young) HAS BLACK FRIENDS (who tell him that he is more White than Black, call him names, and damage his pride) AND WHITE FRIENDS (who talk behind his back... so he pretends not to hear). THE BOY IS FRUSTRATED. WHO ARE THEY TO TELL HIM WHO HE IS OR ISN'T? THE BOY SPENDS MORE TIME WITH THOSE WHO DO NOT OPENLY HUMILIATE HIM. I GUESS THE BOY IS A SELL OUT. THE BOY BECOMES AN ALCOHOLIC AND DREAMS OF THE DAY HE WILL LEAVE HIGH SCHOOL AND START FRESH IN COLLEGE. AND NOW THAT DAY HAS COME. THE BOY CELEBRATES WITH A COLD BREW. thankx 4 support: mom, broham, & AB

We watched the sunset We watched the waves crashing over The rocks, hundreds of feet below us We watched the clouds thickening and the light growing heavy and dim.

We wached the stars. We held each other and left the wind. I remembered that there is so much more. I remembered what is real.

Remember lying safe in bed, blanketed by music, close to a friend/ Lazy days hoopin or skippin rocks when one thing mattered. The nights we blasted off this planet/Swinging/Remember letting go and diving in. The feeling that you were so high no one could touch you. Drowning in a sea of sound/ Jumping/Remember sitting on the deck at night staring at the lights. The feeling of hitting a cool beat. Remember your friends. Driving with loud music and the windows down. Riding bikes through Berkeley at night. Ain't nothin wrong with swingin...late nights, all those questions when only one thing mattered. Love. Sometimes I think I've found what I'm looking for. I'll never forget you guys. Remember the good times.

Im just gonna start off by saying peace and Good luck too everyone left here at this wackass, triflin, broke down recreation school. Positeveley though, my Berkeley High years were interesting, if anything at all. Thanks to everyone here who supported me through the changes I've been through. IN retrospect I can say that my eleventh grade year was kind of out of control, getting inebriated and trying to think of a new reason not to be in class. But this year I calmed down and did the right thing most of the time. And it is time 1993.. My high school experience is all ovfer and all we have left is the rest of our lives. Peace Slim

Writing with my left hand, playing badminton, cheering, listening to classical music, starting silly clubs, eating lunch on that special windowsill, eating food from the Nice Lady, chewing Spearmint Trident, working after school, taking some weird classes, malingering, excusing myself from class, visiting Sharon at UCD...I guess high school wasn't too bad, but I feel like I've outgrown BHS. Before I sign out: Akua-Can I come over? Paris, I will follow you if the cookies were sweet. Patrick: Nevermind. Jenny- Shall we travel? Roshawn,

Let's walk! Bruce, thank you for a lot of good advice these past 4 years! Now it is time to wave my kerchief.

freinds, Ive lived the finale of my youth in this town, in these times , at this school. I am content to leave. For all who have made the weekend realm, the romance the desire, the thrill, I give a smile, two points, and a goldfish. For Those Who Are, Nothing need be said. You Have my respect.—Muni

1st of all, I'd like 2 thank all my BPC buddies for being great friends. I'll remember u guys everytime I open a brew, smoke a j, or just have fun. And to my
TO posse, I'd like 2 say we've been together 4 over 12 years and when I think about the good times I hope we can make it 2 at least 40 years. (robbinliquor stores*TO fryr*drive

It's the shrieking that really gets to me. At least once a day I'll be walking down the halls and someone near me will start shrieking for no apparent reason. By all means, stop this nonsense. If we could put an end to this needless shrieking, I assure you, high school would be far less traumatic. Thank you for your time, shriekers.

I will remember so many times from the past four years. It is these times that have made high school bearable. Thank you to my friends everywhere. I love you all and will never forget you. Release yourself into the world and happiness will follow. Thanks to my teammates for 4 years of BHS baseball. Thank you to Art for all that it has done and will do for me. I can't believe that the end has come, but I am ready for it.

The quiet senior is what a lot of people think about me but that's not at all true. I should best be remembered for having 50 girlfriends one in each state. I consider myself to be international. I should also be remembered for my greatest accomplishments outside of school where I was handed down the family High School Pimp Award, which was previously held by my father. Greatest sports accomplishment-my two dunks at Cal State Hayward after the game. My career goals after high school are to graduate from college and to have at least one girlfriend from each of the seven continents. Once I accomplish my goals I will settle down and have three adorable kids.

Flush the Knife

I have been through a lot at B.H.S like ninth grade hanging out with Ravi Sitlani (the man who nose) and David Horton(little Dave). Chris Cukor has been one of my oldest friends from going to Gertrude's to the Tonga Room twice. Tenth I hooked up with my childhood friends from first grade thats Erik S., Jacobus S., and A-dawg Moulton (Alex), we've been through so much together from lazer tag at Cragmont, making our own Reggae song(I don't smoke ganga...), to parties all around town, but our friendship together has been everlasting (CHEEZIE line!). I did wrestling at B.H.S at first it was HELL but I made it. All I have to say about B.H.S Volleyball is we are mack daddy pimps and De La Salle is dead. Its been fun here at Berkeley High School but now Flush II has to go. I have to give a special thanks to Flush III (Joshua) don't let the senior next year win the Spirit Rally also I have to give a special thanks to the littlest Flushman (Flush IV) don't get to many women after you. I would like to say thanks to all my friends who I left out in this article. Last but not least BOB MARLEY is the man!! Peace, be Irie, Love,

I'm not going to write everybody I know, so don't get all peppy because I don't mention your name. I rowed senior year! Thought I was crazy, but I only had 20 minutes of homework a week! D.O.A., Canvas, or whatever we end up calling ourselves, we will be dope (Dre and Alex, you know what I mean)! Waterpolo is dope! If I had just joined the team one year earlier, I would have been a starter, which translates into being God! I really can't think of too mant things that have happened to me during my first few years here, so I'll just mention the one's that I can remember. Pajaro Dunes Crew skinny dipped in the ocean at three in the morning. Some of us were slightly on acorn! Beek Neeked In Dee Schleeping Beeg, and the sex machine! Rach, I hope you liked the present from the fella's: the moon. Emerald, I'll never forget you. I'll never forget the long drive to your house in the boon-docks! Emma, I will always remember you, and I'll always love you. Keep up the self defence, and one day you might become a blackbelt! Seatracing in the afternoons can really bite me (Crew Men know what I'm talking about). Camp Blue was live every year, and will continue to be. Cooler raids at Gold, Ssssexxxxxx Goddessssss, and Helmud the Park Ranger. Just a few more... Remember the T.P.Feecky Bee's. Rob, Dre, and I will never learn how to serf! Z-Gillen, Rach, Max, will always remember the times back at prospect! I think I'll end this short little escapade with this: GYJWB?!

Well, it's time for me to go on to college. I had lots of fun at Berkeley High. Ana, Odessa, and Ray, the closest friends I've had in my best senior year. Do good next year in school, and don't forget me. Mr. McKnight, my favorite African American teacher. "He speaks out straight knowledge." I don't know what I would have done without him. He influenced me in many ways. I thank him. The one special person in my life, my mother. I love you with all my heart. You brought me this far, now its time for me to help you out. My grandmother, the person who's taught me that the best things in life are not always the best for you. I learned. To the class of "93, "We finally made it!"

Jon Harris

First I must raise a cup to the B.P.C. to the few proud men that I served with Warwick P., Chris U., Wyeth P., Josh C., Seth B., Alex F., Ben T., it was a blast. I made a lot of Great friends at B.H.S. and I will remember all the great times that we had. Jess P. I can't believe you got me to dance, Nikki M. forever smiling at nothing. Don't forget to write from collage. Amanda S. you are forever in my heart. You will always be a very special person in my life. Don't forget me. AND once again to my non-stopping, drip dropping, no sinking, party fouling, sorry looking, $4.39 buying boyz of B.P.C., Never quit antill the last sip. I luv you guys. Bradster the Master

I just want to thank all my friends for everything that made my four years at this school the best, because c/o 93 is best. Love ya all, Bradster c/o 93 is the best! Especially the Juniors The best seniors: Me, Tasha, Kim, Ferras, Rachel, Alex, Ben, and the rest of class of 93. The juniors: Ramina, Eddie, Robert. Lower classes: April, Nathan, Ursula, Barbara

Carrie Hunt

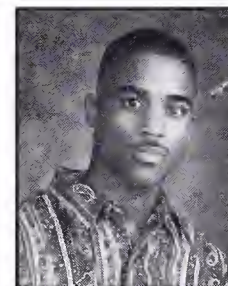

After 4 years of B.H.S there is so much to say and such little time. It’s hard to believe that Reggae On the River, New Years eve at Union Square, mudsliding, carpooling, J.S.A, the B.T.C, bungeejumping (Katie), P.W.P, Grand FInale, canyon pool, frat parties, and everything else is behind me. What elae is there to do? I would like to give a special thanks to Emms for knocking over the dominos, Jordan for the times at the Clairmont, Rachel for being my playfriend, and Suzie B for being her. Jake, I am glad I got you for a brother. Hell, maybe some day I might even miss the punches and bruises someday. Love you all, Carrie Hunt

A market place for Zombies can be confusing at times. OH, of course there is no point, they are already over the brink, but... No wait! The Art. OH, of course! And how excelent, the skills are as percise as the prick of a pin. No, that's not true. Zombies are different. OH, of course I forgot the bold faces, shy eyes, saddened troubles and indifferent smiles. But wait... its exciting watching all the plays and jumping in the games. Ya, but zombies wouldn't know it. They're asleep.

Can't say it hasn't been fun here at BHS, b/c it hasn't. I'm glad that I'll finally be out of this island of P.C.-ness and into the real world. I don't know what college life has in store for us, but I know it's better than BHS. Anyway, enough bhs ragging, I'd like to get some shouts out to Jay, Anna, Vania, Tania, Ever, Andreas, Dave G., and Dave S., Alex J., Hil-dog, Laura G, Joseph, Kai, Jeremy, Harlan, and all the others that I haven't mentioned. I'd also like to thank my friend/teacher/shooting buddy Alex Panasenکو. You've enlightened me on lite like no other has. For that I thank you. Oh, and I'll be back in '97. Regrets, I've had a few, but then again, too few to mention. I did what I had to do, I saw it through with good intentions. I planned each charted course, each careful step along the highway. And much, much more than this, I did it my way. -So sang the near immortal Sid Vicious; and well does he describe my High School career. A word to any underclassmen who might be reading this: HA HA HA HA HA HA HA HA! On that note, I'd like to thank some people: Mom for making me get a job, Dad for teaching me how to drive, my special AKA for all the joy she's brought me, and Lance and Jud for being the two most spliffitudinous bosses in the world. Of course, everyone looked forward to graduation, and yet, once it came, I somehow felt as though I had made a mistake. Having done no more than climb a mast a few times, I was certainly not qualified to be even half a sailor. I have climbed two hundred feet into the sky and burned two hundred feet into the earth, and as a result of all that I was still without a single, solitary ability. LK-Yes, there is a difference between a calculator & a remote control. Still, I love you all the same. JK- Maybe I'll see you in Korea this summer? AT-one of the sweetest people I know. Lots of 40's with CC, JV, KR, CW, 5-G 8-Ball Posse. Yesterday I saw you kissing tiny flowers, but all that lives is born to die, so I say to you that nothing really matters, and all you do is turn and cry. That's the way it is and that's the way its going to stay. Willow-you're time is going to come, I can't wait til we ramble on and sing our song. Bonny-late nights at Ted's, early afternoons at coffee shops, we'll always chill. Mahnaz-Edible comes to mind and Larry, Scott, Gary, Martin, and Jyo; the list goes on. You can always find your path in life if you take the time to look. KR-I can't thank you enough, I couldn't have made it without you. I guess its time to move on, but in my own sick way, I'll miss this place, 4 years of lessons learned and unforgettable memories. "I'll fly away into my mon/I'll leave you behind, you will thank me/My warped time zones fly by/Further and further away we go/There will be no sun/And it will not be dark/My moon is special/It holds an inner secret/You can't see it/Unless you already see it/I see it/I see it in all of us/Can you look deep/Deep within yourself/Your mon awaits you /We await."--JL

I just want to wish a good new life to all of my friends and teachers including some office staff. These special people know who they are without writing down any names because first of all, there is no room for all and secondly, I don't want to leave anybody out. I wish the best for all of the class of '93 because life is hard and perhaps in ten years I might meet a friend, teachers, staff or an enemy of Berkeley High and chat about the Berkeley High experience that seemed to be a dream. In ten years most of us will be complete adults. Some might look back, like maybe I would, and remember that we were in such a hurry to get out of high school. Good luck to all of the unforgettable class of '93.

There's so much that I want to say but It's so hard to find the right words to express what I have been feeling for the past 4 years of my life. It seems so strange that this chapter of my life is coming to an end and there's a whole world out there just waiting to be explored. I'm so scared to leave the place and faces that have been familiar to me for so long, but at the same
 I can't help but to be excited because I know that it's time for me to move on. I've had alot of difficult times and bad experiences during these past 4 years at BHS, but they have all helped me learn alot about myself. I owe so much to all of the people that have been there for me and have stuck by me even when it felt impossible to make it through.
 Becky-What would I ever do w/out you? You truly are the Bestest friend I could ever have wished for. We are two of a kind that must stick together 4-ever. I love you with all of my heart. Destani-
 You are like the sunshine of my life, you always know how to make me laugh. I love you and remember, best friends don't drift apart. Teyah-You have always been there to look out for me. What would I do w/out your wonderful stories? I love you and the same goes for you, friends like us won't ever separate.
 Monti-My sister, my love, my BEA. You have taught me so much through the years.
 Our lives have just begun, let's get our kitten and be happy 4-ever! I love you more! Ryan-Just because we won't be in the same neighborhood doesn't mean we have to lose touch. You have been a part of my life 4 too long to ever let that happen. Rachel-Scrubs like us have to stick together. Let's go to Yosemite! I love you always. Ben-I love you for the person that you are. I will never forget the experiences that you have given me. You have helped me see life in a better way.
 Thank you 4 everything. Thank you Mr. Rosenbaum and Ms.
 Iverson for helping me get through the rough times.
 Mom and Sis-I'm sorry for everything, sometimes love hurts. Thanks for putting up with me for 17 years. I do love you guys. Well, this is it. BHS has given me so many memories and now I'm ready to graduate.

To the fellas- L,M,J-The best of times, the worst of times, we had a great time.
 Jazz Ensamble- let's just kick as much ass after I write this one as we have before I wrote this one. Jew Moonshine- Getting drunk
 just for the sentance. B.O.D.
 Winter Ball- It was fun,
 but everyone makes mistakes.
 At this point I'm supposed to go on about all the times, Ik kicked it, Sipped, smoked, toked, sipped some more,
 kick some more, passed out, kicked, ect. but mabye I kicked it too hard and mised it., or mabye there's no point in mentioning it.
 I must say though- I always had a great time on 60/70's day& the best times have happened&

have yet to come.

 exciting stuff!) Sylvaine, did we really spend our precious time at that THING? Junior year,
 President of STOP...R.T.
 thanks for all your help.
 Duyen, thanks for your friendship and all those late, late, late, night talks. I hope you'll continue to be the WILD THANG.
 January 13, 1992 was fantastic! R.T,J.K.,D.L., D.W.,A.L., thanx for all your help during my last minute desperate cry for help. Vasey, you're an inspiration. Jenny L., our section looks fabulous!
 Thanks for putting up with me when things got really crazy. Jenny Tom, best of luck, hopefully we'll both find IT at the end of the rainbow. Japan? NOOOO!!!!
 Now, time to get sensitive.
 C.P., I wish we could have shared these 4 years together. Youza, don't listen to your big sister, you know better. Mom and Dad, How can I ever repay you? Remember,
 Homey Don't Play Dat!
 To my junior friends,
 take it easy and enjoy life... Lastly, I'd like to leave you with this: I went to find the pot of gold That's waiting where the rainbow ends. I searched and searched and searched and searched and then- There it was, deep in the grass Under an old and twisty bough.
 It's mine, it's mine, it's mine at last.... What do
 I search for now? -

Each year I have had to say goodbye to so many. Can it be true its finally my turn? Thanks to all the souls and spirits that make up mine. -The strongest circle of women I have ever seen. The harder we cried the louder we laughed. The more they tried to hold us back, the further we went. The best times were the times away to all the secret places. These times wont end! Thanks to all the people who spoke the truth and trusted me. And all who made me laugh! To all my teachers you could never be paid enough for the job you do. You are everything to BHS, the true heros! Most of all I thank the stars, the sun, moon, trees, water, MUSIC!!, my job, and my trusting mother. The cup is half full.

When I first set foot on this school,it was unthinkable at that time that I would dislike the thought of leaving for good. Nine wonderful months have passed, and things seemed to have happened in just a blink of an eye. I remember thinking how I wanted so much to graduate in high school right away. But now that the school year is nearing its end, I get this funny feeling of wanting to go back to first year. Guess it's one of the ironies of life. In this time of reflection, I can't help but to wish and to pray that the things I hold precious in this school will be well and great even as we, the graduates leave. Yes! I'm surely gonna miss the Berkeley High teachers, my beloved friends who give me puissance to achieve one goal...to GRADUATE from high school. So I'd better end this peace of mine.

A wise guy once said: "A wise guy once said: "Eat drink, Drink, and Be Merry, for Tomorrow We Die." Ok, it's an overstated philosophy, but NONETHELESS, c/ o93, give it a try. As we all move into the true world, we must consider first and foremost to stop, fondle the flowers & listen to Otis Redding. Thespians, artists, writers, musicians, FH players, hackey-sackers, frisbee tossers, wind surfers, boogie boarders, café goers, etc. keep the BHS SuSaculcha alive! I reserve the most profound space in my soul to store my love for all my chums that are on their way or who i'm leaving behind... I won't forget you, if you don't forget me. Aaaand BHS, thanksfor the ride...Adieu all. Paris, Poitiers or BUST!

For 720 days I have spent my time worrying about what will happen the next day. Will I have a good day or a bad one. I can definitely remember the good times, but not nearly as well as the bad ones. I've decided that school itself is the final test of ones strength, stamina, and self control, unfortunately lasting 4 years. Jonah- You were always the most obnoxious person in a crowd of thousands, but unlike others, I saw through it, and we became friends. I thank you for being the friend and brother that I have always wanted and needed. Alex- What can I say, we started out the two greasiest guys in study hall, moved up since, pagers, Hoes (O'Dowd), you are always the easiest to argue with, and the first to kick us out, still, you will always be the coolest smart sax man in my book. Max- "Luke.....can you come and pick me up..... I'm at Hustead's.....I just crashed", The baldie of the crew, grizzly tail-lights (police say "use the club") and the never ending Quest for a great time. To all who have known us, JCII- successors to a legacy. Lili- All the ups and downs have conditioned our relationship-wild latenight drives 4ever! my best friend-thank you. Marchee&Shamoo got a shiner-You two are the best summer chillers in the world, long live late nights with cameras, felt markers and MW! "Hellllloo Isaac!!" Sara-It's true that a smile is worth More than a thousand words. Jen-Between the two of us, no secret will ever be safe! Sisters-JP SP EP AJ. BW-lets get together to talk about our problems. Mahnaz-I heard about a diner in Vallejo! My friends-NM,JV,CW,BH,KL,FV,ZF,JS,EB,NO-DOG, and CH. To all those who are not mentioned, you are not forgotten.

The ones who have helped to shape my personality are the ones I love to share it with. Somewhere someone is crying, to them I give a smile, and say, you have feelings, you have possibilities, you have my support, and most of all, if no one else's, you have my love.

I like to say what's up to all my padnas in class of 93 and its not that many because all of my real padnas left in 92. But first I have to say thank you to my mommy and I love you. To my daughter, Mommy loves you and I promise you to give you a life a child deserves. Now I like to give shots out to my padnas: Adeili shalah I love you but I'll never forgive you for leaving me here stuck with these fake ho's. What's up Nisa keep writing those poems. Mia I can't forget about you. Shamioka stick with my cousin because he loves you. Atlia she's not fake at all. Ajeenah you is my homie til the end. I can't forget about you. Aminah, keep taking care of that beautiful little girl Malon. Sorry if I forgot anybody. But I can't forget about my baby Dennis Beavers I'll never forget the memories we shared and hopefully we will have much more.

I was 16 when I arrived to the US. For the past 3 years in BHS I have experienced many adventures. Helen, Maggie, Carina and Tammy have been such a good friends, especially Vivian, who has helped me a lot since the first day I came to BHS. I'll never forget you all. In the 11th grade, I met my first boyfriend in the US-MARK. He is the best guy I have ever met. There were happy & sad times, he treats me very well. I love to be w/ him. Many love and thank you's for mom & dad giving all their supports in words and financially. Also JoJo for being my best friend. Best wishes for everyone in the future and good luck!!!!

First of all, to my oldest friend, Lunatickey-health food weinies and smelly nights (what good friends)-speaking of smelly-Megs-Cheers! Let's drink. Secondly thanks to all the ladies, past and present (Sarah, Jenny, Juliette and 5 o'clock-too bad it was such a bitter ending-it was great while it lasted). Jewels-you brought the meaning of random to my world-you could always put a smile on my face. Thirdly thanks to AC, RA, JW, JG, ZG & ZC for all the sensative times. Weintraub-you'll always be my Favor of the month. Andres-you were a wonderful prom date but that was not the fastest takedown in history. Josh G.-you couldn't be more Nutty! Z Gil.-we couldn't be more skinny (no offense Orion). Chun-you are one hot oriental mix. Bobby-don't worry Tryxie will visit you one of these lonely nights. Sierra-I don't have any idea how to sum up my feelings or our relationship in a few sentences. Don't ever forget that I love you and don't regret anything (Painless Jon can assure you of this). Rachie-the closer I get to you the harder it is to leave. You have given me so much when I needed you. Teech me tow spel and be my friend forever. Sexy Bexy-I am the wind beneath your wings. And finally, my dearest Gregory-Take good care of my key-and it will never belong to anyone else.

"We who say 'Yes' to the quest of discovering the beginning of our existence," -Foppa. Thanks to all of the people in and around Berkeley High who have helped me start my journey. Everything seems a blur but the people. I love you all. CLAIR-my meadow buddy. You sure stank purdy. Watch out for the "CRACK!" We can always come back to our home. AMY-from barbie and bracelets to dancing, youth hostels and murals. We've always had fun. Thanks for sitting on the dock of the bay with me. MONIQUE-"Do it!" is what you always say to me. You live that statement MO. And by the way, we're not lost. LENA "I radiate warmth" Harris-Will you be my buddy? Quince and Bottom will live forever. Kiss me dahling. JOHANNAH-You'll always be my queen. Thanks for sprinkling your magic dust when I needed it. LILA-You're the Hearts master. Thanks for helping me with my game. Power to all the big-bootied sisters of the world. ROBYN-You have so much going for you, and no sexist pig (or dick) will ever stop you from getting what you want. You're a damn fine Pictionary player too. DEMI-You nerd you. One day you'll the world, or a fragment of it existing only in your mind. Kidding. Every nickname you give sounds like mama. Go for yours and always give up the funk. WYETH-My favorite dancer. Go Grease Lightning! Make sure you set aside some time to be goofy in the future. Write to me. TAMMY-You are the most inspirational person in my life. Thanks for helping me to find the inspiration in myself. DANA-Thanks for giving me a world of ideas. OH, and by the way, I like the yellow ones. LISA & DOM-Everything looks different when you stand up. Always remember to change your perspective. AMTRACK TRAVELLERS-I'll never be the same. I love you forever. "I'm fired up!!" DANCE PROJECTS '93-You're funkier than Ms. Singman's Funky chicken. C.S.S.-I hope we all accomplish our dreams. Let's change the world. TASHA-T'n'T forever. Through out high school i Kept telling myself that this is not real life, but as my senior year comes to an end i realize that these were probably the best years of my life. Nothing in my life could have better prepared me for the outside world than my experience with people at Berkeley High School. 9th- Lost and nieve but survived w/o a scratch. 10th- became the working girl and learned to do my own taxes. 11th-cheerleading, JSA, and class treasurer, T.H., J.B., M.R., J.V., J.K., K.L., Thanx for listening to my ideas. 12th- Class treasurer, Clubs Editor on YB, female streakers, seniors in the car, yes YB girls+Luke are the best gossipers. Stephanie- My first real best friend, you were like the sister i never had, we fought and we hugged. i'll always love ya. Bonny- My main bud, you were always there to give me a hug when there was a cloud over my head. Laura- Can you play today? if i never told you, i'm sorry. You mean the world to me, and i'll always love you. Xenia and Monica- we had fun rollin together in the jeep. never forget to use the 5 finger rating system. Zuly- i'll always be down the street for you. Rima- Marry him he's a siut! High school guys'll never understand.

You're like a snowflake, one of a kind. Jill- Keep your chin up. There's always someone who loves you. You'll succeed in life. Chris- We never did find a park w/o a curfew. I love you. Kate- Thanx for saving my ass in YB. Lets cut and go to the Esprit Outlet! Luv ya. Claire- Thanx for always lett'n me get a hit! Chloe- My main Chica. We were born to shop together. Thanx for being there for me. Luke- "Mahnaz i'm sooo desperate". No you're not, you're a stud! Lets never stop diner shopping. Jessica- No we're not fiends! Just gotta an urge to go higher than the rest. Never drift away, Luv ya. Brant & Lili- You guys were made for each other. Thanx for listening to my whinning. Eddie- You're the maaan. Go gett'em tiger! Rebecca- You were the greatest friend a girl could have. This is sooo illegal!! Midnight run to Xanadu, blasting the Beastie Boys! i'll miss you! Masoud- Work hard and don't f—k up. i'll always remember our game Mr. Sharky. i love you. Mom & Baba- Thanx for putting up with my attitude and my long hours. I love you both more than life itself. i hope in the future i'll have the serenity to accept the things i can not change, courage to change the things i can and the wisdom to know the difference.

Freshman year- Wow what a change coming from a school with 30 students to one with almost 3000. Poped in the face for my hat, for being a little white freshman, and then senior year getting popped in the face for still looking like a freshman, wow four years and nothing's changed! Golf-(My Life, need I say more) four years Varsity, best times of my BHS career, to all my golfing homies, B.Wiwi., O-dog Fulton, Shaggie Shaughnessy, and Drop Out Pawsey. We dominate! To the crew, Z-man, Er-dick, and Moldy Moulton. From Pursuit at Cragmont to spin three times and talk like B.M. Those were the times I'll never forget, we're going different ways, but we'll always come home to the same place.

E-Rock

I'm E-rock the pimp, and I walk with a limp. In my 4 years at BHS I rowed for 4 years, I played water polp for 2 years, and partied my a— off. I have smoke weed, consumed many alcholic drinks and shroomed. I've been in fights, got suspended, crashed my car 5x, and been arrested (We tight) I partied in Taheo many times with Ben, getting drunk every night, and waking up at noon every day. Gambled in Reno with the polp team, and got so drunk that I couldn't play in the tournament. Threw many parties, I had my oven light on fire and my phone fried (Jenny) Got drunk at school and chilled with the mack daddy class of 1993. many times partying, I'm E-rock-e!

I am glad that I am leaving a declining BHS. I am sorry that I can't use more appropriate language to describe BHS. It's been a great four years except when I go to class. I hate getting my ass kicked in badminton in my freshman year, but I love kicking everybody's ass in my senior year. Badminton tournaments are fun because I would always get a trophy or medal. It's been great knowing Mt. Fuji, Stressful Lau, Quiet

Winnie, Can-dun, Ducky Don, Candy Andy, Eyelean, Hanging Hung, stinky Oatmeal, Wayne Campbell, Mooing Cow, Smelly Toe, Made in China Loo, and the person that looks like me. c/ o 93 is the greatest class and the fat lady is singing.

What up fellas. We're finally outta this mutha. It's been four long years and June 18th 1993 has finally arrived. I'm going to miss you boys. I want to give a special shout out to my boy Eric. It's been fun man. Thanks for the memories. I also want to say a little something to Reggie, Renato, Ryan, Anita, Jacinda, and Jeremiah, Peace Ya! Youd made it fun. Last but not least, my boy Josh: Thanks for the hook ups blood. It's too bad it didn't work out with that girl. All that work and you ended up punkeing out. You let me down man. P.S.-Peace to everyone that was down from day one.

To everyone who has helped me through my life. I appreciate your help in helping me find the person who I have become. Thank you. Stephanie- We'll be friends no matter where we are, but if ever in doubt, just think back to the time we fell upon our butts. Thank you for always listening to me. You're such a wonderful person don't ever forget how much you mean to me. I love you. Hang in there, life can be good if you only let it. Brian-Martin- Don't forget August 30, 2000, hope we can wait that long. I'll miss you, but don't worry, I'll come running next store in my underwear! Be smart next year. I love you like I've never loved anyone. Peeeeeby- You've been a great bro! Don't ever stop calling, I love to hear your voice. Beamer and Artie since '86! We've been through so much together Ab. Never forget me. Nhut- Just because I'm flaky about calling, doesn't mean I don't still love you. Sorry for taking our friendship for granted, you mean so much to me. BMW#1- Study hard for our detective business. I'll miss being your favorite neighbor, but I'll always have a plum fight in my heart for you. Marg- You've been like a little sister to me (even though you're bigger). Thanks for always being just a doorbell away. Destani and Teyah- We've had many fun times together. I appreciate your support and friendship. Rule the school next year! Mom, Dad, Mary, Mia, Mike and Gabe- Thank you for always being there me, and taking care of me and being such a supporting family. I LOVE YOU ALL! We're finally done, but now what, It's only the beginning. I look forward to leaving this adventure and starting a new one.

 The last 4 years have changed me a lot, but the time went so quickly. To friends I had that didn't last, good luck in whatever you do. thanks to my family for being there for 18 eyars. I love you. To those friends who have lasted, Dolly & Gee and everyone who kicks it on Dover, to Wayne and the group on Roosevelt, and to Susannah and Cam away at school- I owe a lot to you. Much love for you guys, I'm always there to kick it with all of you. Peace to everyone who's staying at BHS-I gotta get up outta here! Long live hip hop, all the creativity it inspires, and the knowledge it spreads. Andlonglivedank- nature's mind-broadening way of saying high!!

Marisa Williams
 Sasha- you are my heart. Sumaiya- you are my mind, Monet- you are my soul, Without the three of you I would not be this close to feeling WHOLE. I'd better see you in a year
 Gwen! Darrell--you will never fail to make me smile. I can't decide whether I'd want you at my deathbed or not...on the one hand you may cheer me up but on the other I might die laughing. Despite our ups and downs I'm here Keninde and I know you'll go far. You're crazy Sora, but maybe that's what it takes to get U NO who! You go girl! The people above don't need any of my luck because success is thei rdestiny. To the rest of you all, I wish you the best of luck and good fortune.

 Okay here I go. I would like to say thanks to both my parents my 2 sisters-K-Dove & Trinia, & my Lil nephew kijhan. I am proud to be leaving this school, because I'm tired of having to get up at 7:00am. My years at Berkeley High was pretty cool. My favorite part of school was lunch and after lunch. Why? Because I'm always donked out! So now I'm gone I'm leaving my name to carry on for the best never the worst . Meiisha Williams.

 Wuz up to my peoples. Yo I would like to say wuz up to the pople who love me. Brandi Boyd you know I got nuttin but love for you cause we've been through thick 'n' thin together and Megan too you know I feel the same way about you. Oh you know I can't forget my baby girl Jaime. All props go to Marie and Lamar and Traevon. Those little people who love me too anyway BHS females that use to mug and talk behind my back about me you did right just keep step'n cause don't start no-sh-won't be no it thank all the peope in my family who helped me out when I needed it. Love you very much, Sexy Red.

the semester it is difficult to comprehend graduation, much less college, the end of the epic years of high school approaches, and here are my two bits. Most of my memories, be they hazy or crisp, are of my Prep/Prep Alum friends, from then and now. Running from rabid dogs in Dutch Flat is bound to become one of my most lasting memories. For those of us who go back much to our buddy who is now freezing his ass off in a sub-zero Vermont winter. Finally, to Muni, to Max, and to my brother, Keith: "...don't you know who that Fat Lady really is?...Ah, buddy. Ah, buddy. It's Christ Himself. Christ Himself, buddy."

Come on take a chance
see I'm a dog who's sneaky
But give me one night
so I can show you I get freaky

To those who didn't appear...DISAPPEAR!!

If black and white didn't argue the most
They could clearly see the government screwin' em both

The thing that men and women need to do is stick together Progressions can't be made if we're separate forever

It really doesn't make a diff
I'm not the type to riff
I might smoke a spliff
But I won't sniff

Bustin' caps in the mix
Rather be judged by twelve
Than carried by six Cause I'm gettin' major
Pactel move to Skypager

You can too plan to live a full life
free of anxieties
while you're at it
try to keep an eye on me

I can go ten different places at one time
I can jump in my ear and walk through my mind

Claim to fame must have changed now that we became strong I remain still the same cause it's the same song

I hear that you made a few enemies but when you need a friend you can depend on me
Call if you need my assistance
There'll be no resistance
I'll be there in an instant

I just get down and I go for mine - Say check 1, 2
and run down the line

Put me in chains try to beat my brains
I could get out but the grudge remains

He's looking through the window yo why we tryin' to hide it
To make the boy grow to be ignorant and misguided about THE BUD
Now I have to play the part of the advisor THE BUD
Because the bud is just a tasty tantalizer THE BUD
Not the beer cause the bud makes me wiser

what is my label when I exit room? status what's menage a trois or...that is what is sex when you have three people what are laws if they ain't fair and equal what's Clark Kent without a telephone booth what is a liquor if it ain't 80 proof

To those who didn't appear...DISAPPEAR!!
